The most serious evidence of this fear is the Iron Curtain on the exchange of information which the Kremlin imposes. The Soviet Union is now operating so many broadcasting stations solely for "jamming" Western broadcasts that it has to give them code signals. The code names usually chosen by engineers to avoid jamming their own broadcasts to their own people.

Last year the United Nations General Assembly began the debate on the Mutual Inspection which Soviet Dictator Khrushchev had demanded the United States delegate, Henry Lodge, asked the Soviet Union to broadcast this debate to the Russian people. The request was futile; the Kremlin has no intention of allowing its subjects to hear the truth to reach the ears of the Russian people.

The Kremlin's suspicion of the more advanced countries of the West is one of the fears introduced by the Communists. It has existed for centuries and repeated invasions from a Mongolian's supported it. When the Tartar Asiatic hordes, the White Russians against the Red, in the civil war that followed the First World War, they all contended the Communists with a wonderful opportunity to intensify the ancient attitude and moulding it to their purposes.

Throughout Stalin's career, he constantly emphasized the theme that the Soviet world was ringed in with capitalist enemies, intent on its destruction. This theme he has continued to expound — a poverty on his people, in order to produce guns and tanks, and a ruthless dictatorship in order to produce guns and tanks.

The Soviet system is that of blocking off all direct information from the West and feeding the Russian people only carefully prepared propaganda "news" items from the Russian authority. Edward Crankshaw a veteran Moscow correspondent, recalls that for a weeks after the announcement of the Russian victory at Stalingrad, the average Russians refused to believe it.

They thought the official announcement was just another piece of propaganda. And the average Russian's relative unnatural curiosity about things foreign.

In order to carry out his ambitions for the new Soviet state, Stalin destroyed the Russian middle class — no longer remain a backward nation. Ruthlessly, at the cost of millions of lives, he imposed an industrial economy on an agricultural economy. He instituted a vast educational program.

Russia has changed. But Stalin did not foresee many of the results of his programs. Russians have received education and education means asking questions and getting answers. Russian industrial development cannot be continued in a vacuum. In order to compete with the West, there is much the Russians must learn from the West.

It is impossible to make such exchanges a one-way street. In order to send Russian delegations to other countries, the Soviet Union has had to allow visitors from these other countries.

Few Russians — only a handful — are allowed to make these foreign visits. But the Russians have little control over the selection of the people who visit them.

This easing of travel restrictions has benefits both ways, in the Western view. Soviet specialists, for instance, sent to the West to pick the brains of Western scientists, have cast doubt on the Russian legends of "Wall Street warmongers" and "exploited American slave labor."

This is the point. Free exchange of information is still far away, but the West must take advantage of every opportunity to bring it nearer. On both sides of the Iron Curtain average Russians and average Westerners find they have more things in common than they have differences — when they have the chance to find out.

It is a strong admiration for the Russian people," said Sir Winston, "for their many merits, bravery, their many gifts and their kindly nature but it is the Communist dictatorship and the declared ambition of the Communist Party . . . which we are bound to resist."

The mistrust of Western policy must never forget this distinction.

Lobster War Down East

Charlottetown Guardian

Maine lobster dealers have used the words "silly" and "preposterous" in describing a suggestion reportedly made at the annual meeting of APEC and the New England Council to the effect that all lobsters caught in the Maritime area be marketed as "Maine lobsters".

If the suggestion was really made — which appears to be some doubt of it — it was not only silly and preposterous but also a most unjustified aspersion — perhaps an unintentional one — on the quality of lobster caught in the Atlantic Provinces.

The inference, clearly, was that Maine lobsters are superior to all others. This is a myth pure and simple as is the claim that the boundaries that Newfoundland lobsters are "the best in the world".

If Maine lobsters are more in demand than those from other areas it is only because they have been advertised more extensively. Millions of people in the United States' Midwest a lobster means a Maine lobster.

For the most part, they do not know the lobster can be caught in other places. This, of course, reflects large credit on the Maine fishermen who have given the same wide — and expensive — publicity, they would be but an popular. Their quality is second to none.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Now that summer is nearing its end, I have taken a census of the sunglasses left at our cottage by visitors and casual shoppers-in and I find seven pair, which is two less than last season, but one above the five year average. I also find that of the seven pairs are missing, and therefore left at somebody else's cottage, or on the wharf or beach. I can identify ours by two bands of red nail polish on the side pieces.

It would do no good to hold a sort of annual clearinghouse assembly at each summer resort to which everyone could bring t h e sunglasses left at his cottage because many of the abandoned glasses belonged to visitors from after; and besides, not all the de-spare.

linquents are gathered at a resort at the same time.

Here is a suggestion for next season. Regattas are usually held on Civic Holiday and are the first week of August. If a Sun Glass-Razzle or Rummage Sale is held at the scene of the regatta, and everyone was invited to bring to it all pairs of forgotten sunglasses, the glasses could be sold to the gathering and the proceeds turned over to the regatta committee.

Of course, all would not be sold. The leftovers could be taken out to the deepest part of the lake and dumped overboard.

The main thing is to find some way of getting rid of the lake sunglasses. After all, the average summer cottage has just so much

NO REASON IN DISBELIEF

"Since then everything about him shows a progression of power, where is the difficulty that there is, at the summit of all things, a being who has an infinity of power unites with the infinity of t h e will? When this simple idea presents itself to the mind, we have the idea of a perfect being that man calls God."

This statement would suit even the most orthodox, yet strangely enough, it was written by a man, Thomas Paine, who has always been considered as an atheist. Paine was hated in his day for his destructive religious teachings. No one has come down to us with the bad name of atheism attached to him and the stain of atheism on his quite brilliant reputation.

All of which teaches that, as a matter of factual fact, there are few atheists in the world. In fact, atheism if so logically indefensible that no one can hold to it without doing violence to every process of reason. Of course, the order of things suggests a creator. Of course, the continuation of the creation along established lines suggests a Sustainer of the Universe. To think of anything else is, in fact, not to think at all.

It is true that there is no reason or determine to do yioness, but they can be atheists. The mind left to itself believes in God.

Being Cruel To Be Kind

Brantford Expositor

A domestic situation one may safely call unique has come to light in one of those newspaper columns devoted to solving readers' personal problems. A man writes that every day he takes his wife's false teeth to work, and he is disturbed that she calls him the meanest man in the world.

Delving deeper into this fascinating drama of tooth-toting husband and gumgnashing wife, we find that the man isn't mean. He just means well. It seems that the wife is cheating on her eating. To restore her lost shape, the doctor put her on a diet which she faithfully observes — at mealtimes. But the husband found that once he was out of the house she sent for the ice box and frequent snacks. So the fat was to be kept at least that part of it that the lady wasn't carrying around, and his drastic and ingenious method cure was to walk out with her teeth in his pocket, and eat between meals. But, as he is careful to explain, he always comes home in time for lunch so that she may her choppers."

That old tag about being cruel to be kind never carried any weight before, as it certainly never has for any boy about to be paddled by an enraged parent, it has some claim to a revival now. That is, if you can accept the story at all. The columnist-reporter is prone to a touch of imaginative. She earnestly advised the husband to put his wife in touch with an organization called Take Pounds Off Sensibly — for people's convalescent of Alcoholics Anonymous. Apparently it never occurred to her to wonder how the husband could get the teeth out of the mouth of his once-operative wife, and twice a day at that. husband whazz.r a-gib

Oyster's Life Not Happy One

Sudbury Star

The world is in turmoil, but the United States Bureau of Commercial Fisheries are up to their ears in thought to the plight of the oyster. He is not placid self-satisfied creature we have all been led to believe he is. Actually the oyster is one of unremitting torment and trauma.

For one thing if he belongs to one of several varieties he never knows when he awakens in the morning what he is going to be a little girl oyster or a little oyster. He can be a boy oyster and he can change rather suddenly from one to the other.

A group of boy oysters got together for instance and decided mon enemy the oyster drill" and then he would sit back with a pitched giggle and has to rush lions and put on pink booties. filling the inside of the oyster shell with ear-shattering noise. The U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries is flying to save the oyster for a finer fate than the half-shell. They discovered that the oyster drill wants no part of oysters. He refuses to cross a copper bund. The bureau has discovered that if he can be forced to enter one field with any material — provided there is no copper in it the cup. The drill will crawl up the fence and over the fence to escape, but he will go no farther.

Why this, is nobody knows, but the best guess is that copper sets up an electrolysis. It starts his doorbell ringing and he starts shutting it off. "I keep hearing somebody at the front door," he explains in his wife, "but there's nobody there."

Anyway, as soon as coastal policy the bureau is setting up fences with copper bands around the bottom. And, indeed, by everything goes as expected, being about 1985 we should be standing knee-deep in oysters, by then surviving st- s great size.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON MAKING OTHERS OVER

It takes all you have inherited, over his wife? I believe most of all you have learned, all you have learned from others, and all that has been drilled into your mind by study, observation and experience, for you to be a Human being. He has to be that. Wouldn't you think that it would be a simple presumption to try and make another human being over? Well, the attempt has been made time and again, but not a very good job has been done in most cases. You can help to make another person more thoughtful, more considerate, and kind, but the germs of these may already have been born to him or her.

Ever hear of a woman making us have been drilled into us by our folks, our schools, our churches, our environment, and by the whole world. Ever hear of a man making over his wife? I believe most of us have been drilled into us by our folks, our schools, our churches, our environment, and by the whole world.

Then there is a man who tries and tries more apt he will be when put to dire distress or any decisive action. He thinks he and his wife should work together, exchanging their thoughts, but never trying to force them upon each other. Selfishness destroys more marriages than anything else. Selflessness saves and blesses with happiness most of them. And how easy to apply such a suggestion, and to make it permanent!

We should be the ones to be made over, and we should be the one to do the job!

Beer Supplies Trickle Towards Vanishing Point

TORONTO (CP)—A province-wide strike of beer handlers remains tightly deadlocked as beer supplies trickled towards the vanishing point.

There were no prospects of renewed negotiations and a company spokesman said Monday it may take weeks to get the two sides moving towards a compromise. Walkouts began 13 days ago.

About 4,000 of the United Brewery Workers of America (CLC) are directly affected by the walkout which has closed all the major breweries because their output cannot be distributed. In addition an estimated 5,000 waiters face temporary unemployment.

In Toronto only nine of the larger hotels were still selling Canadian beer Monday. Two others have started handling British and Dutch beer.

Hotel beverage rooms have been closing down in growing numbers across the province. In Ottawa the drought has forced residents across the river to Hull, Que. for supplies, despite a police warning against illegal importprovincial transport of beer. Windsor and Niagara Falls drinkers have easy access to United States taverns and beer.

A few "wet" spots remain in Northern Ontario. A Sudbury brewery is producing draught beer for its normal outlets as far away as North Bay. One-man brewers' retail stores at Iroquois Falls and Kapuskasing, not affected by the walkout, are still selling supplies. These may not last more than a few days.

The only small break in the deadlock appeared Monday at London, Ont. where the John Labatt Limited said it has begun separate negotiations with its brewery workers on non-economic aspects of the dispute.

A Labatt spokesman said, however, that the company's stand on wages remains in line with the industry-wide offer rejected last week by the union.

The Breweries and Brewers' Warehouses Limited, the distributing agency, offered a 13-cent hourly package increase with continuation of the 40-hour week.

The union wants a 19-to-$14 increase, weekly salaries, reduction of the work week to 35 hours from 40 and several non-monetary improvements. Pre - strike talks broke down on the non-monetary issues before wages and hours were discussed.

Workers and surrounding communities wired Ontario Labor Minister Charles Daley asking for government intervention.

Mayor Michael Patrick of Windsor said he started action because unemployment in the area as a result of the beer strike "is getting serious."

Rapidly spreading interest in this highly effective school safety program has led to the new arrangement under which the League will be responsible for Elmer's development everywhere outside his home town, Toronto.

F. H. Ellis, general manager of the Ontario Safety League, accepts from B. T. Richardson, editor of the Telegram, one of the Elmer pennants already in use in thousands of schools in Canada and the United States.

Hog Marketing Procedure Faces Question Mark

Can a farmer sell hogs direct to packing plants, after the July 25 plebiscite in which the Ontario Hog Producers' Association co-operative marketing plan received more than the two-thirds vote necessary for approval?

That seems to be the $64 question.

The difficulty is that the question of the legality of the marketing plan is still before the Supreme Court.

Last week, in Kitchener, Peter McDonald, a Brighton district farmer, produced a signed statement declaring that Agricultural Minister Goodfellow had told him and other hog producers there would be no prosecutions until the Supreme Court had given a ruling. Mr. Goodfellow has denied making such a statement.

The Ontario Hog Producers' Association, however, apparently believes that the decision whether there should be prosecutions rests with it, rather than with Mr. Goodfellow.

This would mean that a decision as to whether sales direct to the packers are now illegal would be a question for the courts to decide.

Whether the courts will be called upon to give such a decision, or whether any further action will await a ruling by the Supreme Court, expected next month, is apparently anybody's guess.

However, Roy W. Sills of Holloway, president of the Hastings County Hog Producers' Association, did tell the Ontario Intelligencer today that hog producers were disappointed by what he termed the lack of any definite pronouncement by Agriculture Minister Goodfellow on this issue.

Reasons for Low Attendance At Rotary Meetings Debated

A discussion on reasons for low weekly attendance and ways and means to combat it, was held by Belleville Rotarians Monday during the regular weekly meeting at the Hotel Quinte.

The "bull session" sparked by Newt Thompson was held in place of an address on Indo China which was to have been given by Capt. Douglas J. Chant, of the Strathcona Horse, who recently returned from a posting with the Canadian Army Truce Commission in Indo China. Capt. Chant was unable to be present owing to the death of his father, Dr. J. Chant, on Saturday.

A minute of silence was observed in memory of the late Dr. Chant, who was an honorary member of Belleville Rotary Club for many years.

Some of the reasons advanced by club members for the local club's poor weekly attendance figure included the monotony of the program, the need for more fund-raising projects, lack of gimmicks to draw members, length of programs and the large number of local Rotarians receiving leaves of absence.

Counter arguments stressed the fact the main purpose of the club is not to entertain the members, and if the program is the only reason the members attend then it is not a Rotary Club. It was also noted programs provided by the Belleville club are comparable to those presented by other Rotary Clubs.

A variety of ideas to spark 100 per cent weekly attendance were advanced by the members. They included varying the programs with musicals enlisting local talent sponsoring more fund-raising projects, having more talks by local members, presenting an occasional question-and-answer period during which members could get expert advice from fellow members on a variety of subjects and getting more members participating in the program. Other ideas mentioned were providing gimmicks such as a "Pot of Gold" draw, or employing more discipline.

Those taking part in the discussion included: John Buchan, Bill Morrison, Art Francis, Enos Davidd, Emile Ducret, George Laming, Reub Freeman, Harold Parker, Steve Tripp, Joseph Demeza, president Jack Yanover, Newt Thompson, Walter Elliott, and Rev. Ralph Middleton.

Prior to the discussion, Dr. Harry Burns reported briefly on the 4-H chicken project. He stated 12 local boys exhibited two chickens each at the recent Belleville Fair. He said the boys have done well with the chickens they raised and both they and their families are proud of their efforts.

Stan Reston announced the annual Golf Day will be held September 10 in Aurora.

Past president Joseph Demeza was welcomed back to the local club by president Yanover. Mr. Demeza recently returned with his family from a seven-week combined business trip and vacation in England. While there, he attended the two-week International Congress on Education of the Deaf, held at the University of Manchester.

President Yanover announced an induction of new members will be held September 8. There will be no meeting of the club September 1, Labor Day.

Six coastal oil depot, were set afire by the terrorists and three small fires were started in the Paris area. Police broke up an attempt to touch off an ammunition factory near Paris.

One of the fires, at the big Mourepiane oil tank farm two miles north of Marseille, blazed all day, and the heat apparently caused a full tank to explode Monday night. Fire department officials said 17 firemen were injured, three severely. Early reports that 26 firemen were killed were incorrect.

A company of 150 soldiers was moved into a nearby refinery at Marseille. Troops also were posted at a refinery near Saint Nazaire, an oil tank farm near Antibes, the port in Lyon, a dam near Lyon, and possibly other points around France.

Maurice Papon, Paris police chief, said the rebels failed in their main goal in the capital, to capture armories. Three of the policemen were killed in a machine-gun attack on a police garage.

Fighting continued in Algeria, where 23 persons were reported killed Monday. A grenade thrown at a trolley bus in Algiers wounded 17 persons.

Reading Test Winners Enjoy Annual Party

The annual party given the successful contestants of the Summer Reading Contest, was held at the County Public Library on Saturday afternoon. Forty eager children awaited the arrival of Gordie Bell and Moe Hensol, representatives of Mars, when the doors were invited to meet.

The theme of the contest was "East to West with the Mars". The route taken across Canada by the Mars was followed and the readers recorded the books they read in little booklets shaped like white Stetson hats. Each child was required to read two books for every town or city where the hockey games were played from Moncton to Edmonton and were then requested to write a short story about their favorite contest book.

Anne Schryver won the first prize for the 5-4 group and while Victor Skurat and Mee Kimoto tied for the second prize, Judy Armstrong was the winner of the 5-6 grade group and Michael Armengaud for the 7-8 group.

Choosing the winners was a difficult task as both the quantity and quality of the books read had to be considered and the essays judged. Most of the lists were excellent and the children showed exceptional reading ability.

Wedding

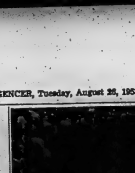
SMITH — GEORGE

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, recently, by Archdeacon J. B. Creegan when Christine, young-est daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. George, of R.R. 4 Bolsdale, became the bride of Elton Francis Smith, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith of Carrolton.

The bride looked lovely in her bridal gown of white nylon over satin, with scalloped neck-line of sequins and rhinestones. She wore a finger-tip veil of lace, white shoes and carried a white Bible with white roses.

She was attended by her sister Miss Margaret George, gowned in blue lace over satin, and wearing blue shoes and head piece, and a corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Hershaw Tutt, of Amelias-burg.



After the wedding, a small family reception was held at the home of the bridegroom, where a dainty buffet luncheon was served.

The bride's mother was dressed in light blue nylon with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses, and the bridegroom's mother in a two-piece ensemble of beige butcher linen with yellow trim, matching accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses.

After cutting the cake, and opening the lovely gifts, the bride graciously thanked everyone, and left on their honeymoon, to Quebec City.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Smith are residing at 18½ Moodie St., Belleville.

WATSON — STEWART

Tall standards of gladioli and chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely setting in Foxboro United Church, on Saturday, August 9, for a double-ring wedding when Carol Bernice Stewart, of Foxboro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stewart, became the bride of Milton Earl Watson, of Corbyville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Watson. The Rev. Cecil and Robert F. Darke, pastor of the church, officiated. The guest pews were designated by white satin bows centred with pink and blue bachelor buttons.

Mrs. R. Skinner presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Miss June Bowerman, of Redneersville, in her rendition of "The Lord's Prayer," and "O Perfect-Love."

For their marriage by her father, Mr. Harold Stewart, the bride was lovely in her floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin, fashioned with fitted bodice having a scooped neckline outlined with sequins and seed pearls. She wore a finger-tip veil and seed pearl headdress and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Ron Atkins, of Belleville, as matron of honor, Miss Douglas Stewart of Foxboro, cousin of the bride, as senior bridesmaid; Miss Elinor Watson, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Susan Hill, cousin of the bride, as junior bridesmaids, were gowned alike in pow-der blue lace over taffeta with matching picture hats and gloves. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Little Danny Stewart, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer, carrying a white satin pillow designed as two hearts bearing the rings.

Mr. Stanley Watson, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while the ushers were: Mr. Jack Stewart, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Walter Watson, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor where the bridal guests were received by bride's mother, who was gowned in navy crepe with all silk with white accessories, and corsage of white and blue-tipped carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted gowned in bule over all silk with white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

Anglican Bishops on Record As Approving Birth Control Only Under Certain Conditions

LONDON (CP)—Bishops of the worldwide Anglican communion went on record today as approving birth control as a "right and important factor in Christian life" providing the practice is not motivated by "selfishness and covetousness."

Their approval came in the official report of the Lambeth Conference of Anglican Churches held here July 7-Aug. 16.

The birth control question, which covered in the report included church unity, race problems, nuclear war and gambling.

More than 300 bishops representing 40,000,000 Anglicans attended the Lambeth Conference which is held once every 10 years. There were 31 Canadian bishops present, led by the primate of all Canada, Most Rev. Walter F. Barfoot.

FIRST TIME

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, who presided at the conference, said it was the first time the Anglican communion had considered "family planning in scientific means."

"We took what has been a battlefield and we put it on a sensible and God's level on which it can be reasonably discussed," he told a press conference Monday in releasing the report of the private sessions.

The report issued by the committee on family problems approved birth control subject to certain conditions.

The most important of these conditions, resting on a religious basis with emphasis on the Christian aspect of marriage, was that birth control would be "mutually acceptable to husband and wife in Christian conscience."

DECISION BY BOTH

Planned parenthood should be the result of a decision by both partners and should be the result of "positive choice before God."

The committee said such questions as how many children to have and when to have them are matters "on which no general counsel can be given."

The choice must be made by parents together in prayerful consideration of their responsibility to society in which they live and the problems they face.

In general, "the earlier in marriage children are born, the better—both for them and their parents."

"It is utterly wrong to urge that, unless children are specifically desired, sexual intercourse is in the nature of sin. It is also wrong to say that such intercourse ought not to be engaged in except with the willing intention to procreate children.

The willful withholding of one partner from intercourse with the other, sometimes mistaken for continence, cannot be endorsed, for such persistent refusal destroys one of the gifts of bodily love of husband and wife is a denial of one of the supreme conditions and purposes of marriage."

BAR TO HAPPINESS

On the subject of pre-marital intercourse, the report said it was "selfish and sinful in its reverence for the sanctity of both a man's and a woman's life; and it tends to make impossible the really happy fellowship that belongs to a marriage."

The report made no recommendations on divorce other than to recommend that the Anglican community consider a procedure for defining marital status. While the Archbishop of Canterbury indicated the bishops were unanimous in their views on birth control, they failed to agree on the moral problem of the H-bomb.

Lady Truscott Opposed to Career Women

VANCOUVER (CP) — Being a homemaker is not really hard work, says Lady Truscott, wife of the lord mayor of London, England.

On a tour of Canada with her husband, Sir Denis Truscott, she said in an interview that she does not approve of married women having careers unless it is necessary from a financial standpoint.

"Too many women just put their children and work for the excitement," she said. "Before I was married I did nothing. But then all the girls I knew did nothing, and we did it together."

DIFFERENT NOW

Three of her daughters now are earning a living, and the fourth daughter is still in school. "It is different now," she said. "All my daughters' friends are doing something, and they would be alone if they did nothing."

Lady Truscott said successful men do not owe their success to brilliant and encouraging wives.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP. . .

Your good table manners have a double value. They give you an excellent inner-warming. And they are a delight and comfort to those who see those fine table-manners of yours.

WRITE ONLY SURNAMES WITH TITLE ON INSIDE ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Thank you for answering in your column my question about how to address the outside envelopes of my wedding invitations. I promise you that I will follow your instructions to use my "very best" handwriting; to write very clearly; is write the name of the city and the name of the province on separate lines; and not to use any abbreviations, except "Mr." and "Mrs."

Now will you please answer a question I have about addressing the inside envelope? I've been told that on the inside envelope I am to write only the last names, with titles of course — but no first names. True?

— Grateful Reader

True. For example, Mr. and Mrs. Graham (not Mr. and Mrs. John Graham).

THIS WILL BE A LOVELY AND MEMORABLE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in the Rectory of our church, a very beautiful and picturesque Rectory. Only the members of our families, two close friends whom we all dearly love, and two couples who are our closest friends are to be present at the ceremony. But even though my wedding is to be small and informal, I would dearly love to wear a white wedding dress, very simple, and perhaps ankle-length, and a short, simple veil. Would this be entirely out-of-order? (This is my first marriage, and my bridegroom-to-be is a widower.)

Would it be at all proper to have a reception after the ceremony, between inviting quite a few more relatives and friends?

— I'm so happy to be able to make you happy by assuring you that it is entirely proper for you to be "dressed like a real bride" at your wedding in this beautiful Rectory . . . simple white wedding dress and bridal veil. I'm sure your wedding, even though small and informal, will be lovely and memorable.

And yes, it is entirely proper for you to have a reception after the ceremony, inviting as many relatives and friends as you wish.

Jaunty Jumper

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The jumper pops up again, returning in the latest line to insure smart acceptance. Soft brushed wool is used for this sleeveless jumper made with a drawstring waist to emphasize the Empire silhouette. In natural or almond green, it ties in with a plaid flannel blouse in blending tones, making an attractive, useful and cosy costume. Each item, of course, is ready to team up with other things.

Some French recipes in Canada date from 1666 when the Ursuline Sisters adapted Moslem dishes to Canadian ingredients.

Summer Companions For A Buffet Supper

by Mary Moore

Pickled Watermelon Rind and Jellied Eggs sound like strange companions but line them up on a summer buffet table and the crowd's will swarm around. Throw in a new jellied potato salad and your party-giving reputation will soar to the top of the list.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

TUESDAY

Italian Spaghetti and Meat Balls, Italian Bread Sticks, Pepper Rings and Green Onions; Ice Cream; Fresh Fruit Sauce, Coffee.

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND:

Cut white skinless rind of watermelon into 1¼ inch pieces — you need 6 lbs. Cover with water, boil 15 minutes and drain. Combine 2 cups sugar, 1 1-3 cups light brown sugar, 2 cups vinegar, 2 cups water, 1 tablespoon of cinnamon, 1 teaspoon each allspice and cloves, 2 lemons sliced. Heat to boiling, add drained watermelon rind, cover and boil over low heat until rind is clear — about 20 minutes. If desired spice oils may be used in place of ground spices, to taste — add sparingly and green vegetable coloring to color. Pour into about 6 pint jars which are sterilla and seal.

POTATO SALAD — JELLIED:

Five medium cooked potatoes, 6 tablespoons vinegar, 1 small onion, grated, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1½ teaspoons salt, dash of pepper, 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin, 1¼ cups hot water, ½ medium cucumber, sliced thinly, 3 to 4 radishes, sliced, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 stalks celery, sliced, ½ medium green pepper, sliced diagonally. Dice potatoes while still warm and add 3 tablespoons vinegar, onion, salad oil, salt and pepper. Mix gently and let stand about 30 minutes in this marinade. Dissolve gelatin in hot water, add remaining vinegar and pour 3-4 cup of mixture into mould. Decorate evenly with cucumber and radish slices. Chill until firm. Beat remaining gelatin, after it has thickened slightly, until it is opaque and fairly thick. Add mayonnaise, remaining vegetables and potatoes. Spoon potato-vegetable mixture evenly over decorated gelatin in mould and chill until firm. Unmould on lettuce-lined serving plate.

DEVILLED EGGS IN ASPIC:

Ten eggs, about 8 stuffed olives, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup each cold water and vinegar, 1½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 can condensed consomme. Chopped chives or parsley are optional. Cover eggs with cold water, bring to simmering point and cook covered 15 minutes. Drain and chill in cold water. Peel, cut in halves and lift out yolks. Mash them with a little salt, pepper, dry mustard, onion salt and mayonnaise and return to whites. Press a slice of stuffed olive on each. Make Aspic: Soak gelatin in cold water and vinegar. Dissolve by stirring over hot water. Add consomme, salt, Worcestershire sauce. Cool but do not allow to congeal. Pour about ¼ of this gelatin liquid into a glass loaf pan, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley or chives and arrange stuffed egg halves, top side down in one close layer in it. Chill until set and pour over enough of remaining egg halves and all remaining gelatin liquid and chill until firm. To unmould dip pan in hot water momentarily. Loosen

BOOSTER CLUB

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party" pretty well sums of the situation as the Booster club continues it's money-raising drive to help send the Macs to Prague.

It will be a busy winter for the club as well as for the Macs. The loyal boosters are trying to raise as much money as possible to help finance the trip. They made around $1,700 on the draw tickets and have other ideas in mind at the present time which ll is hoped will swell that amount.

On top of the fund-raising, the club will be busy with sendoffs for the Macs. And when they arrive back home it will be a day to remember.

The Booster Club is looking for more members for one thing. There is lots of work to do and more members will make the job that much easier.

Tonight's meeting at the City Hall Council chambers is an important one. First off will be an election of officers. Those who are elected must be willing to work as Dick Beare and members of his executive have done during their term. Every member is entitled in a vote and the only fair way to elect a strong executive is for everyone to get out and vote for his choice.

Everyone has been asking just how the fund-raising projects are coming and how much money has the club raised for the Prague trip. A full financial report will be given tonight which should answer all questions concerning money matters.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be McFarland manager Drury Denyes. It is expected he will report on the team's hunt for top notch hockey players and will likely answer questions fired at him by those present.

Other routine business will also be carried out. The meeting place is City Hall and the time is 7:30. Let's get everybody out for this important meeting.

CLASSY FRENCHMAN

Bernard "Frenchy" Vignal, latest wrestling sensation from Paris, France, will have his hands full here this Friday night when he meets none other than Gene Kiniski in the main bout.

Vignal, like others from his country before him, has had great success on the North American grappling circuits but Kiniski he will be facing a real test.

"Gentle Gene" is one of the meanest men in the game and does not know the meaning of rules, let alone abide by them. He will stop at nothing on his way to victory and very few men can take the punishment he hands out and stay around for very long. He has promised to hand Vignal "such a beating he will wish he never left Paris", but Frenchy laughs this off and claims all his "talking" will be done in the ring.

The semi-final bout will be a tag-team event. Returning after a lengthy tour of other circuits will be the Italian brothers from Hamilton, Joe and Guy Brunetti. They will face a pair of roughies from old school of grunt and groan, Lee "The Lees" Henning and Tiger Tasker. With Henning and Kiniski on the card, the fans can be sure of a colorful evening. They are a couple of the game's best showmen.

In the preliminary, Tarzan Tourville will flex his muscles against Lee Garfield, this bout opening the show at nine o'clock.

Baltimore Orioles Could Roost In Second Place

Birds Win Six of 9 Games In Week's Time; Milwaukee Braves Eight Games in Front

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milwaukee Braves can't beat Los Angeles Dodgers but it isn't crucial when they can run off seven in a row against San Francisco Giants, the club they have to whip.

Twice in the last four weeks the Dodgers have humbled the Braves. But Milwaukee has repiled by spanking the second-place Giants and romping out with an eight-game lead in the National League pennant chase.

Last week the Braves dropped four of five to the fourth-place Dodgers, then whipped the Giants in the opener of a "showdown" five-game series at San Francisco 8-5 in 10 innings Sunday. Monday night they did it again, stopping the Giants 6-1 behind Warren Spahn, who shrugged off a sore throat and won his 17th of the year.

CLING TO FOURTH

The Dodgers retained fourth, coming from behind for a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati and St. Louis dowsed Pittsburgh 7-1 in the only other National League game scheduled.

The Braves, who have won only seven of 20 from the Dodgers, have stand 11½ games in front as Spahn, backed up by a five-run second inning, tossed a five-hitter. He had a one-hit shutout until the fifth.

Spahn, 37, shooting for his ninth season of 30 or more victories, which would be a major league record for left-handers, walked five, but struck out seven and left 10 on base. Mike McCormick (9-7) was the loser.

THREE HITS FOR MOON

Wally Moon had three of the Cardinals' nine hits off loser Ron Kline (13-13) and R. G. Smith. Kline's two-run homer that capped a four-run third, Larry Jackson (15-10) was the winner.

Southpaw Johnny Podres gave up a two - run homer to Ted Whitesant in the first inning, then blanked the Reds on seven hits for a 12-10 record. Harvey Haddix (7-7) lost it as Carl Furillo drove in the first two Dodger runs with a pair of singles and scored the lead run on Don Zimmer's single in the third.

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP)—Roundency, owned by Mrs. B. S. Chris of Kitchener, scored her first win of the season Monday as the captured the feature race at Fort Erie.

Roundency, a four - year - old daughter of Boundary and Cadency, scampered home four lengths in front of Faultless Maid while Ric was third, beaten in a photo-finish for second money.

Pros Playing Like Weekend Duffers in CPGA

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP) — Unless the fellows start playing golf, people are'likely to ask if some of the $5,000 Canadian Professional Golfers Association tournament are in the right business. Some are hitting slightly better than the weekend duffer.

Only four of 33 starters bettered par 70 Monday in the opening round of the 54-hole championship. One other managed to get around the 6,777-yard Calgary Golf and Country club in 35-35—70 but generally the scores zoomed. The way up to 81.

They'll get two more chances to tick the layout today when the final 36 holes are played. Unless Al Balding's game falls apart—which likely—the 36-year-old Toronto pro will pick up the $1,000 first prize.

Balding fired a 67 Monday despite a shaky putter that kept him scrambling on the greens. Tied with him was Toronto veteran Murray Tucker.

They were one stroke up on 25 - year - old Jim Doyle from Sandy Hook, Man., two shots ahead of Bod Loftus, the Calgary club's assistant pro who knows the course like the palm of his hand, and three in front of Pete Olynyk of Edmonton, the par-70 man.

But Balding, a tournament tough player who has made a good living among the big-time Americans the last three or four years, must be given the nod to take his third CPGA in four years. He won it in 1955 and 1956 and relinquished it in 1957 to Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who didn't make fast friends among the pro-fessionals by skipping this tournament.

Leonard, who set a modern record by finishing in the money in 23 consecutive events in the United States and Canada this year, was counted on as a big drawing card. As it was, about 100 persons turned out, which won't make this 46th annual tournament a financial success.

Veeck Trying To Get Franchise Of Cleveland

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Veeck, eager to get back into baseball, is hot after the franchise he once operated at Cleveland in order to keep the Indians from making any moves.

However, he said at a presse conference Monday, he isn't against moving franchises and believes the major league should expand to 10 teams with Toronto, Montreal, Houston and Minneapolis being possible additions.

"If a team must move, it should move," said Veeck. "But if I took over at Cleveland I'd do everything within my power to keep the team there. Those people were too good to me to be deserted."

Veeck and his associates made a bid for the Indians last spring but were turned down. Cleveland drew only 722,256 fans last year and will do worse this season. There have been rumors that the franchise might be shifted.

Wayne Thompson and Barry Ashbee led Brampton with three goals apiece. Mike Whelan, Gordon Thompson and Bruce Warless had singles.

Calgary Stamps Beat Lions To Score 3rd Straight Win; Eskies Lose to Bombers 15-8

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Calgary Stampeders should be growing accustomed to their surroundings in the Western Interprovincial Football Union standings. But Edmonton Eskimos won't find their setting familiar.

Stampeders trampled British Columbia Lions 34-13 in Vancouver Monday night and whipped Blue Bombers trimmed the Eskimos 15-8 in Edmonton.

Stampeders lead the league with three straight victories. Eskimos, who played Monday night without Jackie Parker, have lost three times in four starts and are in fourth place, a spot they have seldom known since 1946.

NOBBY CLICKS AT THREE

Calgary quarterback Nobby Wirkowski passed for three touchdowns and Maury Duncan fired for another through the air as the Eastern Warlick scored twice and halfbacks Jim Morse and Chuck Hollerud and fullback Jim Bakhtiar once each. Tackle Doug Brown scored four conversions.

Lions, who could gain only 52 yards during the ground attack, the mighty Calgary line, got touchdowns from Monty Stickles, Ian Sunderbergen and Jay Bailey. Stickles in the game and as a result of passing.

Bakhtiar, the Iranian prince from the University of Virginia and Holloway, a UCLA graduate, enjoyed a big night rushing as Stampeders piled up 167 yards. In one series of plays Bakhtiar carried the ball four times to move the ball 50 yards for a touchdown.

In Edmonton, where intermittent rain soaked the fans, the deciding factor was Bombers' aerial passing of quarterback Kenny Ploen, the lowa flash, who brought Bombers the WIFU championship last year, spelled doom for Eskimos.

The Bomber line rushed quarterback Don Getty and bottled up tailback Jimmy Bright and Normie Kwong.

Fullback Charlie Shepard scored a touchdown and kicked two singles to lead the Winnipeg scoring. Halfback John Varone accompanied for a touchdown on a 35-yard passing play with Ploen and fullback Leo Lewis. Gerry Jeeves kicked one convert and had the other attempt blocked.

Kwong went over from the one-yard line for Edmonton touchdown and Joe Mobra kicked a convert and a single.

Giants, Pirates Show Increase In Attendance

NEW YORK (AP)—The apathy of American baseball fans and the enthusiasm of the followers of the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants are reflected in a survey of major league attendance figures.

The survey by The Associated Press also disclosed a marked increase in the drawing power at home by the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs.

The figures show a decrease for every American League club except the Washington Senators. The last-place team, which is reported eyeing Minneapolis as the new home for 1959, is only 10,000 ahead of last year's total. Washington has a home attendance of 389,000—lowest in the majors.

SOX IN THE HOLE

Elsewhere, the deficits in the junior circuit range from 2,000 for Detroit, Kansas City to 224,000 for the Chicago White Sox.

The New York Yankees, on whom many observers put the finger for the drop in attendance, have fallen less at Yankee Stadium than a year ago. The Yankees have 78,000.

With Baltimore 190,000 Boston 450,000 and Cleveland 500,000 behind their 1957 aggregates, the total American League drop figures to better 650,000.

In the National League the increase is almost 1,200,000.

BIG INCREASE

The Giants, who went over the 1,000,000 mark Sunday and the Dodgers (1,799,000) have a combined increase of almost 85 per cent over their attendance in New York last season.

Pittsburgh—headed for its first finish in the first division in 19 years—has boosted its attendance 300,000. The Cubs are up 257,000.

Cincinnati trails its 1957 figure by 271,000. Philadelphia and Milwaukee have fallen off 124,000.

Milwaukee which has paced the senior loop in attendance each year since entering the league in 1953, probably will finish under the 2,000,000 mark for the first time. The Braves, with a comfortable lead, drew 155,000 under their pace of a year ago when they set the National League record of 2,215,404.

Softball Results

Ontario Hydro blanked Stephens Adamson 10-0 last night in a City Commercial league softball fixture.

Big "Bruno" McCurdy tossed a neat two-hitter to spark Hydro's win. He blazed third strikes by eleven batters while fanning only one free pass.

"Spider" Allan tolled for the losers, tagged for 15 safeties. He whiffed two and walked another pair.

Hydro supported McCurdy with errorless ball while Stephens Adamson miscued twice.

Comeback-of-year Honors Likely to go to Pete Runnels

NEW YORK (AP)—When the votes for the comeback-of-the-year honors in the American League are counted after the close of the season, it's a good bet that Pete Runnels of Boston Red Sox will be among the leaders.

Runnels finished with a .320 batting average last year. He leads the circuit with a .327 mark after Sunday's games. And only five weeks of the regular campaign remain. The 30-year-old second baseman has hit safely in 25 of the 115 games he's played.

LOWEST YET

The final winning percentage is likely to be the lowest in history. Since 1901 only six American League batting champions have finished under .330.

Runnels' margin is not secure. Bob Cerv of Kansas City is a close second at .323 followed by Harvey Kuenn of Detroit, .321 and Vice Power of Cleveland and Billy Goodman of Chicago .318 each.

Boston's Ted Williams, seeking his sixth championship, is 12 points behind Runnels.

In the National League, the battle has narrowed down to a duel between Sam Musial of St. Louis and Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia.

Musial, a seven - time title holder, batted .330 in last week's games. He collected 12 hits in 24 times at bat and increased his average 10 points to .351. Ashburn lost one point to .342 with 10 safeties in 30 tries.

HITTING STREAK

Each contender is on a hitting streak. Ashburn has hit safely in his last 12 games and Musial in nine straight.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee replaced San Francisco's Willie Mays in the No. 3 position. Aaron moved up three points to .325

Switsons Only Game Away From Title

WELLAND (CP) — Welland-Crowland Switsons chalked up a 10-3 win Monday night and moved to a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Lacrosse Association senior semi-final with Long Branch Monarchs.

The win was the third in a row for Switsons, who lost the first two games in the series. They took a 2-1 lead in the first period and stretched it with three unanswered goals in the second.

Don Baker led Welland with three goals. Ron Roy, Brian Woods and Jim McGhee had two apiece and Skip Teal scored a single.

Monarchs' scorers were Larry Ruse, Stan Kapasky and Art Brasier.

The teams meet in Long Branch Wednesday night for the next, and possibly last, game of the series.

With nine hits in 23 at bats while Mays fell three points to .327.

Ernie Banks of Chicago Cubs hit three homers Sunday increasing his lead over Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh. Banks has 41 and Thomas 33. In the American League, Mickey Mantle of New York is still seven homers ahead of Jackie Jensen of Boston. Each contender had one home run in last week's play. Ashburn has hit safely in 36, Sievers' at 34 and Jensen's at 33.

Rocky Colavito of Cleveland slammed three to take over sixth place in the race. Rocky has 30 homers and Cerv 28.

Two Top Teams, Royals, Leafs, Had No Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The also-runs of the International League frustrated each other's efforts to gain on the leaders Monday night.

Montreal Buffalo split a doubleheader, with Rochester winning a 7-2 nightcap after Buffalo took the opener 4-1. Havana edged Miami 1-0 in the first game of a twi-night affair, after which the Marlins regained their composure for a 3-2 victory.

Richmond won a 3-0 victory from Columbus in a single game while the two top teams, Montreal and Toronto, were idle.

RIGHLS FOUR-HITTER

Freddie Hahn pitched a four hitter in the first game to end a three-game Bison losing streak, but Buffalo had to go an extra inning to win the second game, a seven-inning first game. The Red Wings bounced back to win the nightcap 3-2, with winner Bob Kuzava holding Buffalo scoreless until the eighth.

Havana also had to go to the eighth inning to win the opener against Miami. Recently promoted Mickey McDermott gave up only three singles and struck out pitching duel with Miguel Cuellar.

In the second game, Henry Cuellar went all the way and the winning runs on base and set down two men in a row to retire Merlin Mickery. The ninth inning save gave veteran Werrers Hacker his fourth win.

Richmond got three runs in the eleventh to end a string of 30 consecutive scoreless innings for Jet pitcher Lynn Lovegrush. Two Richmond tallies were unearned. The win was the 13th for rookie Jim Bronstad of the Vees.

Read Defeats Latta 6-1 for Two-Game Lead

Read climbed into the driver's seat in the South Hastings baseball league finals last night by handing Latta a 6-1 setback right on the losers' home diamond.

This gives Read a three game to one lead in the four-of-seven series. The fifth game is slated for Read on Wednesday night and if a sixth contest is necessary it will be played Friday night at Latta.

All the scoring was jammed into the early innings of last night's game which was balled by darkness after six frames. Read scored twice in the initial frame and made it 6-0 in the top of the second. Latta plated their lone marker in the bottom of the second inning.

Baz Hanley scattered eight hits on the Read hilltop to record the victory. He threw third strikes by five, walking two and hitting three batters.

Garfield Hall started and was the loser for Latta. He was relieved by Merle Ira in the second inning. They allowed eleven hits, whiffed five and walked one batter.

Jerry Brennan spearheaded Read's attack with three singles while Walsh and McMechan had two each. Milligan helped with a two-bagger as Shannon, Callery and Roach contributed singles.

Gary Gow had three singles for Latta with Cam Buskard getting a pair. Wayne Gow, Sullivan and Glass each had one.

This Parakeet Knew a Killer On Seeing One

WINSTON - SALEM, N. C. (AP) — "Help! Murder! Police!" chirped the parakeet.

The R. L. Perkins family, roused at 2 a. m., heard strange noises just outside a bedroom window.

They called police, who closed in to search for a prowler. They found one — a big, hungry cat perched on a stack of lumber licking his chops at the parakeet through the window.

Unified Medical Service For Armed Forces on Jan. 1

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The fourth move toward what may be complete unification of Canada's armed forces into a single fighting service was announced in the Commons Monday.

Defence Minister Pearkes said the medical services of the army, navy and RCAF will be completely joined into one unified medical service Jan. 1, 1959.

"I am satisfied that this move will result in more efficient and economical provision of medical services for the armed forces," the minister said.

"As a result of unification, the professional development and career prospects of medical officers will be greatly improved."

The unification move is the second step in a three-part proposal corps took over operation of all dental services for the armed forces.

The army dental corps was formed on a tri-service basis in 1939. The service colleges—Royal Roads, navy, in the west; Victoria; Royal Military College, army, Kingston, and College Militaire Royal, RCAF, St. Johns, Que., were put on a tri-service basis after the Second World War.

Officials have said the tri-service colleges may show the way to complete armed forces unification.

They would tend to break down service rivalries and give officers of one service a better appreciation of problems in the other two.

Authorities have said that complete unification may be 10 to 12 years away, depending on how soon service jealousies can be at least partly eliminated and officers ingrained to think more of the needs of their particular service than the welfare of the whole.

Some armed forces officers contend, however, that unification should be imposed now from the top. They say integration will never be achieved by periodically unifying various branches of the forces.

Mr. Pearkes himself has said that integration is a goal of his department but that it is unlikely to occur in his lifetime. He is 70. Unification of the chaplain services is also under consideration.

Informants said a new uniform for the single medical service is a possibility.

Mr. Pearkes said the new service will be placed under direction of a surgeon-general and did not say whether he will be a navy, army or air force officer—or civilian.

The director would be assisted by a single medical headquarters in Ottawa. There will be subordinate regional medical headquarters in Canada and abroad.

Some 3,700 medical personnel, including more than 400 nursing sisters, will be affected by unification of the medical services. They now wear the uniforms of their separate services but a common insignia—a serpent entwined around a rod, a symbol of the medical profession.

MAJOR CHANGES

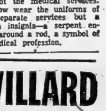
fical but close scrutiny showed it may change substantially the very basis of our broadcasting system."

It would go a long way toward creating a two national broadcasting systems, operating along parallel lines; it might weaken the one "undesirable" aspect we have—and it created a "cumbersome" administrative setup.

The new board might have to police contracts to fit the financial situation of the weakest private station. Increasingly, the board might become concerned with private stations rather than with control and regulation of a national system.

The CCF voted with the government because it did not want to perpetuate the uncertainty surrounding the broadcasting issue. But Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) weighing in with some fairly critical criticism. He said there "whole atmosphere is filled with misgivings" because of ambiguities surrounding the legislation.

The Liberals had doubts about the "cultural and non-material" aspects of broadcasting under the measure. Mr. Fisher said, some that attitude was "doubled in spades" by the CBC.



MAKING MONEY

Private stations had made a "terrific s m o s h" of broadcasting. Their net income in relation to expenditure was probably as high as that of any other commercial operation. Their brand of free enterprise, in several recent commissions had attested, was "neither free nor very enterprising."

Other criticisms during daylong debate included contentions that the financial setup under the new legislation would be hazy and confused and the CBC's position would lose the special position it has enjoyed so long; and that the way would be opened to political interference.

Mr. Nowlan discounted these fears. All the "forebodings" had been pretty well dissipated.

"I am confident," he said, "that when this act is passed, the CBC will find itself in a stronger position than ever before."

Flin Flon Named After Story-Book Character Now Seeking Status as a City

FLIN FLON, Man (CP) — This northern Manitoba community, first a wilderness mining camp in 1927 named after a story-book character, today is seeking city status.

Mayor Frank Dembisky says Flin Flon will likely attain city stature in the fall. A committee now is working on a charter.

The change won't affect government grants, municipal aid or taxes. But it will signify Flin Flon, Manitoba's third largest centre outside Greater Winnipeg, has grown up. It has a population of 11,500.

BORDER TOWN

Situated on the Manitoba - Saskatchewan border, it is 395 air miles northwest of Winnipeg, 400 northeast of Regina and 400 southwest of Churchill, Manitoba's only port on the southwestern shore of Hudson Bay.

A multi-million dollar mining development of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company is the main industry, employing 3,500 workers of the town's 5,000-man labor force. The company makes an annual grant equal to more than 50 per cent of Flin Flon's estimated expenditures, in lieu of taxes.

The firm also helps employees build homes and recreational facilities. A subsidiary supplies the town with electrical power from a hydro plant on the Churchill river, 58 miles northwest of here.

Flin Flon obtained a 96-mile railway connection with The Pas, Man., in 1928. Highway connection was made in 1950.

Actual mining began in 1930 from a huge open pit. Since then two underground shafts have been sunk. Production totals about 5,000 tons daily. More than two 000 tons of ore, valued at more than $500,000,000, has been mined here since 1930.

CHIEF MINERALS

The main minerals are copper, zinc, and silver with varying amounts of gold, cadmium, selenium and tellurium.

A $2,500,000 fresh fish industry is also centred here. Tractor-hauled sled trains, supplying isolated northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan mining centres, swing out from here during winter months.

Flin Flon was named by prospector Tom Creighton, who with five partners staked a mineral claim here in January, 1915. The name was derived from the hero of J. Preston Mulrhak's The Sensless City, James Flinabatty-Flaksim. A copy of the book was found by one of the group.

Ten years later a New York mining syndicate took an option on the claim and in 1928 exercised the option. A lake was drained and more than 1,000,000 tons of clay removed from its bottom before the first began.

The town is built on a rock outcrop in the centre of a vast area of forests, lakes, rivers and muskegs.

BORDER COMPLICATIONS

Nearness of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border has produced many complications.

The boundary has to be marked above and below the surface where mining is done. Ore taken from each province has to be carefully recorded for royalty payments. Most ore is mined in Saskatchewan.

Most miners live in Manitoba. Others live at Creighton, Sask., a town of 1,500 adjacent to Flin Flon, but go to work in Manitoba.

Still another portion of Saskatchewan is part of Flin Flon.

The Saskatchewan government agreed to make the area part of Flin Flon after a vote of its residents and a $1 bill of debentures the first school here was built with public subscriptions and receipts from beer sodales.

SEWERS ABOVE GROUND

The rocky foundation of Flin Flon has resulted in sewer and water pipes serving one-fifth of the town being laid above the ground. They are packed in wooden frames and sawdust to prevent freezing in temperatures that may fall as low as 40 below zero.

Residents work and play hard.

Flin Flon Bombers, who are associated with the Manitoba Amateur Hockey League but play in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, won the Memorial Cup in 1957. They were the first western champions in 10 years.

There are more sheets of curling ice for each 1,000 population than any other Canadian centre of at least 8a size and the town boasts a nine-hole golf course.

In a sense the town's streets are lined with gold and silver. Slag from the refinery, still containing some gold and silver, is used to fill muskegs and forms a base for town streets.

The rocky hills result in a variation of as much as 30 feet in the level of some front and back yards. Sidewalks are stairs on some streets. Most basements are built above the ground because of the rock.

Gardens have little chance in the rocky soil and sulphur fumes from the refinery and most food is imported. Milk is hauled daily from Swan River, Man., 250 miles away.

THRIVING COMMUNITY

The town has two daily newspapers, a radio station, 79 retail stores, a hospital with 109 beds, a hockey arena, three curling rinks and modern schools for its 1,400 students.

It is one of the few centres where the Manitoba liquor commission store has competition. The Saskatchewan liquor board operates a store in Creighton. The area is policed by RCMP.

An airport with a runway 3,800 feet long and 250 feet wide now handles daily flights to and from Winnipeg and non-scheduled flights by small bush planes. A 5,000-foot runway costing about $2,000,000 is planned in the next three years.

With the completion of an all-weather highway connection in 1950 the tourist industry began to flourish. Hundreds of sportsmen travel north seeking big lake trout, deer, moose and waterfowl.

Since 1951 the town has sponsored a trout festival and offers about $5,000 annually in prizes for the largest fish caught.

Unemployment isn't a serious problem and Flin Flon's annual payroll totals about $14,000,000. About 65 per cent of the labor force earns between $3,000 and $4,000 annually.

Canadian Injured As Hammarskjold Reaches Lebanon

UN Chief Starts Talks On Troop Withdrawals

BEIRUT (CP) — A Canadian soldier was wounded during a clash Tuesday between rebel and Lebanese army forces. He regained consciousness today but was still on the danger list.

Sgt. Ralph Hall of the Canadian Postal Corps, attached to a United Nations observer group mail unit, was wounded in the head and body while driving through a suburb of Beirut.

"He think he will pull through," a hospital doctor said today.

Hall, 36, went to the Middle East last fall in a rotation of Canadian troops. His wife Vera and a child live at Virden, Man.

The shooting occurred just before dusk at a traffic circle where Lebanese security forces and tanks were entrenched. The area's circle has been the target of occasional sniper fire.

SUDDEN FLURRY

A sudden fusillade, apparently from automatic weapons, punctured a tire and stopped through the jeep fender and canvas roof. Then a shot — which came through the roof struck Hall in the forehead above the right eye, eight inches below the left ear.

The unidentified Canadian driver, who was not injured, put full speed despite the flat tire to an American army unit half a mile away.

Pte. Harold A. Bauer of Anoka, Minn., said he was unarmed and was conscious and able to walk from the jeep to a stretcher.

Other Canadians ran into the road and flagged down a UN army ambulance which took Hall to hospital where he was operated on immediately.

The gunfight occurred shortly before Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold of the UN arrived here from New York on his Middle East peace mission.

All was quiet on the secretary-general drove into town under escort of Lebanese armoured cars and security police.

The UN chief took off for Jordan today on a mission aimed at the withdrawal of U.S. and British troops from Lebanon and Jordan.

The clash in which the Canadian was wounded apparently flared between Lebanese security forces and troops of a Faisal-line refugee camp located within rebel lines. Hospital sources said two Lebanese were killed and six injured.

CAUGHT IN CROSSFIRE

A UN officer gave this account of the shooting of the Canadian:

"Firing broke out during a Lebanese security units and a

HUNTING BURNED OUT

VICTORIA (CP)—Unless there is a major improvement in the forest fire situation, British Columbia will not have a hunting season this year. The decision was made Tuesday by the game department and forest service officials. "It would be utter folly to open the woods at this time," said Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston. "Hunting season for blue grouse was to open Saturday and the deer season by Sept. 15.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — An extensive high - pressure area is nearly slowly westward across the lower Great Lakes, bringing fair weather and light winds to the surrounding area. A disturbance moving eastward across North Dakota is preceded by an area of scattered showers which extends as far as Lake Superior and is slowly reaching to Kapuskasing. Temperatures are rising slowly throughout Ontario.

DE GAULLE GETS CHILL RECEPTION BY SENEGALESE

'Very Disappointed' By Dakar Response

DAKAR, Senegal (Reuters)—A group of 800 Africans shouted down Premier de Gaulle as he tried to address nearly 100,000 persons cramming a square in the heart of the city Tuesday night.

De Gaulle received a chilly reception earlier in the day when he arrived at this capital of the Federation of French West Africa.

He was showered with leaflets calling for independence and he heard frequent yells decrying his proposed new constitution.

SEEKS AFRICAN SUPPORT

The 67-year-old de Gaulle has been touring France's African possessions since his visit Wednesday to try to win support for his proposed constitution. He is trying to convince African political leaders that their best bet for prosperity lies within the French community.

The African territories join metropolitan France in voting Sept. 28 on the constitution. It would set up a community of federal states but with France still holding important powers, including defence and foreign relations.

The Senegal branch of the General Union of African Workers announced it opposes the constitution because it "leads to neo-colonial aspirations and endangers democratic liberties.

De Gaulle arrived in Algeria where white settlers are determined to block any move for Algerian nationalists' independence movement. He returns to Paris on Friday.

Sources close to de Gaulle said he was "very disappointed".

French Take Security Steps In Algerian Sabotage

PARIS (Reuters)—Secret government measures to counter an upsurge of sabotage and killings in Tunisia and France went into operation throughout the country today.

Troops and police guarded key centres of transportation, communication and industry. All leave was cancelled for members of the Surete Nationale, the criminal investigation department.

Four policemen on patrol here were wounded by gunfire last night by gunmen while oil depots sabotaged by Algerians still smouldered in the suburb of Genevilliers.

Three policemen riding in a jeep in southern Paris stopped to ask two North Africans for identity papers. They were cut down by machine gunfire.

Another police officer was shot three times by two men outside an Algerian on one of the main boulevards of central Paris.

Police said the terrorism was organized by special shock groups in the Algerian Liberation Movement (FLN).

Their task was "to carry the war to France," police said. Moslem nationalists have been fighting for independence against French troops in Algeria since 1954.

The attacks in France started Monday when four policemen were shot dead. Oil depots and refineries were set on fire in southern France in co-ordinated blows. Police estimate that a total of 4,000,000 gallons of gasoline went up in smoke at Marseille Narbonne and Toulouse.

Police said some of about 100 Algerians arrested Tuesday told them that "we were given our orders by chiefs we do not know. They arrested us and ordered us to act. We had the choice—obey or die."

NEW BROADCAST BODY APPROVED BY BIG MAJORITY

Bitterly Opposed By Liberal Members

OTTAWA (CP)—Establishment of a new body to make and enforce rules for all broadcasting in Canada now is virtually a cheerful.

Creation of the new board of broadcast governors, separate from the CBC, received final Commons approval Tuesday by a vote of 124 to 31, only the Liberals voting in it.

The government measure, supported by the CCF, now goes to the Senate, where it is considered unlikely that the majority Liberal opposition will block it.

AFTER TWO-DAY FIGHT

Final Commons approval came after two days of Liberal opposition, mainly on the ground that the CBC's independence as regulator will leave the CBC open to political interference.

Opposition Leader Pearson and J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) argued most of the day against the bill, with an occasional assist from the CCF on amendments.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) also generally supported the broadcasting bill because the CCF is hopeful, after initial misgivings, that it will be workable. "all has turned out for the best."

Revenue Min. Nowlan (Moncton), sponsor of the bill, rejected all but two Liberal attempts to amendments to the bill, including a clause-by-clause study Tuesday.

FOLLOWS FOWLER REPORT

He said the new board, if not in all details, the bill followed the recommendations of the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting.

He reiterated his view that good broadcasting could not be legislated, but that it would depend on the quality of men appointed to the new board of broadcasting governors, to be made up of three full-time members and 12 part-time members.

Warships Clash While Red Shells Pound Quemoy

Islets Just off Amoy Target of Pasting

TAIPEI (AP) — Chinese Communist artillery pounded Quemoy and its satellite islands today while Nationalist and Red warships exchanged fire nearby in Amoy Bay.

The defence ministry said two Nationalist warships sighted the Red craft off Nationalist - held Tungting Island, 17 miles south of Quemoy, and damaged one in the ensuing exchange. This is the first time the Nationalists and the Reds tried to invade earlier this week.

Red artillery hit Quemoy again tonight after dealing the Tan Islets between Quemoy and Amoy their heaviest pounding in the long vest-pocket war.

The defence ministry said the Red shelling started at 8:17 p.m. and was answered by Nationalist guns on Quemoy. One Red artillery position was reported destroyed.

The Communist shelling followed other gun duels in which the Reds rained more than 8,500 rounds on the Quemoy area.

RED'S ASSEMBLE

Admiral Liu Hoh-tu, spokesman for the defence ministry, said the Red warships had been sent to meet southward along the Red China coast by fleet of about 5,000 small craft. He said they included motorized junks from the Red naval base at Foochow, 100 miles north of Formosa.

Such ships, he said, could be used for amphibious purposes but he would not say they were considering an invasion of Quemoy or Formosa.

A spokesman for the U.S. Formosa Defence Command said there is absolutely nothing to indicate an air or naval invasion is heading for Formosa.

The islets of Tatan and Erhtan got the worst pasting — 4,000 rounds in half an hour. The Nationalists reported no casualties or damage. Casualties of Tatan is only three acres in size and Erhtan only 40 acres.

OBSERVATION POSTS

The islets are only miles from Amoy and are key posts for observation of shipping to and from the Red ports.

The Nationalists reported successes in their air battle over Fire Tower Bay, saying their guns knocked out artillery emplacements on Wuyu, a small island in Amoy Bay, and on Tung Tateng Island, and blew up ammunition and gasoline dumps on Wuyu and Weitou, on the mainland.

By Saturday, they said, the Communists by noon today had fired a total of nearly 30,000 rounds since they stepped up the Formosa Strait war last Saturday, by the U.S. MIG's.

Peiping radio continued to accuse the United States of threatening China's security.

A broadcast said U.S. air and sea patrols have been flying within miles of the Chinese coast and speculated that American warships were now lying off the coast of Japan, the Philippines and Hainan Island, "ready to attack and force the 7th Fleet."

Peiping also took umbrage at plans announced Monday for joint U.S.-Nationalist naval manoeuvres.

A surprise arrival in Formosa of Admiral Arleigh Burke, chief of navy operations, U.S. 7th Fleet commander, who brought his flagship, the Helena, into the southern port of Kaohsiung.

Former Convict Predicts Riot At Collins Bay

KINGSTON (CP) — The Whig-Standard says a former convict at Collins Bay Penitentiary, released a few days after the Aug. 27 riot, predicted a bigger riot within three months if conditions at the prison do not improve.

The unidentified ex-convict told the newspaper the Aug. 17 outbreak had been "brewing for a long time" and that the convict's knuckle so tight I didn't think it would break."

He attributed the riot to grievances over poor food, restrictions and poor privileges, the attitude of some guards and a general feeling of lough policy within the prison.

Later, Warden Victor Richmond said he knew the identity of the former convict and considered him totally unreliable. He was also declined further comment.

Twelve violence - escapes with 650 prisoners were filing into the prison after a baseball game was rained out. Almost all were discharged and set it afire. Three guards were taken hostage on the grounds and five others damaged before a guard shot a rioter in the leg, halting the gang's rampage.

By Early Sixties Russian Subs Could Level All Cities in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of experts said today that by the early 1960s missile-firing Russian submarines will be capable of devastating North American cities.

A massive attack with such weapons could level our entire industrial structure, the underseas warfare panel. The group was formed to advise the military departments on the U.S. congressional atomic energy committee.

"In a future war," the report said, "the ocean could be our enemy as well as our friend."

Therefore, said the panel, it is making these recommendations:

1. The U.S. Navy should proceed with all speed with construction of Polaris submarines capable of firing the 1,500-mile Polaris ballistic missile. Present plans call for the first of these submarines to be available in 1960.

2. The Polaris submarine program should be kept separate from the U.S. Navy's regular shipbuilding budget. Polaris requests should be determined by the defence department on the basis of national security council as part of the over-all strategic deterrent budget.

3. There should be a significant increase in the scale and scale of building attack submarines — the ones that track down enemy subs. The report described as too small a goal of some 75 attack submarines by 1970.

4. The navy research and development program in underseas warfare should be doubled, with substantial increases year by year. The navy should be a substantial increase in the budget for this purpose.

Sections of the report, which was censored by the defence department, said: "It is doubtful the U.S. Navy's present undersea warfare program is of big enough scope to provide an effective defence against enemy submarines. The Russians, it is known, have Polaris type, which might carry 16 or more missiles with hydrogen warheads, could decimate several of our cities." The report said "An offensive attack with such weapons could level our entire urban society.

"If all-out warfare broke out within the next two years, the 50-ship Polaris and attack submarine fleet could inflict very severe damage on the enemy naval forces and shipping. . . ."

Bright Man Says Hog Votes 'Not Worth Paper Written On'

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Peter McDonald of nearby Bright, leader of a group opposed to Ontario's hog stabilization program, said today he has been told the ballots in last month's vote on the plan were "not worth the paper they were written on once they got to Toronto."

In an interview he protested Agriculture Minister Goodfellow's pronouncement that the opponents of the program will not be able to examine the ballots unless they get a court injunction.

Mr. McDonald said his group will meet Wednesday night to map money for court action and added:

"There must be something else matter when they won't let us see them."

He said Agriculture Minister Goodfellow must have thought he had the right to check the ballots or he would not have agreed to an earlier examination.

"I think it is undemocratic of him. He promised we could see them. He should make up his mind."

Tuesday the agriculture minister said there was no thought of the ballots which give approval to the marketing program with a 68.2-per-cent majority.

"My first reaction was that we would go to Toronto (Wednesday) to see some of the boxes, but we have decided against it," he said. "The assistant returning officer in Toronto Di Pasquali, 31, who died last week when a bomb exploded in his car at Amherstburg.

Bails Out Car But Not Wife

Hall bailed out the car but left her in the cell," Crown counsel said.

Mrs. Joan McKay, 24, was fined $50 and had her driving licence suspended for three months after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of impaired driving.

Police testified they found her behind the wheel of a car which had been driven into a ditch and overturned on a side town. An officer said he asked her to go home but she insisted on being arrested.

Two of British Triplets Are Siamese Twins

LONDON (CP) — A woman has given birth to triplets, two of whom are separated Siamese twins joined at the head. The third child was apparently normal and in good health.

Doctors now are considering whether the Siamese twins might be separated.

The babies were delivered by Caesarean section. Date of the births has been reported variously as last May and several days later.

The births were announced Tuesday, but at the parents' request no details were given. They said the babies and their present whereabouts is secret.

The twins were removed from Queen Charlotte Maternity and Jessie Hammersmith after about six weeks for specialized treatment at another hospital. The third baby was taken home.

TWO ARE BOYS

The twins are reported to be boys weighing about 4½ pounds at birth.

A doctor from Queen Charlotte's Hospital said as far as he knows there has been only one case of this.

"If an operation to separate them was decided upon, it would probably be best when they are five or six," he said. "It depends, of course, on the medical conditions."

In recent years, several separations have been performed following the use of radioactive materials to trace the blood supply. Sometimes the operation involves the death of one twin so that the other may survive.

Montreal Woman Killed in Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. A. Lithwick was killed early today and three others injured in a fire that swept a row of three-storey apartment buildings on Coursol Street in the west-end.

Firemen said damage was confined mainly to the top floor of the seven buildings. No damage estimate was available and cause of the outbreak was not known.

CBS Says Probe Into Quiz Shows Fails to Reveal Evidence of 'Fix'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System says an intensive week of inquiry into all quiz shows sponsored by the network has not turned up any improper procedure.

The inquiry was begun, CBS said, because of newspaper accounts that a former CBS district attorney's office had evidence of irregularities in the conduct of quiz programs.

CBS' statement was in a telegram to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan.

Dotto, a TV quiz, was withdrawn suddenly from the CBS and NBC television networks 11 days ago by its sponsor, the Colgate-Palmolive Company.

An investigation was begun by the district-attorney's office after a standby contestant was reported to have complained to the sponsor that another Dotto contestant was fed answers.

Worgan's office said Tuesday its investigation is continuing but that it is too early to come to any conclusion.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office says it is not aware of any investigation of other quiz shows. Any leads uncovered by Dotto probe, however, will result in the investigation of other quiz shows, the spokesman added.

The World Telegram and Sun says the district attorney's officials are worried that quiz shows may be in jeopardy as a result of the investigation of one of them.

"Key question in their minds, according to informed sources," the newspaper said, "is whether quiz rulings will continue high now that the public has been made aware that the programs are not on the open and shoot basis as the producers - would have them believe."

Alaskans Vote For State Status By Large Margin

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Alaska's slim in population but mighty in size and potentials is going to become the 49th state of the U.S. Alaska voters crowded to the polls in record numbers Tuesday and by a wide margin approved admission of the territory to the union. With 109 precincts reporting, immediate statistical returns from heavily populated cities in central and southeastern Alaska came from more than one-third of the territory's approximately 227 precincts.

Forecasts on the eve of the election had generally not much more than a 2 to 1 margin for statehood.

HUGE MARGIN TAKES

Most of the opposition to statehood in Alaska had been based on a fear that increased costs of state government would mean increased taxes for the territory's 215,000 residents.

The voting was so heavy at many districts that the supply of official election ballots was exhausted before the polls closed.

Airplanes were pressed into service to carry new supplies of ballots to some constituencies. At others, sample election ballots were used in official use to meet the voter demand.

Included in the heavy turnout were 18- and 19-year-old Alaskans voting for the first time. The voting age in Alaska was lowered from 21, under terms of the constitution of the proposed new state.

Liberal Leader Attacks Action Of Duplessis

QUEBEC (CP)—Jean Lesage, leader of the Quebec Liberal party, says Premier Duplessis' government has violated the formation of a small, private group of university students in a dispute of a difficult situation."

Mr. Lesage made the statement at a news conference Tuesday in reference to the premier's decision to name representatives of the 80-member University Action League to discuss tenured provincial aid to universities and loans and bursaries for students.

Last April Mrs. Dupuis declared in a meet a delegation from the Quebec Federation of Liberal Students, a representing some 22,000 students at Quebec universities and affiliated colleges. The association had sought an audience to deal with similar educational matters.

Mr. Lesage described the new league as a "mushroom group" and said the premier's action was a worn-out trick employed by Union Nationale to boycott labor unions or other professional associations.

Nominating Committee Will Submit Slate of Officers for Next Booster Club Meeting

A nominating committee of Dick Beare as chairman with James Ward, James Matthews, Robert Tweddle, Charles Barber, Graham, Harry Rollins, and Jack Diamond, will meet to select a slate of officers for the Maple Booster Club and report back to a general meeting to be held in the Memorial Arena one week from tonight. This was the decision finally arrived at when the annual meeting of the Club was held in City Hall Chambers on Tuesday night with about fifty members present.

When the slate of officers time rolled around, Claude D. Ellis took the chair for the election but after the names of James Ward, Robert Temple, Mel Rhoads, James Matthews, Harry Rollins, Arthur Keegan, Edward Lowe and George Sutherland had been proposed and all declined with thanks, it was decided that a committee should to study the field and bring in a slate that would be acceptable to all and who would work for the club. Those declining the office of president or executive, in any way to assist in the progress of the club that has been such a success in this year's time.

Dick Beare, the first president of the Booster Club, for various reasons, he would be unable to accept another nomination for the club but was willing to serve it in any capacity. In retiring from the office the president thanked everyone for the wonderful job that has been accomplished. "It was a fine spirit of co-operation from every member of the club that was taking office and it has been a real pleasure" said Mr. Beare. "I could not possibly do it alone and will not do that. It has been a lot of fun and has been a real boost to its highest pitch in this city". Mr. Beare stated that the new executive should have a full term because a team was going over to Europe from Belleville and not Belleville, but it would be a Belleville team that would be playing over there. In closing he thanked the press and radio for their co-operation during the year. The thanks of the club was ably expressed by Andre Bongard.

The official Belleville Maca Beare Booster Club Fund has a bank balance of $1,863.90 at the present time, it was announced at the meeting last night. The executive is $10,000 according to club treasurer Gerry Rollins who gave a full financial report, both of the Overseas Fund and of the Booster Club itself.

Net profit of the overseas trip draw, over the $1,000 mark was $1,063.90 while the tag day added $1,963.90 to the total. The money was that which collected at the welcome home parade in May gathered $725.75. Other money in the fund includes a donation of $140 from Dick Ellis, $190.10 from Duffy's Service Station, $52.50 from the Belleville Drive-in-Theatre, $53.15 from the Bella Theatre and $5.00 from the Ladies' Auxiliary Canadian Legion, bringing the total to $1,863.90.

The Booster Club itself has a bank balance of $2,167.28 on the year's operations. Some of the bigger sources of finances included $1,206 from membership, $687.81 from the ticket draw for the trip to Europe, $522.25 from the Booster Club raffle, $362.12 from the two telegrams sent to the Maca in British Columbia, and $233 from the Christmas draw. The club spent $630.42 on the reception for the McFarlands. This was the largest deduction from the club treasury. The treasurer was sincerely thanked for his wonderful report.

It was decided to take $2,000 out of the Booster Club fund and place it in a reserve fund and to be used only on the general vote of the club. This will leave the incoming executive with a balance of $167 and as of last year the executive will start poor and for this way it was felt all would do a better job. Eric Denyes, a loyal supporter of the Maca told of the generous grant given by the County Council and stated it was more than equal the amount given the Dunlops last year by Ontario County. "It was a fine gesture of the council" said Mr. Denyes.

Drury Denyes, manager of the Maca, told the members that the Hockey Club and the Arena Commission sincerely thanked the Booster Club for their interest and work on behalf of the Club. He stated the messages received at Kelowna were heartily read.

He told the members that the team would play a full league schedule before leaving for overseas, would open with Kingston on October 9th and close with Cornwall. While overseas they would play the exhibition games and the tournament at Prague would start on March 1st and end with the play March 15th. He also stated that four reinforced ice pads would be used who do not have to be signed until December 31 by which time they will be eligible for next year. He stated that signing of players would be started in the next couple of weeks and information would be released immediately.

"Two projects were accepted by the club. Tom Pappas, proprietor of the Recreation Bowl has donated his alleys to the Booster Club on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of next week. All the returns less the cost of the alleys will be turned over to the overseas fund.

The alleys have been renovated for the winter season and this will be a good time for all the club members to get together to have a final "get together" to know each other better and at the same time help the fund. Ted Shannon and Ken Ashley will be held lafer in the season. Other matters were discussed after which the meeting adjourned.

Eisenhower For Slow-Down In Integration

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he believes that the pace of integration of Negroes in public schools should be slowed down.

But the president denied at a news conference that he has said he wished the Supreme Court had not ruled in 1954 in favor of school integration.

Eisenhower also said in effect that the government would not take part in arguments before the Supreme Court on Thursday in the school integration crisis at Little Rock, Ark.

TERRIBLE CONSEQUENCES

The president also declared the consequences will be terrible if some states close their public school systems in an effort to block court - ordered mixing of the white and Negro races.

Closing the schools under such circumstances would result in "terrible consequences" to the education of school system.

Virginia already has laws to permit closing of its schools and Arkansas Governor Orval Faubus has asked a special session of his state's legislature to give him authority to shut schools in the event that integration is ordered.

TROOPS COULD RETURN

The discussion of a possible slow-down in integration efforts follows by only one week a broad indication from Eisenhower that in case of trouble over desegregation he would follow the same course he took last year in sending federal troops, if necessary, to Little Rock.?

At last week's press conference Eisenhower said he is thinking on the subject now is just what it was then.

Possible Town May Take Over One Property

TRENTON — The possibilities of the town taking over one of the properties under the control of the Parks Board was the main debate of the board meeting last night when they met in the board room of the municipal building.

Ted Parker, chairman of the board, said he read the report in the press but had not been approached by any of the town fathers concerning the matter.

He said he was sorry perhaps it would be best if the board sent a letter to the town informing them of the by-law which covers park property in the Town of Trenton.

The by-law, No. 1107N, which was given its first and third reading on November 15, 1955, reads as follows: (in part) ". . . . land for public park purposes only and shall not be used for any other purpose unless the park purpose unless the opinion of the qualified electors is obtained before changing such use nor shall any of the land described in schedule "A" hereto be conveyed without first obtaining the consent of the qualified voters." (Quinte Park, on the corner of Division and Ford streets and the site chosen by the council for the proposed new police station, is listed in schedule "A" of the by-law.)

Mr. Parker said the letter should also explain to the town that they did not wish to stand in the town's way in obtaining a site for a new police station, but that they would like to see a suitable piece of land set aside for playgrounds in that vicinity.

SEND LETTER

The board also agreed to send a letter to Councillor Charles Hilton, chairman of the Sanitation and Waste Removal committee, commending him and his committee on their stand in seeking the government to give permission to take the new sewer lines from the west side of the river to the east side through the government docks. The board agreed it would "lay half the park open" if the line went through Fraser Park, and it would take considerable time and work to put the grass and flower beds back in shape.

A letter to the Parks Board from Pringle and Pringle, a law firm in Belleville, who are acting for Harry Kaye, was read at the meeting. Mr. Kaye is opposing the Parks Board's plan to erect a curbing around the lower end of the Gilmour Hill Park, claiming it would flood his property.

The letter, signed by Robert Pringle, reads in part: "Should you proceed with this work and flood Mr. Kaye's property, we have been instructed to bring an action for damages and an injunction to force you to remove the obstruction."

Members of the board feel it would help drainage in that area rather than flood anyone's property.

The meeting was also informed that new cans for containing garbage have been placed in Hanna Park and that a new bridge has been purchased by the board and handed over to the town.

Attending the meeting were Chairman Ted Parker, Jr., Mrs. Bert Strong, Miss Marion Baker and Bill Ireland.

Pair Fined $10 For Damaging Life Preserver

TRENTON — Ronald Abbott and Donald McNeill, both of Trenton, were each fined $10 and costs in Magistrate's Court yesterday when they appeared on a charge of wilful destruction of public property. Both pleaded guilty.

Chief Jack Taylor gave evidence for the crown. He told the court that on August 22, at 1:05 a.m., Sgt. D. Bradshaw and Constable Fred Nokes were on patrol in the cruiser and were going across the town bridge when they noticed the two accused leaning over the railing on the swing portion of the bridge. Stopping to investigate, they found the life preserver had been thrown to the cement pier below and had split open, spilling the cork out. The chief said the life preserver was not a new one but it was sufficient to save a life if needed at any time.

On question by the magistrate the chief said there was no indication at the time that the men were drinking and they had given no reason why they had thrown the preserver in its destruction. The chief also, informed the court the preserver has since been repaired and returned to its hanging place at a cost of $20.

In fining the men for their actions Magistrate T. Y. Wills said he hoped it was enough warning to the pair not to do it again.

Two Youths Get 'Break' From Magistrate

TRENTON — Two Trenton youths received lenient treatment from Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Crown Attorney John Pringle in court here yesterday when they appeared on a charge of failing to keep the peace while on suspended sentence from a previous charge.

Both boys, Keith and Harold Dunkley, had been convicted in July on a charge of stealing a car and later were charged with obtaining liquor while under the age of 21 years.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said the boys had been ordered by the court to keep the peace but had failed to do so. He said it was not a crime of magnitude but suggested that punishment be considered at a later date.

Magistrate Wills said he was of the same opinion and that he did not think a jail sentence for boys to jail on the original charge, as yet. He said he understood they were both working and the other was to work in at a new job right away.

"If there is any chance", he told the boys they must behave, then ring out and making you lads see that you must behave, then I shall adjourn sentencing on this charge until a later date."

He told the boys they must continue reporting to Mr. Atkins, the probation officer, although Mr. Atkins was certainly not satisfied with the actions of the boys.

Keith Dunkley was also fined $13 under the Liquor Control Act charge.

FINED $100

George Brown of Winnipeg was fined $100 and costs when he appeared on a charge of drunken driving which was reduced to driving while impaired. Brown was charged following a two-car accident which caused property damage amounting to nearly $500. He pleaded guilty to the charge. He was also forbidden to drive a vehicle on a highway any place in Canada for the next six months.

Straw Fire Extinguished

TRENTON — Fire trucks were called out yesterday about 12:23 p.m. to the home of Art Sharpe, 15 North Street, where straw in the barn behind the house had been set afire.

Because the caller had failed to inform the fire department the magnitude of the blaze the man on duty had rung the alarm bell calling out volunteers. The firemen do not take chances, if they are not sure of the size of the fire they bring all the men and equipment leaving only one truck and enough men at the station in case of a second fire.

However, the fire on North Street was pretty well under control when the firemen arrived and they lost little time in putting it out. There was no serious damage to the property reported and the call was answered by Elmer Stacey and Bob Haker.

It is believed the fire was caused by children with matches.

Corbyville Couple Celebrates 50 Years of Married Life

Fifty years ago on August 12, 1908, Eunice Fleezie Sills, daughter of the late Benson and Mary Sills, of Belleville, and James Henry (Harry) Brenton, son of the late James and Elizabeth Brenton, of Corbyville, were married by the late Reverend J. Emsley. Two cousins, Mrs. Alfred Vaughan, now living in Ottawa, and the late Gerard Unger, of Napanee, attended them.

Mr. Brenton has lived all his life at Corbyville on the farm where he was born, except for three years when he worked in Belleville at the Iron Rolling Mills, and the Carlaw Floor and Seed Mills.

Mrs. Brenton was born in Belleville, but spent her childhood on a farm on the 9th concession of Thurlow, later moving to Belleville at the age of 11 years, where her father operated a grocery store on Catherine Street, for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Brenton have two sons, Willis, an electrician, who resides in half of his parents' house, and Gerald, an engineer on the Canadian National Railway, residing on the farm next to his parents. There is one grandchild, Marion.

Mrs. Brenton has one sister, Mrs. R. D. Adams, of Belleville, and Mrs. William Kay, of Gananoque, is a sister of Mr. Brenton.

On Sunday evening previous to the festive day, they were entertained at a family dinner held at the Royal Hotel, in Picton. Those present included their two sons and their wives, their granddaughter, Marion and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Adams.

On the following Monday they travelled to Gananoque to visit Mr. Brenton's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kay, and on Tuesday, accompanied by their son, Gerald and family, they began a motor trip through the Green Mountains of Vermont and the White Mountains of New Hampshire, via Lake Champlain.

During the trip they visited several points of interest, returning by way of New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. Brenton were the recipients of numerous lovely gifts, as well as many cards of congratulations from relatives and friends expressing wishes for many more years filled with health and happiness.

ECONOMY THREATENED

WASHINGTON (AP)—Peru has asked the United States to forgo any increase in tariffs on lead and zinc imports. Bishop Thinks Contraceptive Bans Not Legal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Laws against contraceptives may be unconstitutional under the First Amendment of the U. S. Constitution guaranteeing religious freedom, Bishop James Pike of the Episcopal Church said Tuesday.

"Our church has put itself on record that family planning is part of Christian obligation," said Pike, bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of California.

Bishop Pike, who attended the recent Lambeth conference of the Anglican Church in England which declared approval of birth control, said in an interview:

"A law against birth control can now be said to interfere with an individual's exercise of his religion."

Contraceptives are banned by state law in Connecticut and Massachusetts but are legal in all other states.

AN UNUSUAL BRIEF

Of the preparation of briefs there is no end, as any person placed in authority over us will sadly testify.

There is one thing common to most briefs — they aren't.

Some people have to read briefs — but they do not have to listen to what they are reading.

Apparently the Orillia Chamber of Commerce is well aware of this state of affairs. The knowledge did not prevent the Chamber from forwarding to the Hon. George Hees, Minister of Transport, a brief calling for the improvement of the Trent Valley canal system.

But the Chamber made certain that the brief would not go unread in the flood of paper which pours into — and out of — Ottawa.

The front page of the brief is designed in the style of a program for a play.

It is entitled: "The Case of the (dilapidated) Trent Canal System."

The cast is shown as follows: Absentee Landlords (wicked) — Departments of Transport over the years; Poor Tenants (long-suffering) — People of Trent Valley; Bailiffs (honest) — Trent Canal Authority; Good Fairies (bountiful) — Various M.P.s; Hero (ardent) — Dr. C. H. Hale; Heroine (coy) — Government of Canada; Chorus (enthusiastic) — Orillia Chamber of Commerce.

The following "credits" appear below the cast: Designs (evil) — Dept. of Transport; Sets — Dept of Works; Program (wrong) — Hydrographic Survey; Business (mis) Management — Dept. of Finance.

All this may not be the way to win friends, but it is certainly the way to get attention, which is a necessarily preliminary to influencing people.

The Orillia Chamber of Commerce deserves plaudits, but we rather suspect that Hon. George Hees, while he may smile with amusement at the unique form of the brief, will also raise his eyebrows in regret at the letter which the letter head of the Orillia Chamber of Commerce that Orillia is "The Courteous Town"—"Absentee Landlords (wicked)" — this is the courteous approach?

THE AGE OF INNOCENCE

It must be great to be a grand-pappy.

Or a poet.

Or both.

Take the case of Edgar A. Guest, the poet of the people, who regularly fills the last few inches of this column, bless him, and who the other day chose "Childhood" as his subject.

"Always smiling childhood is, always bright and always gay," chanted Guest.

"Saw — I don't wanna eat my egg."

"Always sweet and pure and holy, always tender, always true", sang Guest.

"Pull the other wing off, too; if it can't fly on one wing, perhaps it can crawl on one leg."

"Always faithful, always simple, always innocent and kind," sings the Grandpappy Poet of the People.

"I gave my marbles to Tommy to keep for me while I pulled Mary's hair and he tossed them in the river to see whether they would sink and they did and I said he would have to give me his marbles and he said he didn't have any marbles, the only place he knew there were any marbles was at the bottom of the river, so—"

UNNECESSARY RESERVATION

"Barring a major war," says the Bank of Montreal in its business review for August, "productive capacity in the major base metals, copper, lead, zinc, nickel and aluminum, should be able to meet any foreseeable increase in demand for some years to come."

If fear of a shortage of base metals resulting from a major war is the only thing which is preventing the Bank's officials from relaxing, we should like to reassure them.

If a major war comes, we feel certain productive capacity will be equal to the demand. We have yet to hear of a dead man yelling for copper, lead, zinc, nickel or aluminum.

Or uranium.

THE CHILDREN'S LOVE

I'd just as soon a king should frown
When I draw near, and turn me down;
I wouldn't grieve to think that he Saw nothing worth his while in me.
If only little children sweet
Came running to me down the street,
But should the children run in fear
And be afraid when I draw near,
Afraid to clamber on my knee
And tell their secrets unto me
Then, though a king should hold me in his sway,
I'd be forever sad and blue.
For there is more in childish joy,
In faith of little girl or boy,
In that sweet, simple, loving trust
Than any king, howe'er so just,
Could grant to me. At any rate,
While children love me, kings may hate!

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article forty-four contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society.)

THE "ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER"

One of Belleville's claims to fame is its newspaper.

The "Ontario Intelligencer" is one of the oldest papers in Ontario, having maintained continuous publication since 1836.

Only three other newspapers, among them the "Kingston Whig - Standard" and the "Brockville Recorder," have been published for a longer time. The oldest is the Kingston Whig - Standard, commenced publication in 1810.

Toronto's oldest newspaper, "The Globe", was not founded until ten years after the "Intelligencer".

Rather surprisingly, the "Intelligencer" was not the first newspaper published in Belleville. The first was the "Anglo-Canadian", begun in February, 1831. It was edited by Dr. Alexander Jas. Wilkinson, and published by W. A. Welles. The annual subscription rate for this publication was four dollars, a high compared with present publishing rates.

The "Anglo - Canadian" was followed by two other papers, the "Advocate" and the "Hastings Times", which lasted only a few months.

Then, in 1834, George Benjamin founded the "Weekly Intelligencer". A short, stout man of ruddy complexion, George Benjamin was a spectacular character who flashed a pair of very keen dark eyes. In many years he was M.P.P. for North Hastings and Warden of Hastings County.

Among Benjamin's opponents was Dr. Edmund Boswell (Conservative Prime Minister of Canada, 1896-96). A "vigorous and caustic writer," Dr. Boswell soon won a partner, Dr. Thomas Dixon, and about 1841 became sole proprietor of the paper. He was often engaged in bitter political controversy with the "Intelligencer". The Liberal newspaper established here in 1841. In its editor, Abraham Dimmick, he found an opponent worthy of his steel.

The "Hastings Chronicle" was published by Thomas Miles, a worthy citizen, who worked daily at the case and acted as foreman in his own office. In 1873, the paper amalgamated with the "Tribune", a political weekly publication began in 1870 by J. W. Carman.

Finally, in 1890, the "Ontario" purchased the Intelligencer printing and publishing business and on April 1, 1930, the first issue of the "Ontario - Intelligencer" was printed and published.

Thus the "Ontario Intelligencer" incorporates the heritage of several fine old Belleville newspapers.

Skin Games at a Fair

Fort Arthur News-Chronicle

Another Canadian Lakehead Exhibition is gone and all but forgotten. Only those who have the unfortunate experience to be a fair . . . a year-round job for many . . . and those who won the automobiles and the home that was given away, will have prolonged memories of the six-day event.

Another group is trying to forget the exhibition while remembering the bitter experience. In this group are the people who lost their money to the skin games set up. One such individual telephoned this news-paper to complain about the midway sharps.

"I'm a man of average intelligence", he said, "and when I walked into the midway I had no intention whatever of playing midway games. I was taking his children to the fair, mostly for the rides. To him, as to most growing boys, the exhibition is for the kids.

"But a super-salesman midway barker attracted him to one of the sucker games. The visitor just couldn't resist the opportunity broach of the operator, who pulled all the stops in the gaudiest sales prizes on the counter, throwing down $10 bills offering "free" cash and a new car to anyone who never or eight minutes. The Port Arthur man was cheated; the offer to $30 he had in his pocket when he walked through the gate was lifted in a matter of almost as quickly as it could have been by a pick-pocket. And according to him, about as honestly.

It is a little difficult to find much sympathy for a man who will stand at a midway booth and give away $33 in 50 donations of 50 cents. Yet, anyone who has been through the fair has seen how sharpe knows how difficult it becomes to quit. After all, even $25 isn't too high a price to pay for the transistor radio or some other valuable item.

Those who have played the midway games know the chances of winning are so slim that it would risk his money a second time. And they wonder why the midway games persist.

The reason, of course, is summed up in P. T. Barnum's theory that there's a sucker born every minute. For every person who loses a bankroll at the 10¢ alley and vows never to go near a midway again, there's another unsuspecting victim ready to saunter through the gates of the 1959 exhibition. In this, as in other types of gambling, experience is, unfortunately, the only teacher.

Perhaps the operators of gambling houses could be regulated by city ordinance, with limits enforced, but it would be difficult. Perhaps the exhibition board could prohibit these shady operators from coming into town, but again, there would be difficulty in separating the good from the bad in a midway package.

Some games are older than the exhibitions themselves, and are not likely to disappear overnight. So long as there are the honest people willing to trust a stranger, there will be dishonest strangers conniving to take advantage of that trust.

The best defence against the skin games is for the gullible to carry no more money to the exhibition than they intend to spend.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On the hottest, humidest day of the week, I was astonished to go through one of the big department stores doing a little shopping—I was ping and find the entire staff of the store in the best of humor.

Not only were all the clerks full of compassion and good will, as I wandered among the aisles, I could get help but they were alert, friendly, expectant air of them all, man and boy, woman and girl. When I got to the hosiery department, I h e young lady actually waits on my wife and me greeted me brightly. I paused and spoke to her.

"How do you account," I asked her, "for the good nature of everybody behind all these counters, on a day like this?"

"Well, wouldn't it be awful," she responded, "if we all acted the way we felt?"

So I hurried home and took a big dose of liver salts.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

STILL QUITE PREVALENT

"Thou shalt not steal."

One's quick response to this Biblical commandment would be that, as a matter of fact, there is very little real theft in civilized nations today. If we mean by theft the unlawful taking of any piece of value, then there is very little theft amongst us. Gigantic as our present criminal population is, it constitutes never theless, a very small percentage of our population.

But theft must be associated with something more than the mere taking of articles of value. The employee who loafs or s his job is a thief. Then there are hundreds of little dishonesties of thought and practice in which the most respectable people in every community participate. One can steal without ever laying his hand on an article which belongs to another, for theft has to do with attitude of mind as much as — and probably even more than — with action.

The most serious forms of dishonesty result when we are dishonest with ourselves and w i t h God. We are dishonest with ourselves when we fail to live up to the best we are or to the best we can do. We are dishonest in our attitude toward God when we are uncharitable, when we deny Him the worship which is His due, or when we misuse the abilities He has given us.

We can all grow very uncomfortable as we ponder on these words, "Thou shalt not steal."

Are Too Ready To Near Brink

London Observer

If we modernize our approach to these problems, there are tremendous possibilities before us. The new Middle East policy enunciated by the Western spokesmen contains the germ of a political system that could conform life in this century. An active strengthening of the United Nations could give us the machinery of co-operation the world afairs that we urgently need, not only in the Middle East but in other areas and in relation to other problems.

But there is one aspect of this month of flux that has sinister possibilities. It has revealed in alarming clarity the "brinkmanship" in Western official thought. If Krushchev was really the military gambler that our estimate of his relationship to "Nasseriam" had assumed, our treatment of the Bagdad rebellion as a signal for military action would have presented the Kremlin with a final gamble. Moscow pitted against Port Hope. The following comment ed the Belleville rink: W. B. Higgs, Rev. C. E. Cragg and A. S. Kerr and R. J. Wray. The score was 23 to 3.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOVE YOUR WORK

There is no work like the work you love, regardless of its returns. "Be sure you find your work," said Carlyle, "who has found that work." That is the little book of the sayings of Marcus Aurelious, he says: Love your trade, no matter how humble it may be, and find in it refreshment. Spend life's remainder in one long effort to do what he has committed his all to the gods, and is neither tyrant nor slave to any man."

If you are unhappy in the job you have now, hold there in combining the matter with the job or with you. The sooner you make a change the better. Every day we grow one day older. We cannot afford to let the happy days go by without making every day a good day. Love that Job! Keep making it more worthwhile and more efficient. Happiness then will follow.

It is tragic to read of idle workers who want work. No one, who wants work should be deprived of it. The best way to satisfy yourself of continuous work is for you to keep getting better and better, no matter where you are, and what that work may be. It's the gospel of work itself that is important.

Love that job — and keep it full of interests. Look forward to it each day. Make it bless you, and inspire others to acquire those interests that you enjoy. Nothing builds integrity and ambition in one as does work — at something that keeps adding new knowledge. If you want incentive to keep you stirred up, keep loving that job of yours and try to make it one of your important objectives in life. Work is a curative, also. And the more you love it the more it soothes and disappointments. It's that job of yours that keeps feeding your character.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

EMOTIONS ARE A FACTOR IN SOME CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

For the healthy child with no defects visible, a pre-school physical examination is just a matter of checking list of "O.K.'s". But a pretty good proportion have something that "isn't serious yet," and won't be if it is detected early. Finding such incipient troubles is the real value of checkups for a large majority of children.

But there is still another broad area that is intensely important, and usually tremendously hard for parents to recognize. The doctor, simply because of his experience, may see a sign that parents don't see at all.

That's the area of emotional health.

Is there some indication that a child is acquiring a distorted outlook on life? Is he subject to nervous tics or manneristic habits that rate too much pressure on his nerves?

Let's face it. Children as well as adults, can become mentally ill, although it is rather unusual to find a child who needs care in a mental hospital. On the other hand, there are quite a lot who can benefit greatly by some guidance in a clinic. The average family physician does not pretend to be an expert in these matters — but he has enough children, and knows enough of the basic nature of these problems, to suggest that the right some expert evaluation of a child's feelings are in order.

DON'T GET MAD

Please, my friends, don't become insulted or hurt if that very suggestion is made. We still have a long way to go, but we are now beginning to realize that mental illnesses (either mild or severe) can come to us just as physical illnesses can. There is no reflection on the parents, or on the child's intelligence. Mental (or rather emotional) quirks can start because of unpredictable combinations of conditions and environments. Upbringings that are wise for one child may be wrong for another, so if your doctor tells you this won't happen to Johnny, that he thinks the emotional situation should be checked, thank him. Don't get mad!

In this connection, I feel quite strongly that particular care should be observed when a child is ready to start high school. The pressures of growing up, the problems of adolescence, the difficulties of dating, social acceptance, necessity of family problems, the need for decisions, however preliminary, about careers — all these add pressures on.

So learn to lean on your family doctor for comments and counsel.

And a last item! This goes back to the first pre-school examination before kindergarten or first grade, that about starting a health diary? Keep a record of what vaccinations your youngsters have had, and whooping cough, and chicken pox, and what boosters, what general conditions need watching, and so on.

Sure, if you spend the next 12 or more years keeping it in the locality, and going to the same doctor, he'll have such a record. But if you or he is done, can you remember? I never could. So start writing things down.

It could mean blood, and for that reason obviously you should have your chest check at once. For example, a stomach ulcer might be bleeding, but slowly turning black by the time it passes through the rest of the intestinal tract.

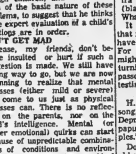
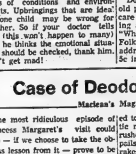
Case of Deodorized Don

Maclean's Magazine

The most ridiculous episode of Princess Margaret's visit could also — if we choose to take the obvious lesson from it — prove to be the most rewarding. We refer to the Case of the Deodorized Don.



The Don is a river that flows, if, as many people ardently believe, rivers are living things with faults and virtues and personalities of their own, the Don has been both the hero and the victim of one of the most affecting tragicomedies of our time.



The Don, not to put too fine edge upon it, is a veritable crumb-bum of a river. Once a fine, clean-flowing rivers leap and race between their banks of grass and gleaming birch trees, the Don barely wallows in steaming stretches of old tin cans, bedsteads, bicycle wheels and mud. Other rivers sing; the Don belches. Other rivers emit splendid smells; the Don emits a terrible smells.

All of this was ordained many scores of years ago. Then the Don was still cool and clean and full of promise. Then a great city began to grow around it. Then the Don, flowing so handily through the World habit of treating the gifts of nature as a combination of public convenience and private convenience: things to be used, soiled or abused at the discretion of whoever the doing of such a deed will earn any individual business municipality a profit or will preserve a dollar's expense or post pone an hour's trouble. The Don became a floating carbage dump. Prudent Torontonians tried to forget the Don.

But suddenly the Don could not be avoided and its offensiveness was brought sharply to mind. Under the plans for the Princess' brief visit to Toronto, Her Royal Highness was to spend the night in a private railway car and the car was to be parked on a siding right beside the Don.

With the disclosure, the whole city turned on the hapless Don as on an abandoned criminal. Editorial writers and citizens protested. Aldermen keened. Parks-patrician, the City Hall decid-

French-Made Auto Hottest Selling Import

Reprint from the "Toronto Daily Star", Saturday, May 17, 1958.

By JACK GALE

One of the newest cars to go on sale in Canada is the French made Renault Dauphine. It is also one big surprise. In the U. S. over the past year it was the fastest-selling import, bar none.

With brakes three times as good as you're used to, and other features to match, demand was such you couldn't buy the thing in Canada until a couple of weeks ago.

RIDES SMOOTHLY

The Dauphine — or "Dolphine" in translation — is big sister to the Renault 4CV pudgie-bumper that whizzed around Canuck cities back when Austin was the Mark III of the minicars.

It has in fact just about the same engine, with larger displacement. Has four doors, rear-engine drive, front luggage compartment and spare tire under the front bumper a-la-Citroen.

The Princess rides smoothly on independent helical suspension, a three-speed forward gear-box that's levelled at all.

What does all this mean? Let the experts take over. "Roads and Track" reports: Its road handling and responsiveness are the best; in fact it corrected the driver's mistakes so willingly that there is almost a pleasure in "losing" the car a little."

SECOND TO NONE

"Auto Age" notes: "Renault's solution to the problem (of carrying four or five average people in comfort) for the 'Dauphine' is extraordinarily successful to put it mildly."

"Sports Cars Illustrated" says: "From the standpoint of service accessibility, the Dauphine engine is second to none, and the low cost of a ring and valve job (using Renaultex) instead o re-boring) is a downright joker."

The "Foreign Car Guide" comes this report: "She is a princess and a lady all the way . . . on two very important aspects of tying out a car — ride and handling. Our impression is that the Dauphine is superior on both counts."

"Motor Trend" reports the Dauphine "is a ball to drive" and has the most astonishing gas mileage. On a U.S. gallon, more than 39 mpg. on about 45 mpg Canadian.

Other comments for this 13 foot long car which is five feet wide and 57 inches high range from "biggest car that boats them all", "Solid sensible and nimble." "France's hot new wonder car" to "Well-suited to the average American."

36,000 SOLD IN U.S.

To answer the sceptics — and there are many — the Renault people here report the Princess went over zero to 35,000 in sales in the U.S. last year, the year it was introduced. But the Dauphine this year — to May. 17 has sold more than 36,000 below the border.

The Canadian version of the Princess has a heater twice the size of the U.S. model, two air cleaners, a defroster a yard wide and a rear-seat heater outlet. Retails in Belleville with full equipment including licence and undercoating at $1875.

SEE NO CHANGE IN APORTHELD POLICY

No change in the rigid National policy of white supremacy is expected in South Africa despite the death of Johannes Strydom, 65, top, prime minister since 1954. Likely successor is Charles Swart, above, former minister of justice and acting prime minister during Strydom's illness. Mr. Swart, 63, is a strong adherent to the apartheid principles of the Nationalist Party.

Pine Blister Rust Costly to Canada

TORONTO — Ontario's fight against white blister rust — a disease which has cost the province millions of dollars — is being intensified following confirmation of the disease on timber in the Chapeau area.

At Maple, near here, Dr. H. H. Heimberger tree pathologist has been working on the blister rust for years and is now believed to have the largest collection of disease-resistant trees in the world. The disease requires two hosts to complete its life cycle, with planting of the currant-gooseberry family being most important, Dr. Heimberger is now growing white pines between the rows of gooseberry plants to prove their resistance.

But it is a long, weary research project. The blight rust came to North America around the 1900's from Europe on nursery stock which was imported. It spread over most of the white pine areas of Canada and the United States.

Airborne spores from the infection on the tree do not affect other white pines, but do infect currant and gooseberry bushes as far distant as 100 miles. The disease does not harm these plants, but leaves a spore which is produced on their leaves and which then infects the needles of the white pine.

To obtain disease-resistant stock Dr. Heimberger, known as one of the world's top men in tree research, has obtained seeds for grafting from many parts of the world, including Russia and China.

Now Is the Time To Make New Lawn

Right now, until mid-September, is a good time to make a new lawn, says J. C. Taylor of the horticultural department, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Mr. Taylor states that at this time of year grasses sow their seeds naturally; the weather is usually suitable; and there is less weed competition than in the spring. A lawn established in the fall begins growing early and grasses have developed good root systems by the following summer, making them better able to withstand heat and drought.

In making a lawn, sufficient depth of top soil, good seed and plenty of moisture are the main factors.

Five to six inches of good top soil will make a fine foundation for a lawn. A complete fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in balanced amounts should be worked into the soil at about 20 to 25 lbs. per 1,000 square feet.

For the average home lawn a good general lawn mixture containing plenty of Kentucky bluegrass is probably the best.

THIS TIME IT'S REAL

Two years ago, Donald Nixon and Alyson Wishart, of Saint Ste. Marie, Ont., played the role of honeymooning U.S. tourists in a department of travel and publicity film. On August 23, they did a repeat performance, but this time it was real. Not included in the marriage plans, however, was the explosion of the radiator of their 1926 touring car. The "Just Married" sign hung over the grill apparently was too much for the vintage's cooling system. The bride is the daughter of A. A. Wishart a former P.C. candidate who was once defeated by the groom's father, George E. Nixon, Liberal M.P.

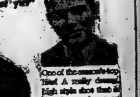
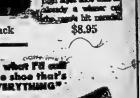
The grass seed is sown at between 3 and 5 lbs. per 1,000 square feet; half going down in one direction and half cross-wise over the same area to ensure even distribution. The seed bed should be kept moist and if the weather is dry, watered with a fine spray so that the seed will not be washed away.





In warm weather with plenty of moisture, grass will show through in from one to two or three weeks depending on the variety. In cool weather germination of all varieties will be slower.

RUMOR SPARKS RIOT

LONDON (Reuters)—A gang of 20 to 30 youths armed with sticks wrecked a Negro cafe owned by a colored man, a court was told Tuesday. Five were found guilty of malicious damage. A defence witness said the trouble began because of a rumor the owner would not serve white persons. The victim, Samuel Thomas, denied the allegation. The youths were given a 12-month suspended sentence and ordered to pay £40 each in compensation.

REID — STAPLEY

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting for a recent, pretty, summertime wedding when Jacqueline Gail Stapley, of Belleville, R. R. 5, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stapley, became the bride of Robert Roy Reid, also of Belleville, R.R. 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reid. The rector of the church, Archdeacon J. H. Creegan, officiated before an altar adorned with pink gladioli, white regal lilies, and baby's breath.

Mr. J. B. Herdman, church organist, provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ray Stapley, the bride was lovely in her Chantilly lace and net over satin bridal gown, fashioned with fitted, strapless bodice having a matching lace jacket with Peter Pan collar trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and long, fitty - pointed sleeves. Her shoulder - length veil of tulle illusion was held by a satin pillbox headdress, and she carried semi-cascade of red, Sweetheart roses, mingled with maidenhair fern.

Miss Gloria Cox, of Belleville, was her only attendant, wearing pale blue nylon net over taffeta in ballerina - length, with matching sequin - studded headdress. She carried a semi - cascade of white baby 'mums, and ferns tied with white satin ribbon.

Mr. Glen Craig, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Danny Peppler, and Mr. James McLeod, both of Belleville, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom, where the bride's mother received wearing white and blue figured cupioni satin with matching bolero, white accessories, and corsage of white and blue sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in pink, figured nylon over taffeta, with white accessories, and corsage of pale blue feathered carnations.

The bride's table was prettily arranged with white damask, centring a three - tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath a white, floral arch. The bridal bouquet added a lovely accent. The toast to the bride was proposed by the groomsman, to which the bridegroom responded.

For the wedding trip to Algonquin Park, and other northern points, the bride wore a blue turquise - colored sheath with matching jacket, white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Reid are residing at Belleville, R.R. 5.

Guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, and East York.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained by the staff of the Avon Jewellery where the bridegroom is employed; a surprise shower at the home of the bride, with Miss Gloria Cox, and Mrs. William Cox as hostesses.

The bride's gift to her attendant, jewellery; the bridegroom's gift to his bride, rope of cultured pearls, and to his attendants, tie bars and cuff links.

Nations' Health Topic at Quinte W.I.

The August meeting of the Quinte W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. N. Brown, Highland Avenue, with a large attendance and some visitors. Mrs. K. Vivian, the president, welcomed the members, and extended special greetings to guest speakers and invited guests.

Mrs. E. Jeffery, the secretary dealt with the correspondence and business. A program on "Health" was convened by Mrs. A. H. Maguire, and Mrs. M. B. Weese, with the latter presiding.

The topic was "The Health of a Nation is more important than the Wealth of a Nation." This was discussed by a Belleville nurse, Mrs. C. Howie. "When one so often listens to the toast "Here's to Health, Wealth and Happiness," said the speaker, "One does not think of the order of these great gifts, but rather the harmony of words, it is too true that happiness and wealth can only follow health; the health of a nation depends on the health of each little community, money can not buy health; it will help to regain the health which is lost, it does help to train doctors and nurses, build hospitals and carry on medical research. These are not necessary to gain the health we have lost some of it in our own time, that is primarily God-given to each of us.

CANADA'S HIGH STANDARD

"We in Canada enjoy a high standard of living, in many other countries their people die from disease and malnutrition and lack of proper food and care."

Mrs. Howie said that Canada is among the fortunate countries of the world. To be a good Canadian is the most important job that confronts everyone — "doing in your own community what is expected of you, living each new day just a little better that the previous day; "placing the community good before present profit," closing this fine toast to the bride was proposed by the groomsman, to which the bridegroom responded.

For the wedding trip to Algonquin Park, and other northern points, the bride wore a blue turquise — colored sheath with matching jacket, white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Reid are residing at Belleville, R.R. 5.

Guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, and East York.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained by the staff of the Avon Jewellery where the bridegroom is employed; a surprise shower at the home of the bride, with Miss Gloria Cox, and Mrs. William Cox as hostesses.

Mixed Racial Marriages Are Approved

MONTREAL (CP) — A distinguished woman scientist says "We must have more mixed racial marriages if we are ever going to have peace and happiness on earth."

Dr. Norma Ford Walker, professor of human genetics at the University of Toronto, is the first to be appointed to such a post on this continent. She was here to attend the 10th International Congress of Genetics.

"Mixed racial marriages generally produce an extremely fine type of people," she said in an interview.

The white-haired scientist said human genetics is a comparatively new study, and until recently lagged behind both plant and animal genetics. All data on human genetics was obtained from population statistics, but with present methods the answers to most problems could be found by studying two generations.

Asked if she, as a scientist, ever dreams of being able to arrange marriages which would answer some problems of genetics, Dr. Walker replied with a laugh: "No. Humans are much too important. And besides, all marriages we see possibly plan are already taking place somewhere if only we knew where to find them."

Dr. Walker is also director of the department of genetics at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

"My research at the hospital stresses mainly the medical angle of genetics," she said, "but in my teaching I can concentrate on the broader aspects and the inheritance of normal characteristics."

Scotswoman Handles Guns Like an Artist at Work

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — A soft-spoken Scotswoman who handles guns like an artist handles paintbrushes takes tremendous pride in her job as a gunsmith.

"Handling a perfectly made gun gives me a lot of pleasure," says grey - haired Mary Brown, one of Britain's few lady - gunsmiths. She has been doing it for 18 years.

The 43-year-old gunsmith, working in an office well-spiked with shooting irons, spends most of her time now at administrative business, since she became a director and secretary of one of Britain's oldest gunsmith firms. But essentially she is still a gunsmith.

Trouble is, she says, business isn't as good as in the old days when the well-to-do had big estates and lots of guns. "Nowadays few people have large estates, and some of the well-to-do tend to follow business rather than sporting careers."

But about this time every year, when the partridge and grouse seasons are in full swing, Miss Brown's shop attracts a good crowd of enthusiasts, in the exclusive St. James area near Piccadilly. And she can talk guns with the best of them.

EARLY START

She got off to an early start when her uncle took her on his hunting trips in Scotland. Then she was just a child at the time, but it meant she could lock stock and barrel from an early age."

When Miss Brown entered the business she found out she had to learn a lot more than the lock, stock and barrel. She had to study woods, to see the grain ran in the right direction, and that it was the proper weight. Then she had to tailor-make them to the user, adjusting the sights to the owner's eye.

So far Miss Brown has kept her interest in guns confined to the shop—"I've never had all that leisure to go out in the field with a gun." However, she adds, "lately my enthusiasm has been growing and one of these days I might go down to the shooting school for a few lessons."

When she first joined the firm she intended to be a shorthand-typist, and nothing more. "But during the war one had to turn one's thoughts to many things" and when the company secretary retired she stepped in. In 1943 she became a director.

Her hobbies, so far, have been confined to music and golf. But she has a new idea in mind now. "I feel I'd like to do something with my hands. Maybe I'll learn to play the clarinet if I have the time."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

BRIDE AND GROOM TO GIVE BUFFET PARTIES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married recently in [illegible] town, and now we have moved to live in a nice little house here in the medium-size city where my husband has always lived. We're all settled, and my husband thinks it would be a good idea for us to begin to give simple little parties, perhaps Saturday evening buffet parties. (I'm really quite a good cook!)

Of course I don't know many people here well, but my husband is a most friendly person, a n d has a host of friends. People here don't seem to come to call on newcomers, as is our custom back home. But my husband says we needn't wait for these calls, that we can begin by inviting his close friends, whom he has known all his life. Would this be the right thing to do, Mrs. Beeckman? — Patricia

Yes. Since you know it is not the custom of the city where you now live, to make welcoming calls on newcomers, don't make a point about this . . . and have a happy time giving your buffet parties, inviting, to begin with, your husband's intimate friends. This will give you a wonderful social start!

TO ACKNOWLEDGE FORMAL MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received a formal wedding announcement, and I would greatly appreciate your advising me whether or not this announcement should be acknowledged. If so, by note? If by note, how worded? The groom is my employer's son, whom I know very slightly. The bride I have never met. — Reader

It is not strictly necessary to acknowledge this formal marriage announcement, since it is essentially only a means of "telling the news." And you doubtless would not be expected to acknowledge it. But if you do wish to advise your employer's son, a gracious little note to your employer's son. The note may be brief, and appropriately on the formal side. Perhaps somewhat like this:

Dear Mr. Davis,

I was delighted to have the happy news of your marriage, and I would like to send to you and your bride my very best wishes for happiness always.

Friendly greetings to you both.

Sincerely yours,

Joan Scott

GROOM'S ATTENDANTS PAY FOR RENTAL OF FORMAL ATTIRE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a discussion we are having? When the groom-to-be sells his attendants that they are to wear formal day-time attire (cutaway coats, striped trousers, and so forth) at the wedding, isn't he supposed to pay the rental of this attire for the men who don't own this formal attire? (He told them the name and address of the place f r o m which they could rent this attire, a place he assured them is very reliable.) — Reader

No, the groom is not supposed to pay for the rental of these clothes. Each attendant is expected to provide his own attire (as prescribed by the groom). And today quite generally this formal attire is rented. (Each attendant of the groom pays for his own attire, just as each bridal attendant is expected to pay for her attire.)

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Lillian F. — I resent his friendship with Dianne.

Albert F. — She's jealous of all my intellectual interests.

Lillian F. My husband and I have been married five years and have two children. We have been quite happy except for one thing, which we constantly fight about. It is his friendship with a particular girl he knew at college.

Al admitted to me that at one time before he met me he believed he was in love with this girl. However, nothing ever came of it. But he kept in touch with her over the years.

Recently he helped her get a job in our city and they have been seeing one another regularly. He says their relationship is strictly platonic and, I believe him. But I feel this girl is really very aggressive and wants to win him from me.

Albert F. — I feel Lillian is letting her jealousy run away with her in more ways than one. Unfortunately, she was not able to go to college, and she has often shown her bitterness about this. She is almost as jealous of my intellectual interests and of my men friends as she is of Dianne.

This girl is a very unusual person and I really value my contact with her. She has given me a lot of encouragement to do some of the work I want to do, but lack the self-confidence to begin.

I can't talk to Lillian about these things because she really doesn't understand them.

Whenever Lillian hears me telling something to Dianne that I never told her, she goes crazy with rage.

The Council: We think Lillian has a legitimate beef.

It is natural for any partner in a marriage to want to share the most cherished interests and deepest aspirations of his or her partner. Any sincerely loving man or woman would feel hurt at being systematically excluded from a mate's most important confidences.

Albert admits he goes to Dianne for encouragement in something very important to him. We think her he has been getting flattery rather than deeply considered encouragement, from this girl.

If it were the right sort of encouragement, Albert would start doing the work he lacks the self-confidence to begin. Perhaps he is somewhat afraid to confront his wife with his ideas, not because she wouldn't understand them, but because she understands too well his desire to shine without putting himself to the test.

Lillian should try to contain her jealousy of Albert's educational background and make an effort to share some of his interests. It is a mistake to feel that the secrets of knowledge can only be attained at a formal institution.

Albert, on the other hand, should recognize that he has been very crude in allowing his wife to feel so left out of things. If his attitude toward her were truly loving and considerate, she might feel pride in his attainments.

FRESH PEACH PIE:

Pastry: Two and one-quarter cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2-3 cup plus 1½ tablespoons best quality vegetable shortening, ¾ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons ice water. Cut shortening into flour and salt with pastry blender, then add water, 1 tablespoon at a time, barely mixing it in with a fork. Press dough into ball. Separate into halves and roll out each crust on floured board. Line a 9" pie plate with one crust. Sprinkle with a little of a mixture of ½ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons minute tapioca. Peel and slice enough peaches to fill the pie, but as you layer them sprinkle with the sugar mixture. Sprinkle grated rin dof 1 lemon and juice of ½ lemon over top. Seal on gashed top crust. Brush top with slightly beaten egg white or a mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk. Bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 deg. for 25 minutes longer.

As if that wasn't enough for one day, let me tempt you into making

ELEANOR'S SUMMER APPLE PIE:

One quart Duchess apples (about 6 or 7 for a 9" pie), 2-3 cup white sugar, ¼ cup "golden yellow" brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon each butter and water. Line a 9" pie plate with your best pastry (Eleanor used lard for shortening). Sprinkle half the white sugar over bottom of pie shell. Cover with washed, pared and sliced apples. Sprinkle with remaining white sugar, brown sugar, and cinnamon. Dot with butter, pour water over apples at centre. Seat on gashed top crust. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes. To serve this with cheese or ice cream is gilding the lily.

P.S. This is Eleanor speaking, and since this is my recipe and I'm typing this, I have some rights. Mary had 2 pieces which makes me kinda proud and her kinda fat.

Firms Send Girls Abroad To See World

LONDON (CP) — A British engineering firm that believes in showing its secretaries the world sent two of them abroad this year on a "good-bear" basis with their foreign fetaeher.

Colonel Dudley Collier, a director of Cossley Buildings, said: "Our secretaries are invaluable to us. We intend to keep them."

And they probably will, unless marriage intervenes for Margaret Bird, who works in the Wolverhampton office, or Valerie Wallace, a secretary in the London branch.

Miss Bird, 20, who flew to Montreal in July for six weeks, says the personal contacts she made plus "a picture of the other side of things," will be of great benefit to her.

Miss Wallace, 20, spent three months in Jamaica. She describes her trip as "wonderful."

"It gave me tremendous mental stimulation to gain firsthand knowledge of how the office is run in Kingston," says Miss Wallace.

Are they likely to be sent to another country? "There is a possibility," say both.

The women travelled back from New York together and arrived home Aug. 18.

Would they exchange their jobs for marriage? "Yes, if the right man came along," said Miss Bird.

"It would be ideal to combine both if possible," said Miss Wallace.

New Issue of Book Facts About Canada

Of Canada's 4,055,000 occupied dwellings, two-thirds are owner-occupied, 96 per cent are served with electricity, 83 per cent have mechanical refrigerators and 76 per cent have telephones.

Since 1867 there have been 24 national elections in Canada, of which 13 have been won by the Liberals and 13 by the Conservatives. The number of seats in the House of Commons has increased from 181 in 1867 to 265 at present. By serving in at least three Parliaments an M.P. qualifies for a $5,000 annual pension for life.

In 1957 labor income in Canada reached a record high of $16,348,000,000; this compared with $4,920,000,000 in 1945 and $2,568,000,000 in 1939. Since 1945 the number of Canadians with jobs in agriculture has decreased from 1,134,000 to 692,000 while the number of non-agricultural job holders has increased from 3,277,000 to 4,781,000. Among the major cities Hamilton has the highest average weekly wage in manufacturing at $75.56; Windsor is second at $72.77 and Vancouver third at $72.50.

Such are some of the items of information contained in the 14th annual edition of Quick Canadian Facts, the pocket annualFof facts about Canada released this week by its publishers at 810 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto, Ont.

Among the thousands of other facts about Canada noted in the new book are:

The city of Quebec is built on a high rock which Jacques Cartier named Cape Diamond, in 1535, because at its base he and his men picked up stones which they thought were diamonds. On his return to France these were found to be only quartz crystals; for many years the French used the phrase "a Canadian diamond" to signify anything that proved worthless.

At the most recent census count Canada had 138 cities, 612 towns and 1,133 incorporated villages. There were 59 cities with populations of more than 25,000 and 57.7 per cent of Canada's total urban population lived in these 59 cities.

The new edition of Quick Canadian Facts, which carries up-to-date information on all significant aspects of Canadian life, is released this week by newsstands and book stores.

Havens for Hay Fever Sufferers

TORONTO — A haven may be defined as "a shelter or place of safety". The 1958 edition of "Canadian Havens from Hay Fever" published by the Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, supplies information on Hay Fever and where places of safety may be found in Ontario. Surveys were conducted by the Department at some forty - six places in the Province between 1950 and 1957 to determine the prevalence of pollen spores conducive to hay fever.

All areas north of North Bay, as well as some areas in Muskoka and Parry Sound well removed from railways, farmland and highways, may be considered a safe retreat for the hay fever sufferer. There is no safe haven from hay fever in Old Ontario.

"Canadian Havens from Hay Fever" may be obtained from the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, Ottawa; the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity, 67 College Street, Toronto; or from the Field Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Some relief can often be had by making sure that every ragweed plant within a block of your home is pulled, cut or sprayed. Keeping one room in the home completely closed all day to let pollen settle will allow some measure of comfort and rest during the night. Some air conditioners are of considerable help, also. A high protein diet benefits some people.

If at all possible, a vacation in the northern part of the province during the Ragweed period — early August until killing frost the latter part of September — will bring the most relief.

Ragweed along roadsides and in waste places can be killed with a spray of 6 to 8 oz. 2, 4-5 per acre. The same spray will kill after-harvest Ragweed in fields not seeded down. Fields seeded down should be cut to prevent Ragweed and other weeds from blooming and going to seed in early fall.

It is estimated that close to half a million Canadians and three million United States citizens suffer from allergies of some type, with Ragweed causing by far the most trouble. For this reason, everyone should take a hand in eliminating it in the interest of public health.

BRITISH TRIPS

The British Travel Association expects 60,000 Canadians will visit Britain on holiday this year.

Career of Canada's Prime Minister Featured by Top U.S. Magazine

John George Diefenbaker's background is one to capture the imagination, Milton MacKaye comments in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

The article, "Canada's Amazing Prime Minister," relates that Diefenbaker, the first Prime Minister raised in the prairie provinces, could read before he was five. He decided early that he wanted to be a lawyer and, in his own words, "never deviated from that course."

"His gentle, scholarly father and his strong and dominant mother supported him in his ambition," MacKaye writes. "When he was of high school age, they sold their homestead and moved to Saskatoon, site of the then, new University of Saskatchewan.

And he became such a rough-and-tumble debater at the University of Saskatchewan that the student magazine, perhaps ironically, predicted he would one day lead the opposition in the Canadian House of Commons. Of course, he did just that — many years later.

MacKaye tells Post readers that Diefenbaker, now almost 63, is a comparatively new arrival on the world scene, having achieved political power after years of political frustration.

However, the Conservative Party overwhelming victory last spring is found to have been a virtual annihilation of the Liberal Party, which had controlled Parliament from 1935 to 1957.

What happened, the author says, is that the Conservative Party, which only five years ago was trembling only feebly is now overwhelming in control of 209 parliamentary seats, the largest majority in Canadian history.

MacKaye says he recently conducted a reporter's post-mortem on the 1958 election, consulting both victors and vanquished. What happened? One Liberal leader said, "We were in power to long and went to seed."

Said a co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader: "The Americans should know something about the personality cult. Just substitute Diefenbaker's name for Eisenhower — Americans' own glamor boy — and you have the answer."

Visitor to Moscow Faces Stiff Prices and Regulations Says Recently Returned Man

MONTREAL (CP)—If a Canadian decides to spend a vacation in Moscow, Michael Markiewicz, he must be prepared to pay stiff prices and observe stiff regulations.

But Canadians no longer have as much difficulty getting into the Soviet Union for a first - hand look around, he says, thanks to changes in policy encouraging tourists from the West.

Some more changes could provide more encouragement, says Mr. Markiewicz, 47-year-old head of a Montreal - based travel agency. He spent two days in Moscow this summer scouting the situation for his clients.

EXCHANGE RATE HIGH

He complains of the unfavorable exchange rate foisted on tourists by Intourist, the Russian state travel agency, that it allows only prepaid tours, which include sightseeing visits to factory and farm.

"Intourist has 31 or 32 Rioseries," he says. "If you want to visit Russia you must buy one of them."

He says he told Intourist officials: "If you want western tourists you have to regard their wishes. So far you've had no freedom. He wants tourist value from his trip, not propaganda value."

Prospective visitors to Russia must submit a visa notice of intention in advance to Intourist or through an agent. This must be approved by Moscow.

They must also purchase vouchers for the services expected in advance — at the official exchange rate of four roubles to a dollar. Tourist cheques can be cashed for purchases inside Russia at the more realistic rate of 10 to the dollar.

THREE CLASSES

Tours cost $30, $35 or $50 a day for a de luxe, two or second class plus transportation costs to and from Russia.

After the trip is approved and vouchers purchased, the tourist is issued a visa, from the Russian Embassy at Ottawa.

Mr. Markiewicz, a scout on the Montreal-Moscow Airlines inaugural flight from Amsterdam to Moscow, advises flying as the best means of travelling to Russia because of the distances involved. The flight from Amsterdam takes five hours.

Again because of distances, Mr. Markiewicz advises flying for trips inside Russia from Moscow to such Intourist-approved cities as Leningrad, Kiev in the Ukraine, the Georgian capital of Tiflis in the Caucasus, Tashkent and Samarkand in central Asia, or Stalingrad on the Volga.

All train service is comfortable, although men and women are bunked indiscriminately in four-passenger compartments.

ROOMS "DECENT"

Hotels are old fashioned—especially the bathrooms — even though built recently, but accomodation is "decent." Most visitors be-served in Russian hotels and restaurants.

Vodka, an extra expense, is not used as a base for cocktails he says. Tourists should obey five rules when they drink it.

"It must be very cold; it must be straight; it must be in small glasses; it must be drunk in one stinging gulp; and it must be accompanied by bora d'oeuvres."

Moscow, 800 years old, grew slowly and sprawled like a great octopus, he says, although the population is about 5,000,000 there are few signs of the problem of the wide boulevards, largely because there are few cars.

But there are more attractions for the tourist, than people at first realize, besides the Kremlin or views of the bodies o' Lenin and Stalin displayed in a church on Red Square.

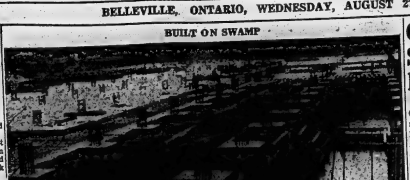
Opera, ballet and the theatre are exceptional, he says. Russians, especially younger ones, are willing to talk with westerners. And a choice of pre-revolutionary antiques are available if visitors know where to purchase.

There is no language difficulty. The Intourist guides are interpreters. So far, says Mr. Markiewicz, Canadian tourists have been indifferent to visiting the United Union.

His office has received only one inquiry and that from a man of Russian descent who wanted to look up relatives.

Turkey Accepts British Plan For Cyprus

LONDON (AP) — British have accepted Turkey's acceptance of the British seven-year plan for communal self-rule in Cyprus.



The Turkish decision was conveyed to the British government yesterday in a pledge of support for Britain's proposals urging that any final settlement of the island's disputed future be referred until 1963.

The new pact Turkey will cooperate with Britain in an attempt to end violence in Cyprus but will not give up its stand for Turkish partition of the island. Turkey also has rejected to appoint a representative to sit with Greece, Britain and the Greek Cypriot government of Cyprus, on matters concerning the island's Turkish-speaking minority.

The Greek - speaking majority in Cyprus demands union with Greece. Britain rejected the British proposals.

States-Praised By Diefenbaker For Steps Taken

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada praised the United States Tuesday for taking steps which Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggested will help fight communism and strengthen "the economic fabric of the free world".

He was referring to moves by President Eisenhower to throw the support of the U.S. behind a proposed huge marshalling of the free countries will be used to recovery resources to fight the Soviet economic offensive.

The two discussed at New Delhi Oct. 6, the plan would include raising the resources of the World Bank, which also has commitments of about $9,000,000,000.

56 MEMBER NATIONS

The two instruments are used to provide loans by Canada among the 65 member countries who face international trade deficits or need money for large-scale internal expansion.

The planned expansion, it was learned, was discussed privately between Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Diefenbaker during the president's visit here last month. The U.S. is the main contributor to the two non-Communist bodies, putting up 10 times as much as Canadian commitment.

Canada has contributed about $300,000,000 to the Monetary Fund and has guaranteed World Bank debentures by about $250,000,000. Indications are that unless the World Bank gets increased additional capital available for loans may be used up in about two years. Demands for loans have increased sharply during recent years.

Mr. Eisenhower Tuesday instructed Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson to back moves at New Delhi to throw more resources behind the fund and bank.

Mr. Eisenhower also suggested tripling the possibility of creating a new international development institution. Canada is a proposal brought up in the U.S. Senate to provide certain countries with long-term loans on terms more generous than those made by the World Bank.

EXTREMELY COSTLY

However, as seen by experts here, such a plan is extremely costly and no immediate approval of this is likely at New Delhi but it has come up for further study in the months ahead.

Meanwhile official Ottawa felt elated with Mr. Eisenhower's move. Mr. Diefenbaker said in a statement:

"I have long felt that much larger liquid resources are needed to enable the free world to expand trade to meet the economic challenge o f the U.S.S.R."

He recalled he had been a constant advocate of expanding the Monetary Fund and World Bank.

EMPLOYERS ACCEPT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Representatives of coast lumber operators have followed the lead of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) in deciding to accept the Sloan formula for settling their contract dispute. John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which represents lumber operators, said the coast operators "will be accepting" B.C. Forest Commissioner Gordon Sloan's proposal. The formula calls for fringe benefits but no increase in wages.

Governor Must Soon Make His Decision

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (CP)—Governor James E. Folsom, who may have to decide soon whether Negro Jimmy Wilson dies for stealing $1.85, said Tuesday he can make no decision on the case is until the courts have finished with it.

But he added that he hates to refuse to commute a death sentence, and "if I can find some excuse to turn somebody loose, I always do it."

Wilson, 34, is to gie Sept. 5 for robbing an 82 - year - old white woman of $1.85 unless the state supreme court grants him a new hearing on his appeal.

If the court refuses Wilson's appeal, Folsom still would have the authority to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

The robbed woman, Estelle Barker, testified Wilson knocked her and tried to rape her before taking the money. He was convicted of first degree murder in evidence—a capital crime in this state.

In Acera, Ghana, Prime Minister Nkrumah's office said Ghana's ambassador to the U.S. has been ordered to ascertain the facts of the case.

Mrs. Kay Lines of Toronto telephoned the prime minister Friday, asking him to lead a worldwide protest against the death sentence.

In Manchester, England, 500 persons signed a petition calling for the reprieve of Wilson. The petition's Negro organizer, Tom Driberg, said he would send the names to either U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney or Folsom.

A youth, congress in Copenhagen sent a protest letter to President Eisenhower and Folsom. The letter said the sentence is due to Wilson's race and was such violated the United Nations declaration about the rights of man.

Avro Arrow Makes Highest Speed in Tests

TORONTO (CP)—The Avro Arrow interceptor made its highest speed yet in tests Tuesday, exceeding 1,200 miles per hour in a steep climb from Malton airport.

The exact speed was not disclosed. Avro Aircraft Limited spokesmen said the delta-winged machine, second of the Arrow production line, is playing with Commonwealth speed records already held by Canada in the categories of limiten and straight.

The Arrow is expected later this week. The Commonwealth speed record, 1,132 m.p.h., was set in 1956 in a Fairey Delta experimental aircraft.

Red Genetics Findings Not Verified Outside Russia

MONTREAL (CP) — A Swiss scientist says the main fault with Soviet findings in genetics is that they can seldom be duplicated outside Russia.

Dr. E. Hadorn told the 10th International Congress of Genetics Tuesday that the reason Western scientists do not accept much Russian work as proven is because Western geneticists do not get the same-results from identical experiments.

"The test of scientific validity is that the experiments can be repeated independently and still produce the same results.

"I can merely say that the theories advanced by this particular school of Russian geneticists do not seem to have passed this test."

He was the latest of a number of scientists who joined the East-West controversy over theories propounded by Soviet geneticist T. D. Lysenko, a favorite in Russia during the Stalin era.

Earlier Dr. Theodosius Dobzhansky of Columbia University, New York, claimed the Russian school of geneticists put Russia "back to the pre-science era."

The charge was promptly denied by Russian scientists.

Dr. Dobzhansky told a press conference Soviet thinking in matters of heredity and environment is "reactionary" and influenced by Marxist ideology.

At a press conference later in the day, Dr. V. N. Sukesov, head of the Russian delegation, denied that Soviet geneticists reflected a united trend of thought or that political ideology had any place in science.

He added that while the Russians were purely scientific in their thinking, Mr. Dobzhansky was often creating difficulties where none exist.

Dr. Dobzhansky mentioned Lysenko as one Russian geneticist whose thinking was "manifestly absurd" in his theories that hereditary could be changed and that environmental influences determined a termined personality.

Teachers Urging Shakeup In System of Advancing Students From Grade to Grade

BRACEBRIDGE (CP)—A report urging a shakeup in the system of advancing Ontario students from one grade to another is to be discussed today by the board of governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

The report was presented to the board's annual meeting Tuesday. Made up by the federation's committee on exclusion, it suggested the validity of promotion be checked either through department examinations or standardization tests.

At present, students write tests set by the teachers or are promoted to a higher grade on the teacher's recommendation.

Committee chairman J. F. McGivney, vice-principal of Jarvis Junior Vocational School, Toronto, said:

"The academic standards in the basic grade subjects need to be clearly defined for each grade."

PROBLEMS IN TRANSFERS

He said there have been many cases of students transferring to the vocational schools who found themselves behind in studies or further advanced than pupils of the same grade.

Mr. McGivney, in the report, said students not meeting the standards should repeat the grade or be transferred to a more suitable course which might be provided by the local educational authority or by a specialized ability.

Committee members were Rev. H. J. Conway, principal of St. Patrick's High School, Ottawa; Miss Dorothy Martin, Lakefield School, Toronto, Dorothy Martin, vice-principal of Givins, and Mr. McGivney.

The meeting of 41 board members from 35 units is to end with Anton Vila. The federation represents 42,000 teachers.

DISCUSS RESULTS OF POLL

The results of a questionnaire sent to 6,000 of the federation's also discussed Tuesday. Each of the 14 questions required a yes or no answer.

The opinions of a large majority of the people of the elementary and secondary teachers included:

Discipline in Ontario schools is good, but has become more of a problem during the last 10 years.

Students over 16 years of age who are not profiting from school should be dismissed.

There are not too many social functions for students in school.

SHOULD STRESS SPELLING

Spelling should be taught formally as part of the studies in 7, 8, 9 and 10 English courses.

Although only yes or no answers were asked for, many teachers added their own comments on the questions.

A majority believed gifted children should be given a course which would shorten the number of years spent in elementary school, but not in secondary school.

About 2,500 replies were received on the questionnaire.

Three Pembroke Players Reject Waiver Terms

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Three of last year's Pembroke Senior Lumber Kings today charged they were wrongfully placed on waivers by team owner Wally Lesser.

Lesser last Thursday placed ex 68-hour waiver, Jim Maxwell, Jack Douglas and Jim Farell, stalwarts of last season's Kings of the Eastern Ontario Senior Hockey Association. He said they refused to accept his offer to pay them a top salary under the league's new limit.

Maxwell was picked up by Kingston, of the Eastern Ontario League. Douglas has been in touch with Chatham Maroons of the Western OHA.

Maxwell said today he will not go to Kingston under the deal made through Lesser. He showed reporters a statement, signed by Lesser and by the commission which operates the rink here, agreeing that his release as a free agent upon completion of the 1957-58 season. Maxwell's contract was held by the commission before Lesser took over the team here.

THREATENED TO SELL

Farelli also said he will not move from Pembroke on any deal made through Lesser. He showed reporters a contract signed by Lesser to play hockey here for two years at a stipulated salary. He said Lesser refused to live up to the contract and threatened to sell him.

Farelli said the original contract was signed at the time he was purchased from Buffalo Bisons by Lesser. It called for more than only $1,500, and Farelli said he took the loss in return for the two-year contract.

Douglas insisted that he had a verbal agreement with Lesser for the purchase of his own release. He said that he, too, had been told to move from his pay last year for 20 weeks. Upon payment of a further lump sum, he would be released. Douglas says Lesser admits receiving the $30 weekly, but refuses to accept the final payment or to grant the release.

Lesser was out of town this week and could not be reached for comment.

All three players said they would quit hockey before accepting waiver calls.

CATTLE PERISH

BRANTFORD (CP) — Seven purebred Holstein cows perished Tuesday when fire destroyed a large barn on the property of a farm of Albert and Owen McAllister, on Highway 24 in the village of Mount Pleasant. Estimate of the damage was not available but believed to be several thousand dollars.

Formosa Regarded by U.S. As Kingpin of Eastern Defence

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States regards Formosa as one of the linchpins of its Far Eastern defences.

Full Formosa out, its military planners say, and you expose Japan, Okinawa, South Korea and the Philippines to the possibility of Red Chinese attacks. It could lay the Pacific and ultimately the States, open to Red invasion.

That is one of the reasons why the U.S. clings so ardently to its alliance with the Nationalist Chinese stronghold, currently the hottest tension spot on the world news map because of Communist bombardment of Nationalist islands off the China mainland.

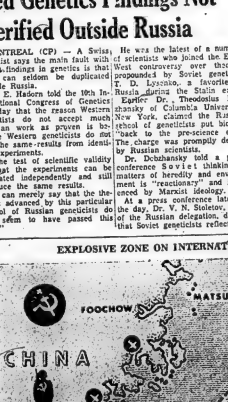
Another reason is political. Loss of Formosa, into which the U.S. has poured millions of dollars to support Chiang Kai-shek, also would seriously damage America's prestige in the eyes of Asian neutrals.

By the same token, it would enormously enhance Red China's influence in that area.

Formosa, a big almost-shaped island lying about 100 miles off the Chinese mainland, was ceded to Japan in 1895 after the first Japanese war and remained in Japanese hands until its occupation by U.S. military forces during the Second World War.

The U.S. turned it over to Chiang's Nationalist Chinese government in 1945. Chiang set up his headquarters there in 1950 after Communist Chinese armies drove his shattered Nationalist forces off the mainland. There, with the U.S. military and economic support, he rebuilt his forces and has kept his Nationalist government alive in opposition to the Red regime on the mainland.

Chiang's rule also includes a number of smaller islands off the Chinese mainland, notably Quemoy and Matsu which lie only a few miles off the China coast and have come under heavy bombardment from Communist shore batteries in recent days.



Formosa, though big as an island, is only a midget compared with mainland China. Its population is estimated at 10,000,000 and its area at 13,885 square miles. Red China, by contrast, has a population of 600,000,000 people and covers more than 3,900,000 square miles.

U.S. military commitments in Formosa go back to 1950 when former President Truman ordered the U.S. 7th Fleet to protect the island from invasion from the mainland.

In 1955, when the Communists massed and apparently held the Nationalist off-shore Tachen Islands, the U.S. Congress granted President Eisenhower authority to employ the U.S. armed forces to defend Formosa against armed attack and to take other measures necessary to secure the safety of the island.

If the current Red Chinese shelling and air attacks on the offshore islands leads to an attempt to seize one or more of them, Eisenhower will have to decide whether to order the U.S. fleet into action to aid Chiang in their defence.

Chiang, in return for U.S. military aid, is committed not to attack the mainland without American approval. Up to now Washington has opposed any such

A renewed threat of war hovers over the Far East. The Nationalist Chinese say they may bomb the Communist Chinese mainland if the Reds attempt a major invasion of the Quemoy island group. The Nationalists are also fearful that the Communists may try to seize Tungting island, 17 miles south of Quemoy.

Author and Historian Replies To Liberal Member's Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Rumilly, Montreal author and historian says a campaign he and his friends have been carrying out against the CBC is aimed at getting control of television and radio broadcasts by "leftist and socialist" commentators.

He was replying in a prepared statement to charges made in the House of Commons Monday by Guy Rouleau (L—Montreal Dollard).

In his speech, Mr. Rouleau said that since the March 31 federal election "pressure groups have put on the CBC by supporters of Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale party to fire "certain people" in the CBC.

Mr. Rouleau described Mr. Rumilly as a well-known Union Nationale writer and author who was selling regularly in the party newspaper Nouvelles Illustrees and "pressuring" on the CBC.

"It would be terrible if the Fascists like Robert Rumilly, Adrien Arcand and others like them played important parts in the programs of the CBC," said Mr. Rouleau.

Mr. Arcand, a political writer, was interned during the Second World War as a Fascist sympathizer.

In his statement, Mr. Rumilly denied that Mr. Duplessis or the Union Nationale government had anything to do with his campaign against the CBC.

"It is a bare-faced lie to picture us as seeking the dismissal of CBC personnel and their replacement by friends of the Union Nationale," he said.

Any one who thumbed through recent editions of Nouvelles Illus-trees could obtain information about "our grievances," he said.

"I have said and I repeat it: cultural broadcasts, reaching a very large audience, under the sort of people's university, capable of influencing public opinion for a long time these broadcasts on the French network have been entrusted to a small group —a family compact . . . most of them are socialists."

The commentators through their TV appearances obtained prestige which helped them when they tried to propagate their ideas in newspapers or "leftist" platforms.

Mr. Rumilly said that in forum discussions the CBC involved a commentator participant but placed him between two or three leftists — the hopes that he would be crushed.

World Far From Accepting Advent of Atomic Submarines

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The European apprehension that has greeted America's nuclear submarines suggests the world is far from accepting their advent without strong reservations.

Denmark has been the only country to place an outright ban on a visit by an atomic submarine, but Norway's nuclear experts stood gingerly with reluctant counters before allowing the Skate into Bergen. And the repeated appearances that came from British scientists when the Nautilus cruised in Portland indicated a doubtful public.

So far scientists have found no trace of radioactivity on either of the polar-plying submarines, and commanders of both ships have gone out of their way to assure their hosts there is no danger even in collision. British scientists who examined the Nautilus agreed.

But the Danish government said the Skate was being banned on the advice of its nuclear experts. And British scientists preferred to have the Nautilus in relatively isolated Portland Viller London. This, along with scientific comment from other European countries, would indicate that even professional opinion is uncertain.

One British scientist explains it this way: "Whenever there is something complex and new, you are bound to get varied opinions until the thing is fully known. And atomic energy is complex, relatively new, and certainly not fully understood by everyone."

This was the case with steam in 1819 when Copenhagen harbor officials refused to allow a steamship into port until the fire was put out and there was no danger of an explosion.

Atomic energy perhaps got off to a smooth start in England because it was introduced through planes, and it was energy portrayed as a simple source of electricity. However, when radioactivity spread from a burning pile at the Windscale plant last year, a wave of fear swept the country. Cows on neighboring farms were ordered destroyed and all homes were checked for danger.

Scientists later concluded the danger was negligible. There were several other accidents in nuclear plants, the latest last June in the big Calder Hall establishment. However, these concerned equipment apart from radioactive material, and there was no danger, scientists said.

In the case of the submarines, a scientist said it is "understandable" that some people to be apprehensive until convinced of the safety factor. "We all know that radioactivity is frightfully dangerous, but we don't know the possible effects over a period of time, and until we know this, along with treatments, there is no point in taking chances."

However, he added: "The American submarines are. I believe, quite safe and reliable."

Big Cheque Would Have Been Handy

DETROIT (AP) — Obie Carter, 50, a laid - off auto worker, drew his first unemployment compensation pay Monday.

As a father of three children, Carter was due to receive benefits of $49 a week. The cheque he got was for $9,998.99.

"I knew there was some mistake," Carter said, "but you can't imagine how much I hoped it was real."

It wasn't, the employment commission said, and took it back.

Port Arthur Man Likely to Get Post in Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — George C. Wardrope of Port Arthur has been mentioned as a candidate for the Ontario cabinet and is expected to be appointed either mines minister or minister of lands and forests. Both portfolios now are held by J. W. Spooner of Cochrane South.

Mr. Spooner, appointed mines minister in 1957, was made lands and forests minister last month on a temporary basis after the resignation of Clare E. Mapledoram, still a member of the legislature for Port William. A highly-placed source said Mr. Spooner has been asked for the lands and forests portfolio but prefers keeping the mines position.

Both portfolios are usually given to members from one of the 12 Northern Ontario ridings.

Noted British Composer Dies

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. Ralph Vaughan Williams, dean of British composers, died on Tuesday. He was 85.

Vaughan Williams, one of the 20th century's leading composers, was busy writing music at his London home up to Monday. He was taken ill suddenly and died early this morning.

Cause of death was not announced immediately.

His wife, Ursula, who was formerly his secretary and married him five years ago, was with him when he died.

Vaughan Williams had been recognized as Britain's leading symphonic composer since the death of Sir Edward Elgar in 1934. He did more than any other musician to develop the idiom of English folk songs in the art of the symphony.

FLOGGINGS INCREASE

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of labor MPs and trade union leaders have demanded that the British government ask Jordan to stop "arbitrary arrests, beatings and death sentences" against opponents of the pro-western regime of King Hussein. In a letter to Prime Minister Macmillan, they argued that such incidents had "accelerated" since the entry of British troops into Jordan.

Urges Mankind Increase Its Study of Man

MONTREAL (CP) — An internationally-known biologist Monday night called on mankind to increase its study of man.

Professor Theodosius Dobzhansky of Columbia University, New York, said that during the last two centuries man has pushed back the frontiers of physical science and technology, but "biology was, and still is, a poor relation."

Man has neglected to find out how best to live and reproduce under conditions radically different from those to which he has become adapted over the ages, he told a public lecture, held in conjunction with the 10th International Congress on Genetics here.

VITAL FOR SURVIVAL

Prof. Dobzhansky said man is entering a period when knowledge of the natural sciences, such as biology and genetics, is vital for survival.

Among other things, man must learn more about the control of mutations, or hereditary changes caused by atomic radiation or other factors. Not all mutations are harmful, he said, but more must be known about the effect of such radiation-produced mutants in the human race.

Prof. Dobzhansky said any further increase in the amount of radiation to which man now is being subjected, should be avoided until man's knowledge of radiation becomes greater.

On a broader basis, he said man doesn't seem to know which way he is headed biologically and genetically. There were forces at work—such as the huge strides in medicine—which could be producing a race of people without much resistance to disease, simply because they had never acquired immunity through contact with disease.

Polio, for example, occurred chiefly in countries with a high living standard but seldom in a low-standard where everyone acquired immunity through infection early in life.

Earlier, Professor Herman Muller of Indiana University said human reproduction cannot be left indefinitely to the "whims of parents."

In the future, prospective parents will have to consider not merely their own wishes, but the health of the child they may produce and the welfare of future generations.

"Persons who are known to have defects of a hereditary nature will consider it their obligation to society not to produce children."

Lost Car Keys And Trouble Quickly Started

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Ed. L. Stancell lost his car keys while visiting friends.

He wired the car so it would run but became lost while going home. Then the car stalled.

The 38 - year - old welder spotted a couple of men standing on the corner and asked one to step on the accelerator while he rewired the auto.

As soon as the motor started the man drove off with the car.

Stancell ran to a nearby phone booth to call police. When asked where he was, Stancell stuck his head out of the booth and asked some bystanders.

One of the bystanders walked over, slugged him on the head with a wrench and took $100.

PLANT A LAWN NOW!

Right now is certainly the ideal time of year to establish a new lawn and it's also the best time to spruce up the old one with seed, fertilizer, top-dressing and aerating.

If you've been using a weed-killer this summer it would be wise to consider adding a little grass seed now in order to thicken up the lawn . . . a thick, healthy turf will resist weeds next year.

We can help you in several ways with your lawn projects and we welcome the opportunity to do so. Our rental department includes all the equipment you will require and we are qualified to recommend seed mixtures and fertilizer applications.

So give us a call or drop in to see us at our new location where parking is ample and free . . .

Juveniles Tie Playdown Series With Cobourg

Belleville's entry in the OBA juvenile "A" playdowns edged Cobourg 6-5 here last night to even the two-of-three series at one game each with one tie.

The fourth and deciding game will be played in Cobourg tonight at six o'clock.

The Belleville boys came from behind to tie the series last night, scoring three times in the fifth frame. Cobourg had jumped into a 5-0 first-inning lead and later were in front 4-1. Belleville got one run back in the bottom of the fourth then won it in the fifth with three runs.

Catcher Dennis Kerrulsh slammed a two-run triple to knot the score at 4-4 and scored the winning run himself a little later. Belleville made it 6-4 in the sixth while Cobourg added their fifth run in the seventh and final frame. The game was halted by darkness after 6½ innings.

Pat Asselstine hurled for Belleville, allowing eight hits while fanning six and walking four. Don Wakely went the route for Cobourg, giving up five hits. He walked five and passed two.

Kerrulsh's triple was the only extra base blow of the game while Belleville's other safeties were divided among Gary Cooper, Jackie Elliott, Ralph Plane and Gordie Vaughan.

Greenaway, Richards and Maybee each singled twice for Cobourg while Plane and Pete Wakely also hit safely.

Playgrounds Will Be Closed With Sports Day

A full day's activity of sports and field events with classes for both Junior and Senior competition will climax the summer's supervised playground program this week with events to be staged at East Hill Playground on Thursday.

The Sports Day climaxes the official closing of the 13 playgrounds in the city of Belleville. Playgrounds were opened officially on July 2nd.

Events for the seventh annual will get underway at 10.00 a.m. and will continue throughout the day with breaks for lunch and supper.

In the evening there will be a sing song, presentation of cup to Miss Penny Carnival, plaques awarded to the winning playgrounds and crests to the ball champions, topped off with a movie of comedy calibre.

Included in the day's activities are contests for best decorated bicycle, race events ranging from 60-75 yard dashes, sack races, three legged races and relay races. There will even be a freckle contest for the freckle faced.

Free beverages and ice cream will be served to all the youngsters.

Bisons Climb Out of Cellar, Beat Royals

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are determined to put a temporary halt to the red hot Montreal Royals, International League leaders.

Tuesday night the Bisons climbed out of the cellar by blasting Bob Giallombardo for four home runs in the first five innings and defeated the Royals 7-1.

The Bisons' Ray Noble, Bobby Morgan, Bob Balcena and winning pitcher Glenn Cox all hit for the distance. Cox won his 13th game against nine losses.

Miami Marlins beat Havana Sugar Kings 7-3, Richmond Virginians beat Columbus Jets also 7-3, and Rochester Red Wings split a doubleheader with Toronto Maple Leafs, winning 1-0 after losing 3-1.

SNYDER STARS

Jerry Snyder and Don Landrum led a 13-hit attack on four Cuban hurlers. Dallas Green registered his fifth victory in 15 decisions but needed help from Henry Mason.

Bill Bethel, who had lost four previous games to the Jets, went the route in beating them. Howie Goss hit his 10th homer. Dick Ricketts fired a neat five hitter in blanking the Maple Leafs for his 15th triumph. Loser was Jim Pearce.

In the opener, Ernie Broglio of Toronto got his sixth victory in nine decisions. Tim Thompson homered for the Maple Leafs.

Big Lunge Hatch

LINDSAY — Ontario is one of the few places in the world where artificial propagation of maskinonge is carried out and H. C. Jackson, manager of the Deer Lake Hatchery operated by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, says quality of the 4,250,000 maskinonge eggs obtained this spring is "perhaps the best we have ever taken." Nearly 2 1/3 million eggs, or about 75 per cent of the fry obtained, hatched out.

One of the chief difficulties in raising the maskinonge lies in providing live food for the little fish. Twelve days after they have discarded the egg sac which provides their early food, they will take only live food. That means the provincial hatchery must not only provide a hatchery for the little muskies, but a hatchery to hatch minnows with which to feed them.

Frankford Wins Juvenile Opener From Hastings

FRANKFORD — Frankford Legion Juveniles edged Hastings 7-5 to take a one-game lead in the second round of the OASA Juvenile "C" playdowns. The return game will be played here tonight at 8:30.

The Legion lads scored three times in the seventh inning to gain the margin of victory as they trailed 3-3 entering the frame. They added an insurance run in the ninth.

Bob Adams toed the rubber for Frankford and allowed nine hits over the distance. Hastings got six of their nine safeties in the fifth and sixth innings but Adams controlled them otherwise. He fanned four and walked five.

Georges Waldin toiled for Hastings, tagged for twelve hits he whiffed seven while issuing two free passes.

Paul Patrick sparked the winners at the plate with four hits. Jim Creary, Alec McKnight and Bob Adams each had a pair while Don Phillips and Dave Spurrell had one each.

Jim Scriver, Jack Free and Bob Hunsberger led Hastings with two hits each. The others were split among Walt Dainard, Bill Jones and George Markim.

A CURTIS PUBLICATION

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Video tape, the system that enables moving pictures to be recorded and played back without the use of film, is improving television news coverage.

Looking ahead to the 1960 presidential conventions, one can see that tape might help solve some of the problems that beset TV coverage of the 1932 and 1956 conventions. Even the most ardent members of both parties agreed that keeping TV cameras on both conventions continuously in 1956 resulted in some dull viewing.

Commenting on this the other day, Sig Mickelson, general manager of CBS news, remarked:

"I'd prefer to edit the conventions and use video tape for the less vital parts of the proceedings in 1960. We would, of course, go live for balloting and other highlights. You never can overlook the importance, the sense of actuality, in live coverage of events as they happen."

CBS news was the first network to make use of the unique advantages of tape in covering the United Nations sessions at the height of the Middle East crisis. One example of the way Soviet President Eisenhower addressed the General Assembly. The speech was carried live and also taped; the speech by Andrei Gromyko, the Russian representative, was taped only. At 7:30 p.m. that evening CBS-TV presented a special half - hour program of the highlights of both speeches with interpretations by network commentators.

Although tape has the advantage of a better image than film and does not require any lengthy processing, tape still cannot be edited. This breaks come in the continuity of a taped program must be bridged by live camera shots. It is expected that it will be technically possible to splice tape within two years.

Mickelson summarizes the network's philosophy thus:

"Television is uniquely a live medium. We believe in live coverage where warranted. We'll break into the network schedule readily to present really important news as it is happening. But we will not waste the viewer's time with hour-by-hour descriptions in which the significant developments are only a small part of proceedings. In most cases we exercise our function as editors."

No Special Celebrations For Goldwyn on Birthday

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There will be no special celebration for Samuel Goldwyn on his 76th birthday today.

"I'll be at my desk at 9:30 in the morning," the producer said. "I'll spend the day watching the first of rehearsals for Porgy and Bess. I'll have a birthday cake at home with my grandchildren. That's all I want. I turned down all the requests for luncheons and dinners."

It's not that he's against birthdays, he said; he firmly believes everyone should tell his right age, a rarity in the movie business. The main thing is that he's too busy producing a picture to take time out.

EARLY RISER

Goldwyn rises in his Beverly Hills mansion at 6 a.m. reads the morning papers and takes the coffee which is his only breakfast—"Most people eat too much; I get along with very little food." He spends half an hour "on the floor" doing exercises, then gets a half-hour rubdown.

He is at his office by 9:30 and runs through his appointments briskly—"I never keep anyone waiting; I figure their time is worth more than mine." He has lunch at 12:30, usually fruit and cottage cheese. Then he takes an hour's rest.

"I don't always sleep," he said. "The important thing is to have some time when you are alone. A man needs to commune with himself."

CEMENTMEN WAITING

After eliminating Kingston in two consecutive games, the Point Anne Cementmen have been awaiting for the past eight days for a winner to be declared between Peterborough and Oshawa.

The opening game, of Point Anne's coming series is slated for the Ox-point diamond on Thursday night but at the time of writing there was a possibility that a winner between the other two clubs would not be declared in time.

That OASA Intermediate "A" set was scheduled to get under way early last week but rain postponed the opener until Friday. In the first fixture the Merchants of Oshawa and Watercraft of the Liftlock City fought to a 5-5 tie in eleven innings in Oshawa.

The second game was played Saturday in Peterborough with Watercraft edging Oshawa 4-3. Apparently the clubs are very evenly matched. The third game was scheduled for last night and if Peterborough won they will be at the Point tomorrow afternoon at 5:30. But on the other hand if Oshawa tied the set on their home field, they are scheduled to play the deciding game back in Oshawa Thursday night. Peterborough lost the flip for the deciding game, should it be necessary.

Providing Oshawa won last night, Point Anne will not see action, until Saturday. Bill Shaw and his boys were resting for a Peterborough victory last night so as to get their series under way. If the results are available they will be published elsewhere. If the series goes at the Point tomorrow night, the second game will be played on the other team's diamond on Saturday.

The Cementmen will see a few old friends if they meet the Oshawa Merchants, many of that club's players being on the squad which lost to the Point last fall in playdowns. Dunlop defenceman Ted O'Connor is the merchant third baseman while Ted Jones and Johnny Maslewick form the main body of their pitching staff. They have another burler by the name of Boyce. Jones and Maslewick have other claims to playdowns.

While speaking of Oshawa, that city's entry in OASA senior "A" playdowns suffered a damaging blow over the weekend.

The Tony's, who played an exhibition game here earlier this year, have lost the services of Roger Norrie Ragnell, one of the best in the business, for the remainder of the year.

Ragnell tripped while running the bases in an exhibition game against Hamilton Saturday night and suffered a broken collar bone. They also have big Charlie Justice for mound duties but he is getting along in years and will find his hands full in carrying the load alone.

Meanwhile, getting back to the Intermediate "A" classification, the Peterborough club depends largely on a chap by the name of Bobby Green to handle its mound chores.

Green hails from Toronto and was the "most valuable player" award winner while hurling Watercraft to first place in league play. He is said to be a curve-ball artist. He threw the first two games against Oshawa, striking out eleven in the opener and 13 in the second game. Green also swings a mean bat and holds down third spot in Watercraft's batting order.

Another big gun for the Peies is second baseman Wayne Rowe. He is fast afoot and according to the Examiner he belongs to the Boston Red Sox baseball organization. Rowe is the club's leadoff batter.

At any rate, either Peterborough or Oshawa will meet the Cementmen at the Point on Thursday or Saturday. It will be a close series and one well worth watching.

HOPE TO TIE SERIES

By the time this reaches your living room the Bobcats will be on their way to Peterborough for the second game of their OASA double "A" series. They are confident they can smash the equaliser tonight and also knock off the Hotelmen in the third game. If Bob Temple's boys pull out a win tonight, the deciding tilt will likely be in Cobourg Saturday.

COLORFUL WRESTLERS

Two of the more colorful matmen in the game today will be in action at Belleville Memorial Arena Friday night when the weekly heavyweight bouts take place.

Likely the most hated, and yet a top notch showman with color to spare, Gene Kiniski, will headline the card when he tangles with Bernard "Frenchy" Vignal in the two-of-three-falls main event.

This bout will be packed with action from the opening bell and Referee Bill Present you can look for some of the action outside the ring too. Gene claims he hates the fans just as much as they hate him. Any of the faithful who are foolish enough to bother the big fellow usually end up with Gene on their heels.

The other showman we speak of is the old master of a thousand faces, Leo "The Lion" Numinsky. He teams up with another roughie in Tiger Tasker to battle Joe and Guy Henning for the team belt.

Leo Garibaldi and Tarzan Tourville open the show at nine o'clock.

Hot Race For Valuable Player In American Loop

Jensen, Turley and Cery Appear to Be Leaders Now; Pirates Move Into 2nd Spot

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

If that American League pennant "race" leaves you cold, try wrenching on one chill. Who is the league's most valuable player?

Jackie Jensen of Boston Red Sox? Bob Turley of New York Yankees? Bob Cerv of Kansas City Athletics?

Those three appear to be the leaders. Jensen has 33 home runs and leads the league in runs batted in for the third-place Sox. Turley has become as sure as a championship staff, leading the league in victories and topping the AL in complete games and strikeouts. Cery's batting has improved and for most of the season despite all sorts of setbacks injuries.

FACE JINXES

Each faces a jinx. No Boston player has won the MVP award since Ted Williams in 1946. No Kansas City player ever has won it, and no AL man has done it since 1952, when Bobby Shantz took it with the Philadelphia bunch.

And while Yankee has been the victim of the jinx four years, no pitcher has won since Shantz, the little guy now working for the Yankees.

Turley added to his credentials Tuesday night, winning his 19th with a 6-2 decision over the As. He gave up eight hits, including two by Cery, who moved within .002 percentage points of AL leader Pete Runnels of the Red Sox.

Baltimore defeated Cleveland 4 in 13 innings, with Skinny Brown outlasting Don Ferrarese, and Chicago whipped Detroit on Washington 5-2. Detroit and Boston were idled by rain.

ROUGH FIRST INNING

Turley had a rough start. He faced eight men in the first inning, and called for help after two of them got to the third man. But he fanned Joe DeMaestri with the bases loaded for the final out and blanked the As on six hits the rest of the way.

The Yankees collected 14 hits. Consecutive ones by Bill Skowron, Norm Siebern, Elston Howard and Jerry Lumpe and a passed ball gave the Yanks a 2-1 lead in the second and banded Jack Urban an 0-1 record.

The Orioles, held to two singles for 10 innings, finally put it away when a walk and singles by Billy Gardner and Jim Busby loaded the bases and Ferrarese's sixth loss. Bob Williams, forced to relieve Ferrarese, got the win.

Early Wynn (11-13) backed his seven-hitter with a pair of RBI singles off loser Russ Kemmerer (5-13).

Maybe it's time to admit those pesky Pittsburgh Pirates are for real.

There are only 4½ weeks left in the National League race, and the Pirates are back in second place — fighting for first, finish in the first division in a decade.

At the moment, after a month long stay in the first division, they're eight games behind league-leading Milwaukee and ing up from third by beating the Cardinals 8-3.

Tuesday night after the Braves had slapped down the Giants again, 7-3, was their home run.

It was the Braves' eighth in a row over San Francisco as Lew Burdette whipped the Giants for the 11th time in a row.

ROBERTS ON COMEBACK

Robin Roberts, riding a comeback spurt, won his 14th as Philadelphia whipped Chicago Cubs 10-3. Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-4 in other NL games.

The Bucs wrapped it up on Frank Thomas' two run, 34th homer for a 4-1 lead in the third inning. Don Cross (4-5) got relief of rookie George Witt. Sad Sam Jones (11-10) took the loser.

Burdette (12-8), who hasn't lost to the Giants since Sept. 16, 1954, picked up his 100th victory in ten starts with a six-hitter while packing away a 9-3 record since the all-star game. He lost a 1-0 lead when Willie Kirkland hit his 20th home run in his first time up and Willie Mays hit his 32rd with a man on in the sixth. But Eddie Mathews' two-run single in the first of his two home runs for a 4-3 edge in the seventh off loser Robert Gomez (7-11).

HITS 15TH

Del Crandall hit his 19th homer in the eighth, and Mathews then hit his 37th and Wes Covington his seventh in the ninth. Burdette scratched his own single in the first, capped by Wally Moryn's 19th homer with one on. But then they were shut out on only four hits by Willie Jones on a solo homer. Moe Drabowsky took his 11th defeat.

Don Newcombe needed relief help in a two-run Dodger eighth, but had his strongest stuff the first time after the Reds staked him to an early 6-1 lead. Newk (4-11) now has won one straight for the first time since winning five in a row in mid-season of last year. He's had a 5-17 record since. Jerry Lynch drove in the first three Reds runs, a two-run homer in the first and a ground out in the second. Jimmy Wynn (9-6) lost it. Don Zimmer hit his 15th homer for the Dodgers.

Wooden Pipeline Is Hazzard At Baie Comeau Country Club

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Do golf traps play havoc with your golf game?

They're only a minor hazard at the Baie Comeau Golf and Country Club, on the St. Lawrence River north above 200 miles northeast of Quebec City.

A wooden pipeline as big as railway boxcars is girth separates the two fairways on the nine-hole layout. The pipe carries water from a storage dam on the Outardes River and a power-generating plant a mile away.

The pipeline has proved a boon to golfers with a sharp eye for angles. On some lies they were able to snoodet their shots to carry around obstacles.

But a nine centimetre soon eliminated this practice. They decided that stroke penalties at 60 point per ball strikes the wood-staves.

The course was hewed out of dense bush and muskeg near the industrial community four years ago. It is reasonably level though most holes are short.

Membership is 120, most of them employees of paper and aluminum companies. The club pro, Wilfrid Simoneau of Drummondville, Que., doubles as iceman at the community club curling rink in winter.

Thérèse Moore, the brittle young man who won the National Hockey League scoring crown last season, has apparently recovered from a hand injury that hampered him in the latter part of the schedule.

A plaster cast was removed a few weeks ago and Bill Head, sportswriter-artist for Montreal Canadiens, reported: "The hand is almost back to normal. It still has a little work, but he'll be as good as new."

Moore's career has been studded with injuries since he broke into the NHL in 1951. Few 70-game schedules went by without him spending several weeks on the Aldelaide Street casualty list.

Last year the scoring-hit left winger was sailing along at the top of the league in points with six weeks left in the season before the line struck. He developed a breakaway behind the thumb on his left hand.

Acast was stifled and although his shooting was hampered he decided to play out the rest of the schedule. As events turned out he threw a share of points and closed the season with 84—36 goals and 48 assists—as did Gordie Howe, 27-year-old native Montrealer.

Moore's 11 is a mystic. Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard, was runner-up with 80 points.

Canada has a new centre of boxing interest at Sherbrooke, bustling industrial city of 60,000 population in Quebec's Eastern Townships area.

Since last May five professional cards have been promoted at the Sherbrooke arena. Ken Shaw (Peewee) Berwick, costume amateur football player of note.

Berwick has already more than 1,000.

Most of the bouts have been between Quebec Boxers and fighters from the United States. The latter are brought in Sherbrooke by Al Beckman of New York, co-manager of light - heavyweight Burke Emery of Sherbrooke and Rory Calhoun of White Plains, N.Y.

Emery has appeared several times. Calhoun, former ranking contender for the world middleweight title, made his debut as a light-heavyweight there Aug. 18.

A record crowd of 1,350 saw him score a sixth-round technical knockout over George Mercer of Little Rock, Ark.

ARCHERS BATTLE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western Canada archers clad in the first day of the week-long Canadian archery championships here Tuesday. Herb Erickson of Lac la Biche, Alta., was named Canadian champion, title clincher and men's archery golf champion. WIN SHOOT

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet marksmen made a clean sweep of the final event in the international shooting championships Tuesday. The United States finished a poor fifth. The Russians won 14 of 17 team events and 11 of 23 individual world titles during the 10-day pistol, rifle and shotgun competition. The U.S. failed to capture a single team event, but finished with five individual world titles.

Clem Crowe, Coach of Lions, Fails to Finish Season

VANCOUVER (CP) — Affable Clem Crowe, who had three miserable coaching seasons in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, was fired Friday night by British Columbia Lions.

The end came after Lions, who piped the league playoffs for the past two years, dropped three straight games in the 1958 season.

Lions President Harry Spring said club directors, bombarded with complaints and abuse by supporters that Crowe must go, voted 16 to 1 at a special meeting. Directors were appointed to suggest a replacement by next Tuesday).

"I knew it was coming," Crowe said. "I can read it between the lines, too."

He took the news without any apparent rancor, although it is the first time in 23 years of coaching that he has not completed a season.

TEMPORARY COACHES

Lions will meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers Thursday night under the joint coaching of assistants Ted Urquhart and Wall Schlichtman. They are in charge until a coach is appointed. Lindsley and Schlichtman will be assisted by a "one-man players' committee."

Crowe, 52, was starting fourth year with the Lions, his third in a row as coach. He came here in 1955 as an assistant to Annis Stukus, who was dropped at the end of that season.

Crowe, a native of Lafayette, Ind., played for Knute Rockne's great Notre Dame teams of 1923-24-25. He coached at several U.S. colleges, the Buffalo Bills of the old American Conference, and later with Baltimore of the National Football League.

In 1951 he became coach of Ottawa Rough Riders and led them to a Grey Cup title.

Vice-Admiral Wins Senior Golf Crown

OTTAWA (CP) — Vice-Admiral H. G. DeWolf, chief of the naval staff, won the Canadian seniors' golf championship Tuesday, defeating more than 200 entries in 36 holes of medal play.

Admiral DeWolf, tied after Monday's first round at 75 with Hugh Jaques of Montreal, carded a 77 Tuesday to win the title and the Slaughnessy Trophy. The week-long tournament is being played simultaneously at the Royal Ottawa and Rivermead golf courses at neighboring Scott Hull, Que.

A tie developed for second low gross honors and the Nesbitt Cup between C. B. Smith of Toronto and H. H. Richardson of Montreal who each carded 157.

R. P. Merwin of Sudbury and L. W. Jackson of Toronto each carded two rounds of 79 for gross scores of 158.

Jaques blew to an 85 Tuesday for a gross of 160, behind the 159 scored by J. W. Wyse, Toronto, J. P. O'Neill, Montebello, Que., and A. G. Wilson, Burlington, Ont.

Play continues today with two-ball foursome to be followed by international matches between Canadian and American foursomes Thursday and the international singles Friday.

In Class D play, for those 70-74 years old, O. A. DeGraw of Peterborough won with a 86 score of 147. Charles H. Sclater of Hamilton was the gross winner with 156.

In an 18-hole putting competition at the Royal Ottawa, Judge H. S. Clark of Guelph and Wyse tied for second with 32s. H. B. Manning, Toronto, won with 32.

Clair May Switch To Dimitroff for Montreal Game

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair may switch quarterbacks for Ottawa Rough Riders' Big Four football encounter in Montreal Saturday.

"I'm thinking of using Tom Dimitroff, but I haven't made up my mind definitely," Clair said Tuesday. But he won't make up his mind until later in the week.

Dimitroff has been sidelined with an injured wrist since the middle of the exhibition season, leaving the quarterback chores to Hal Ledyard.

Both imports batted for the first time last year, Dimitroff playing six after Ledyard was knocked out with severe rib injuries.

Ledyard showed particularly well in exhibition games and against Toronto Argos a couple of weeks ago, but he and the Riders suffered a grief in Hamilton Saturday night.

Ottawa gave up the ball six times on three lost fumbles and three pass interceptions, losing 13-7 to the Grey Cup champions.

Medley Gunn out of Hamilton with high hopes for rookie Canadian quarterback Bruce Jackson, from McMaster University, who led the team to its only touchdown against Tiger-Cats.

Fourteen Trotters Will Start in Hambletonian

DUQUOIN, Ill (AP) — Fourteen three-year-old trotters line up for the 33rd Hambletonian Stake today with perfect weather and a fast track.

The event will carry the fourth richest purse in harness racing history—$198,719.36. The winner's share, $82,780.85.

The 14 horses are the second highest for the sulky sport.

Record time in the four miles, nine colts and a gelding is 4 p.m. EDT. The one-mile race is over the native clay track of the Duquoin Fairgrounds where parimutuel betting is banned.

Fillies, Emily's Pride and Sandalwood, along with the colt Sharpshooter, are favorites for the classic.

The sentimental choice is Emily's Pride, trained by 73-year-old Fred Egan. Egan is former driver who has been in 18 Hambletonians and won two, has entered the reins to 66-year-old Flick Pipe.

Jiggs McFadden Winning Driver At Old Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — With one slight remaining in Old Woodbine Park's 50-night harness racing meeting, competition for the three awards to drivers has been clearly established.

Top honors belong to either redheaded Jiggs McFadden from Dresden or gnarled veteran Hugh McLean of Port Elgin. Third place, which speared for a number of weeks to belong to Harold McKinley now belongs to Wilbert Hopkins, the contract driver for Jim Keeling's Owen Sound stable.

McLean drove his 31st victory of the meeting in the first race Tuesday night with Dorothy King ston's Darn Tooling. That left him a single victory behind leading Jiggs McFadden.

Hopkins climbed into third place with his 17th victory in the sixth race, driving his stable's Pat Malone to the finish in the last six starts.

Then in the seventh race, Hopkins got his 18th win driving the same stable's Ronnie C. to victory over Argyel Grattan. It put Hopkins two victories ahead of McKinley, the contract driver for Elgin Armstrong's Brampton stable which shipped out of Old Woodbine Park three weeks ago when McKinley was leading driver here.

U.S. Pros Tear Course Apart in Practice Rounds

VANCOUVER (CP) — United States professionals have the $47,000 Centennial Open tore Point Grey golf course apart in practice rounds Tuesday, then said it was a tough and deceptive layout.

Canadian Stan Leonard disagreed. The Vancouver star, a favorite in the tournament, joined the long list of par-wreckers with a six-under 64 and commented "It's as easy as I've seen it. It's like playing cradle golf."

The 72-hole event, richest in Canada, starts Thursday. Leonard figures a 18-under-par 270 will win.

DRY LAYOUT

That's mighty fancy shooting but Stan says dry weather has made the course "like a race track. If the course was green, you could expect a 277 to win it all."

The hottest round Tuesday was turned in by U.S. Masters champion Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa. He fired an eight-under 64 to set a non-competitive course record. Even he didn't think Point Grey was easy.

"There are lots of tough holes," Palmer said. "However, good drives will keep you out of trouble."

Some of the lowest scores came from the foursome which included Palmer, Gene Littler of San Calon, Calif., shot a 66, Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., 66 and Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., 67.

Midgets Oust Trenton With 5-3 Victory

Belleville advanced into the second round of the OBA Midget "A" playdowns on Monday night when they beat Trenton 5-3 decision over Trenton, giving them the series in consecutive games.

The winners scored three in the second and singletons in the seventh and eighth. Trenton replied with two in the first and closed the scoring with one in the ninth.

Three Belleville pitchers: Dainard, Masterson and Latchford, held Trenton to a pair of hits over the nine frames, but wildness and errors kept them in her water. They walked a total of eleven batters while fanning nine.

Jamieson gave up 11 hits on the Trenton hilltop, whiffing five and walking only one man.

Moe Hunter and Jimmy Lloyd led Belleville at bat with two with three hits each, while Dainard had a pair. Sheridan and Follwell had the others.

Hunter and Auger collected the only two Trenton safeties in the sixth and seventh innings.

Henry Martell Of Edmonton Wins CPGA Title

CALGARY (CP) — One good round in a major golf tournament ordinarily wouldn't mean much, possibly a small chunk of the prize money but the Canadian Professional Golfers Association tournament is an exception.

The working pro played such spotty golf in their two-day 36-hole championship that anything could happen.

Edmonton's Henry Martell popped out of nowhere Tuesday to win the $5,000 tournament on a four-under-par 68 final round that wiped out an eight-stroke lead held by Stanley Tucker of Toronto. Tucker blew it with a five-under-par 76 that sent him tumbling into second place with a total of 210, one stroke behind Martell.

COST HIM $300

The slip meant $300 to Tucker, the difference between the first-place $1,000 prize money and second-place $700.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, the country's most successful big-time golfer and CPGA defending champion, passed up the tournament, leaving the field wide open for Toronto's Al Balding, the only other Canadian who has made good on the golf trail.

Balding started off with a 67 and followed it a pair of 70s for a 213 total and a third-place tie with Gene Kay of Montreal, who shot 74-70-69 rounds. They each received $550.

Harold Johnson Top Challenger For Heavy Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson's 1st-round knockout over Archie Harris earned the heavyweight champion fighter-of-the-month honors and caused a shuffle in the heavyweight rankings announced today by Ring Magazine.

Harris was dropped from fifth to seventh place among contenders in the latest monthly rulings. Eddie Machen and Zora Folley were boosted from sixth to fourth. Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore, held to a draw by Howard King, was demoted from fourth to fifth among the big boys.

Argos Not Figuring Past Shatto or Doucette for QB

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football union in their quest for a winning quarterback are bargaining with two of the most controversial names in the game—Ronnie Knox and Rudy Bukich.

Managing Director Lew Hayman said Tuesday night, however, the prospects are uncertain and he isn't figuring past Dick Shatto and Gerry Doucette who have shared the spot so far.

"We've been after either Bukich or Knox for eight months now," he said in an interview. "So far as I honestly know, we're no closer to getting them than we ever were."

TALKED WITH BEASLEY

Hayman said Argonauts pursued Knox all winter and talked to George Halas of Chicago Bears of the United States National Football League, the team which owns him.

"The last definite word I had was that the kid had given up football until he clarifies his position with his stepfather. He's not in any football camp as of now but he's still on our negotiation list."

Knox played one season with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union after being cut from Hamilton Tiger-Cats at the Big Four. At the time, stepfather Harvey Knox was handling Ronnie's career.

Hayman said he talked with owner George Marshall of Washington Redskins of the NFL regarding Bukich. The situation there is even more clouded.

LOTS OF COMPLICATIONS

Bukich would have to lose out in the Washington quarterback fight with Eddie Lebaron and Ralph Guglielmo. Then he would have to be waived out of the NFL. A third condition is that Argos would have to make a deal with British Columbia Lions or the WIFU, who own Bukich's name on a Canadian Rugby Union card.

Hayman said Lions have given Argos permission to dicker on the understanding that if agreement is reached, Lions would be in with an asking price.

Bukich, at one time signed by the Lions, chose to return to the U.S. in a move that ended with Lions taking the case to court. The suit was...later dropped after bitter charges on both sides.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Bobby Boyd, 1953 ranked middleweight from Chicago, is a solid 8-5 choice to whip Miami's Jimmy Beecham when they clash in the second main bout.

Boyd, who stopped Jimmy Morris last month in his last outing, drew with Holly Mims and lost to Roy Calhoun before he handles Beecham easily he is likely to drop in the rankings.

Beecham with a 27-2 record will be anxious to make up for losing a split decision to Spider Webb here last May.

Boyd, the older and more solid puncher of the two, has a 40-3 record.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of surgery, injections or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

NEW BROADCAST

of a board of 11 directors, two holding full-time jobs as president and vice-president of the CBC and nine sitting part time.

PROPOSE 16 AMENDMENTS

During the clause - by - clause study, 14 formal amendments to the bill were proposed, and about 30 specific changes were suggested but not formally introduced by the Liberals.

Mr. Nowlan said he agrees in principle with most of the amendments proposed, but suggested that they be held in abeyance until the new board is set up, has drafted its regulations and brings them before a special Commons committee at the next session of Parliament.

Two amendments suggested by the Liberal opposition and moved by the government authorized the new board to allocate shares among parties of time set aside for political broadcasts, and removed a restriction on immigrants applying for a licence to operate a radio or TV station.

The restriction would have authorized licences to immigrants only if they had applied for citizenship within the first six years of residence in Canada.

DECLINES BAN

But the government declined to impose a ban on full affiliation of Canadian and CBLT stations with American networks.

This amendment was proposed by Mr. Pearson, who said it would not prevent Canadian stations from associating themselves with American networks for such public service programs as baseball's world series or a U.S. presidential speech.

Mr. Nowlan said it would be better to let the board of broadcast governors exercise its intended authority on the matter. No station could operate as part of a network unless authorized by the board and no network could operate in Canada unless controlled by Canadians.

"I cannot believe," Mr. Nowlan said, "that the board will be granting licences of that nature (participation in American networks)—certainly not in the immediate future."

DIFFER ON APPOINTMENTS

The Liberals failed on two bids to have the two top CBC executive posts filled, not by the government as the bill proposes, but on the recommendation of the CBC board of directors.

Then they sought to ensure that the two officers—the president and vice-president—would hold office "during good behavior" instead of "during pleasure" of the cabinet as proposed.

Mr. Pickersgill said that with the bill as it now stands the government could put "a couple of its creatures" in the two top CBC offices and remove them at any moment if they "displeased" the government.

Mr. Nowlan said that was "nonsense" and any government which tried to make changes of the appointments in the middle of the two officers' seven-year terms "would be going a long way."

Red Movements On Land And Sea Indicate Invasion

Communists Continue Heavy Quemoy Barrages

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Communist shore guns kept up their attacks on the Quemoy island group today as Nationalist intelligence sources reported Red land and sea movements which they interpreted as a prelude to an invasion attempt.

A defence ministry spokesman said the Reds battered Quemoy with more than 16,000 shells in the 19 hours before dawn and that sporadic shelling continued through the daylight hours.

The pattern of shelling appeared to have changed since the saturation attack Saturday and Sunday. The spokesman said Red gunners now are shipping from area to area throughout the Quemoy islands, just off the coast of mainland China.

MAY KNOW STRONGPOINTS

Nationalist authorities declined to speculate on the shifting tactics. But observers felt it could mean the Communists think they know the strongest of the Quemoy defences and are trying to knock them out prior to an invasion attempt.

The fact that the Communists have expended more than 100,000 rounds of shells added weight to the belief that an invasion attempt is imminent.

Rear-Admiral Liu Hoh-tu, spokesman for the defence ministry, said: "There is no question in our minds that the Communists intend to try an invasion sooner or later. The heavier the shelling barrages, plus the intensified building of the mainland areas strongly indicate sooner."

Meanwhile Nationalist and United States planes today conducted joint air defence exercises over the coast of Formosa. An announcement by the U.S.-Formosan defence command gave no details.

The official Central News Agency quoted intelligence sources as saying a Red amphibious assault against the Tan Islands between Quemoy and the Chinese mainland would be highly possible next month as a test of full moon and high tides would aid landing craft operations.

The news agency, quoting defence sources, gave this picture of the buildup:

From 30 to 40 warships of the Communist East Sea Fleet, 60 to 70 miles north of the Matsus and are being massed in Swatow Bay, less than 50 miles from Quemoy.

MARINES IN AREA

Two divisions of Chinese marines—which is the first wave of troops leading an invasion attempt—are also reported to be in the same area and presumably are prepared to board the fleet.

Trainloads of ammunition are being sent to key artillery areas only five to 10 miles from the coast from Quemoy.

Meanwhile, Nationalist Foreign Minister Hsiao Shao Ku expressed gratification that President Eisenhower had underlined the importance of the offshore islands with the security of Formosa and the Pescadores. He told his press conference Wednesday Quemoy and Matsu were more important to Formosa's defence than they were three years ago.

Seize 30 Pounds Of Opium Valued At $1,500,000

NEW YORK (AP) — City and federal narcotics officials today estimated the opium valued at $1,500,000 in the illicit market Wednesday night. Six men were arrested, all Chinese.

The agents had a tip that 30 pounds of pure opium had been smuggled ashore last Sunday by three seamen from a freighter that docked at Baltimore.

The trio made a beat to New York on Tuesday. Agents tailed them here and then, using shortwave radio to keep tab on them, followed them to an apartment.

Raiding that, the officers nabbed the seamen and two other men. The opium, still in its packages, had been tossed under the bed.

The merchant seamen said they bought the opium in Calcutta for $5,000. They were booked on charges of possession of narcotics with intent to sell.

He said the current annual budget of $37,000,000 for such grants will be increased by $8,- 500,000 to $25,600,000, effective immediately.

NOWLAN SAYS CBC FACING HUGE FINANCIAL STRAIN

Many Requests Come In for Equipment

OTTAWA (CP) — For the third straight day, parliamentary thoughts have dwelt on the problems of Canadian radio and television.

Following the two-day debate which saw Commons approval of legislation setting up a new board of governors to regulate the broadcasting system, members spent part of Wednesday on tax collection and tariff administration. Then they turned to the manifold worries of the publicly-owned CBC.

The CBC is faced with a tremendous problem," said Revenue Minister Nowlan, the minister responsible.

REQUESTS FROM ALL OVER

"It has moneys which, though large in total amount, are small when one thinks of the number of requests from all over Canada for power relays, new studios and things of that kind." Mr. Nowlan went on to point out. In discussion of CBC spending estimates, MPs variously criticized and praised the Corporation's operations. MPs from Montreal criticized the quality of programs originating there as "not up to the standard of our cultural justice." It led to the jailing of three persons in Montreal.

The grand jury probe will touch on possible Treasury Department connection, arson, a suspected shakedown racket and the mysterious circumstances which made a human torch of Kierdorf.

Mrs. Kierdorf, 32, died Dec. 31, 1952, told police that her former husband, Lejeune Hirsiman, owner of Kierdorf's boarding before he stumbled into a Pontiac hospital charred almost beyond recognition.

Despite their divorce, the Kierdorfs remained friendly enough to occupy the same house.

TOLD OF BURNING

She said he learned of the burning by telephone the night of Aug. 2. Thomas Kierdorf, Frank's ex-convict uncle, Frank, 56, died Aug. 7.

Although the dying Frank told police two strangers took him out at gunpoint and set him afire, police believe he was burned when an explosion backfired.

A few hours before Frank found his wife Inez in the hospital, a dry cleaning establishment burned at 2,500 Cass, Detroit, where Hirsiman's said it was set afire.

Algerian Saboteur Trapped Waist-Deep in Burning Oil

PARIS (Reuters)—An Algerian nationalist was killed and another burned severely early today as saboteurs blew up five more storage tanks in defiance of the threat of "fierce" action by the French government to repress violence.

One terrorist was shot by a police guard as he fled from the fire and died later in hospital. The other was trapped waist-deep in flaming oil and was taken to hospital in critical condition.

The raid occurred shortly after midnight at Petit - Quevilly, a Rouen suburb.

The fire was controlled within an hour.

Police in the Rouen region started rounding up Algerians and three top road blocks to check cars leaving the region.

It was the fourth attack in three days ago. Algerian saboteurs set fire to three oil depots in southern France, destroying an estimated 4,000,000 gallons of gasoline at Marseilles, Algrone and Bordeaux.

Four policemen were shot dead in attacks on Paris police stations the same day. Four more were killed Tuesday night.

Special secret security measures went into force throughout France on Wednesday.

Soldiers and police were assigned to guard key centres of industry, transportation and communication.

Police say the terrorism was organized by special shock groups of the Algerian liberation movement who were trained "to carry war to France." Algerian Moslems have been fighting French troops in Algeria for almost four years.

Police raided North African district of Paris during the night and by morning 2,000 Algerians had been taken in for questioning.

Bitter Divorcee Gives Lead In Probe Into Human Torch

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The bitter divorcee whose divorce gave authorities the lead they wanted said she was Wednesday day for a grand jury investigation into the burning of Treasury Department Frank Kierdorf.

Attorney General Paul L. Adams said a statement by Mrs. Iris Harrelson gave against her ex-husband "indicates that was a murder rather than a no-true justice." It led to the jailing three persons in Montreal.

The grand jury probe will touch on possible Treasury Department connection, arson, a suspected shakedown racket and the mysterious circumstances which made a human torch of Kierdorf.

Mrs. Harrelson, 32, told police that her former husband, Lejeune Hirsiman, owner of Kierdorf's boarding before he stumbled into a Pontiac hospital charred almost beyond recognition.

Despite their divorce, the Kierdorfs remained friendly enough to occupy the same house.

Doctor States Dirt on Neck Sign of Health

LONDON (Reuters) — A doctor spoke up today in defence of little boys with dirty necks. He said mothers' efforts are overly conscientious about soap and water.

Dr. Hedley Flack, editor of the monthly medical journal Family Doctor, said a "high water" mark around a boy's neck is the brand of good health.

He said the boys seem to "inherit a protective and universal dermatological truth" — that an important element in health is dirt.

"Dirt is the skin's own protective layer of grease, and this should not be disturbed too frequently by washing.

"A tidemark around the neck is the dirt that has been responsible for any irritation — except in those who attach too much importance to adult standards," Dr. Flack said.

Liberals, CCF, Says They Won't Contest Ridings

TORONTO (CP) — Acclamation of Progressive Conservative candidates was expected today in the Ontario election as the deadline for nominations passed. Provincial by-elections called for Lansdowne and East Grey.

A Liberal spokesman said his party would enter a candidate in only if the CCF did and a CCF spokesman said his party isn't interested.

Ontario's assistant election officer, Thomas Brandiss, was awaiting word from returning officers.

"My understanding is that they have only Progressive Conservative nominations and aren't expecting any others," he said.

Conservative candidate in Hastings East is Lloyd Harrison Phillips, of Actinolite, electric service station and restaurant owner. The Liberal candidate is Joseph Emile Gomme of Almonte, 46-year-old lumber yard owner.

By-elections were called for Sept. 11 in the two ridings after Agriculture Minister Robert Lawson in Hastings East and the death of Dr. J. A. McCue in Lansdowne.

The vacancies left party standings in the Ontario legislature at 82 Conservatives, 11 Liberals and three CCF.

Provincial Organizer Jim Scott said his party had candidates ready but would be entered only if there were other opposition candidates.

CCF Provincial Secretary Ken Bryden said "we decided it would be a waste of time contesting those two ridings."

Beavers at CNE Dam Stream Into Duck Pond

TORONTO (CP)—Ducks and beavers had a noisy battle Wednesday over water rights at the Canadian National Exhibition.

They inhabit adjoining cages at the Ontario department of agriculture exhibit, where a stream flows through the beaver cage and into the one occupied by the ducks.

Keepers found the three beavers had built a dam and shut off the flow. The ducks, sitting on their nests, were not pleased by protests. The dam was promptly demolished, at least for the time being.

Conservation officer John Hunter said the beavers are the stars of the show. But alas, they can be a bit of a nuisance.

60 Escape Death When Airliner Falls in Flames

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Sixty persons escaped death when a Northwest Airlines plane crash - landed and caught fire in flames into a farmyard.

At least 50 required hospital treatment. Among the passengers was Representative Don Magnuson (R-Minnesota). All are said to be reported critically injured.

The 56 passengers struggled to safety through a hole in the fuselage as flames raged through the starboard engine and came to rest 30 feet from a farmhouse. It ripped through a cornfield and nearly struck three farm buildings.

The flight, the Silver Dollar No. 537, originated in Washington D.C., and stopped at Pittsburgh and Detroit and Milwaukee before arriving here.

The plane took fire just after leaving the runway and skidded through a cornfield on coming down. Then it struck a garage, granary and shed on the Lyle Christian Farm.

Passengers unstrapped their safety belts and crawled through the flaming plane to the hole caused when a wing tore off. Some stopped to take their luggage.

Ottawa Fears Russian Submarines Could Duplicate U.S. Polar Trips

OTTAWA (CP) — The voyages of the American submarines Nautilus and Skate under the Arctic icecap have increased Canadian naval headquarters apprehensions about Russian submarines.

Naval headquarters of course, has noted the feats, because it will obtain a good deal of new under — Arctic information from the U.S. Navy.

But at the same time the voyages have put naval planners trying to figure ways of defending Canada's harbors — and inland cities — from submarine attack.

The problem was bad enough before the Nautilus and Skate cruises. But now it has been proven that ice is no barrier to the atomic submarine.

Thus the navy faces the enormous problem of how to prevent subs from approaching Canada across the polar ice and slipping down Hudson and James Bays to a point only 600 miles north of Toronto.

The feeling here is that though Russia probably has no atomic submarines now, it can build them if the U.S. can. And Soviet advances in the field of missiles are already known.

The navy in recent years has been stressing the anti-submarine, missile-launching subs pose for Canadian cities, inland as well as coastal.

Naval officers believe that the submarine holds a greater threat for North America than the manned bomber or even the intercontinental ballistic missile.

This presents the government with a difficult problem. Should it afford to bolster bodily air and submarine defences?

This question means that if the government decides to order the supersonic CF-105 aircraft for production it may not be able to afford — without an increase in taxes — the escort and anti-sub destroyers that the navy wants. Even the CF-105 program by itself might mean higher taxes.

Algerian Rebels Blow up Train

ALGIERS Reuters—A French military train carrying troops and munitions blew up on a mine between El Kantara and Biskra in Eastern Algeria today.

Many of the munitions exploded after several coaches caught fire. First reports said two soldiers were killed and 20 others injured.

French military authorities here said 40 Algerian nationalist rebels had been "put out of action" in engagements during the last 24 hours.

FIFTEEN FIREMEN INJURED IN RING OF ARSON FIRES

All Reported Within Eight-Block Radius

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen firemen were injured Wednesday night while battling — ring of six downtown fires believed touched off by an arsonist.

The fires—and one false alarm—were reported within a two-hour period and blazed within an eight-block radius.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke and carried from one of two fires on the West Don Roadway. One fireman was badly cut in another fire on Trinity Street. The five men were taken to hospital for treatment. Eleven were given inhalator treatment for smoke.

LARGEST IN LUMBER YARD

The largest blaze was set shortly before 11 p.m. in the Riverdale Lumber Company yards on Broadview Avenue at Queen Street. The first fire was reported at 8 p.m. in a salvage yard on the West Don Roadway. The second fire broke out down the street in a waste paper company. District chief Pat Colgan said a fireman's smoke was there and given treatment.

The last fire was set in an office building on Trinity Street, about an hour after the first alarm.

SET UP CORDON

At 10.10 p.m. someone reported a fire at Church and Adelaide streets but it turned out to be a false alarm. Then 40 minutes later the lumber company fire was reported. Police blocked traffic on the streets to make a cordon. Within 10 minutes fire-men were called to a blaze in the Canada Packers on the East Don Roadway.

The last fire was set in another salvage yard on Eastern Avenue.

Colgan was estimated as slight in all but the lumber yard fire.

Fire Chief Leonard Leigh asked for the arson squad to begin an investigation into the fires.

The blaze at the lumber yard set fire through the wood and into fresh lumbers stored in a long one-storey building. It took firemen almost an hour to bring the fire under control.

BREAK FOR WOMEN

MacMillan suggested in traffic court Wednesday that police officers refrain from mentioning the age of persons charged with minor offences unless it is necessary. "It seems that women were an age barrier," he said. "I like to have their age mentioned any more than I do. I think we can do that much for them."

Requests Court Permit No Delay At Little Rock

Supreme Court Convenes On School Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today urged the Supreme Court to permit no delay in integrating Negroes in schools in Little Rock, Ark.

In a brief filed with the court here before an extraordinary special session called for a Little Rock showdown, the government asked that all present legal barriers to immediate integration be struck down.

The justice department gave support to a petition by counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The NAACP has asked the court to remove two legal barriers to immediate resumption of integration in Little Rock's Central High School.

The barriers are:

The order by the U.S. District Court in Little Rock permitting a two-and-a-half year delay in integration.

A ruling by the Court of Appeals in St. Louis staying its order which would end the 1½-year delay. The stay was granted pending a decision by the Supreme Court.

FIRST RULING RIGHT

The government's brief, filed by Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin, said the original decision of the Court of Appeals was right and the 2½-year delay was clearly correct.

The government brief, filed in response to an invitation from the Supreme Court for the justice department to take part in the case, said the high court has full power to review the relief asked by the NAACP. It said further that such relief should be granted.

The Supreme Court in its May, 1954, decision calling for the end of school segregation "with all deliberate speed" specified that constitutional rights of some citizens may not be suspended or ignored because of antagonism to others.

"If constitutional rights could be so suspended, they would amount to little."

The Supreme Court itself had rejected the claim that a restriction upon the rights of Negroes might be justified as a means of avoiding racial disturbance.

The government's argument went before the high court in an extraordinary setting—one of the few times it has agreed to pass on issues of transcendent importance on pressing immediately.

A year ago Central High was the scene of anti-integration riots that led President Eisenhower to order court-ordered integration. Now again hangs over Little Rock.

The court is given now the op-

Marines Find Kissing Bride Is Dangerous

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It didn't bother the bridegroom when the wedding guests kissed the bride. But now it has the health department worried.

It was discovered Wednesday that Marlene Mansfield, 21, was suffering from infectious hepatitis when she and marine private Charles Varvais, 20, were married Sunday in nearby San Pedro.

The health department warned the wedding guests — including 60 marines — that if they kissed the bride, they should report to health authorities immediately for an injection of gamma globulin.

Reds Recover Dogs Fired to 132-Mile Height

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has recovered Russia has achieved an altitude record of 294 miles for single-stage rockets.

The current issue of the monthly magazine also says that a new type of rocket launched in May, 1957, carried 4,850 lbs. to an altitude of 132 miles, and adds:

"Both instruments and experimental dogs were brought back safely to earth from that height."

Yugoslavia Fields Scorched by Sun

LONDON (Reuters) — From the soggy fields of Ireland to the sun-scorched crops of Yugoslavia, Europe's farmers have been in European farmers.

Losses running into the millions of dollars are predicted unless weather extremes are relieved by another fine week or two.

Ireland fears the worst potato shortage since the famine in the 1840's. Farmers in the west, surveying waterlogged crops and stormbattered grain, are hoping for some sunshine to save the harvest.

Countries along the western European seaboard generally reported serious agricultural conditions.

The worst storms in memory devastated crops from farmlands in Austria, while Czechoslovakia called in paratroopers to save the harvest from floods in the north of north Bohemia.

Violent changed tactics in Yugoslavia, producing a drought that ruined hopes for a bumper harvest.

Adding to the gloom are long-term unfavorable weather forecasts.

Governments concerned with import quotas reported that in some harvests could be delayed for as long as six weeks.

While Rains Soak Crops in Ireland

In Ireland, rains have made it impossible to harvest the crop of potatoes.

In England, Sir James Turner, president of the National Farmers' Union, says that if the wet weather continues, farmers will face one of its most serious crises in recent years.

The grain harvest already is three to four weeks behind schedule, in the north, farmers have finished only 10 per cent of the crop in the west, usually completed by this time.

In some sections, wheat is reported shedding in the ear and the potato crop has been hard hit.

Rain and overcast skies in Britain forced agricultural officials to slash an optimistic prediction by a record 2,000,000-ton wheat crop down to 9,000,000 tons.

The harvest in Sweden has been hit in the central districts for weeks because of heavy rains. Farmers also fear for the new weather, is facing another farming threat from a weed that is attacking all grain crops and causing extensive damage.

West German farmers need several weeks of sun to bring crop quotas up to standard, while in East Germany thousands of troops have been ordered into the fields to help in the harvest.

Russian Denies Any Moon Rocket Attempt Made

AMSTERDAM (Reuters) — Russia has not yet tried to launch a moon rocket, a Soviet scientist said today.

Professor Leonid Sedov of the Moscow Academy of Sciences said: "I can state definitely that there have been no attempts to launch a rocket to the moon from our country as yet."

Sedov is leader of the Soviet delegation to the International Astronautical Congress being held here. He was answering questions about a West German report that the Soviet Union had made three unsuccessful attempts to launch a moon rocket this month.

Work is going ahead at the new federal building at the corner of Pinnacle and Station Streets although it may seem to the casual observer there has been little progress since erection of structural steel earlier this year. Flooring is now being placed and plumbing lines for the million and a quarter dollar building are being installed. Concrete flooring slabs, manufactured locally at Wilson Concrete, are shown being lifted into place by cranes. Electrical conduit and plumbing lines are run through hollow flooring slabs which vary in length according to structural steel girders. Bricking and exterior finish is still quite a way in the future.

Family Picnic For Ketchesons Will Be Held

An important item of business will be brought out for discussion and action at the picnic gathering of descendants of the Ketcheson family on Saturday August 30th at Frankford tourist park.

During the past three years there has been under preparation a genealogical history of the direct and indirect descendants of this fine old United Empire Loyalist family. This work has now reached a point where the committee in charge feels it should report to a representative gathering and obtain endorsement of the proposal to have the work published in an economical convenient publication.

Incidentally it is quite possible there may be more individuals direct descendants at this gathering. When one considers the number of families inter-married with the Ketchesons, one is startled by the number of indirect descendants each of whom will be interested in the publication of such a history book. It has been indicated by the number enquiring about the publication.

It is hoped a goodly number will turn out on Saturday for this get-together.

Firemen Fight To Save House For Burning

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) —Firemen had to put out a fire Wednesday in order to set one next week.

The house in a block being razed had been left standing so that the fire department would burn it down in a fire-fighting demonstration.

It caught fire a week early—while workmen were burning scrap lumber — and the firemen had to save it.

Dr. E. Lawrence Nuclear Pioneer Dies in Calif.

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, 57, nuclear pioneer and Nobel Prize winner, died Wednesday night after surgery at Palo Alto hospital.

The director of the University of California's radiation laboratory had joined other scientists at Geneva in an international conference on scientific detection of nuclear explosions and was forced by illness to fly home last month.

He entered the hospital Monday on Aug. 10 after an acute attack of ulcerative colitis and was transferred to Palo Alto for the operation.

INVENTED CYCLOTRON

Lawrence in 1930 invented the atom-shattering cyclotron, an instrument for converting one element into another. His first one cost $25.

He built one of the world's great scientific laboratories around his cyclotrons on the university's Berkeley campus. The instruments played a key role in developing the first nuclear bomb.

From the laboratory, which Lawrence has directed since 1936, came numerous discoveries of the properties of matter, new substances to fight disease and promote agriculture, science and industry.

Lawrence won the Nobel Prize in physics in 1939 for his cyclotron discovery.

BARES ATOM SECRETS

Cyclotrons have been the workhorses of scientists searching out the atom's secrets. With them, Dr. Edward McMillan, a co-worker of Lawrence, produced the first neptunium, which automatically turns into plutonium, a successor to uranium 235 in A-bomb production.

Lawrence's laboratory also isolated tritium — triple weight hydrogen — a step in producing the first hydrogen bomb.

Lawrence was born in Canton, S.D., on Aug. 8, 1901, the son of Carl Gustavus Lawrence, a teacher, and Gunda Jacobson Lawrence, daughter of a Norwegian immigrant.

A boyhood interest in crystalret radio led him into physics.

He built his first cyclotron at South Dakota's first radio station and graduated from there in 1922. He took a master's degree at the University of Minnesota and his doctorate at Yale.

Metro Police Unrest Seen In Recent Moves

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Integration of Metropolitan Toronto police forces is meeting with opposition and has brought resignations, the latest that of a North York district inspector with 23 years' service.

The newspaper says Inspector Dalton Mercer has informed Deputy Chief John Harrison he will resign rather than take a transfer to the Court Street station in Toronto, where he would be on shift work.

The Star adds:

"The transfer of inspectors from the suburbs, into Toronto raises another beef among senior members of the city force. The sergeants feel that their chances for promotion to inspector will be cut down by every inspector brought in."

PLAN 30 CENTINDE

It quotes Metropolitan Police Chief James P. Mackey as saying the integration will go ahead.

"We have to get the job done and integrate the departments. The government of the force I am calling the shots as I see them."

The police forces of the city of Toronto and 12 adjacent suburbs making up the metropolitan area were merged in 1957.

"At the time the police departments were federated," the Star says, "the status quo of the forces was retained for the best interests of harmony, but Magistrate C. O. Bick, police commissioner, is said to have arrived at the decision that now is the time to integrate the men, constables and officers."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market, after advancing for two sessions, was hit by profit-taking today in moderate morning trading.

Base metals were the hardest hit, they lost almost a point on index. Western oils were down one-half while golds were off a very decimal points.

International Nickel, dipping 1¼ at 81 was mainly responsible for the industrial loss as well as contributing to the easing in base metals. The stock is listed on both indexes.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 926,000 shares compared with Wednesday's 638,000 at the same hour. Industrials showed more gains than losses, but most advances were around ¼ point.

4 Sisters Between 80 and 90 Assemble for Reunion Dinner

TRENTON — Four sisters, the youngest 80 and the oldest 90, met at the home of Mrs. Ross Milligan, 15 Richard St., Trenton, for a reunion dinner, on occasion which takes place every year although not always at the same home.

The sisters are Mrs. Ida Ham, 80, of Cobourg; Mrs. Martha Green, 82, of Trenton; Mrs. Elsie King, 88, of St. Ola and Mrs. Alma Rosebush, 90, of Trenton. All are in very good health and very active.

As Mrs. Milligan said yesterday, "if you could have seen the dinner they ate you would not have needed to ask that question."

Not present for the gathering was a brother, German Barnard, 87, of Coe Hill. Mr. Barnard is also in good health and most active despite his age. He still builds boats and house furniture in his own shop and he still drives his own car.

The women are all widows now and were born at St. Ola, near Bancroft, where their father and mother cleared their own land and settled.

Mrs. Ham lives by herself at her home in St. Ola and still puts in a garden and tends it each year. She does a little nursing for her friends and in her lifetime has helped bring 30 babies into the world. She has seven children of her own and 11 grandchildren. As yet she has no great grandchildren.

Mrs. Green, who has been deaf since she was six weeks old and attended the institute in Belleville, has three children of her own, 9 grand children and 11 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. King has one child, two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Mrs. Rosebush has two children, two grandchildren and six great-grandchildren and lives on Henry St. in Trenton.

Mrs. Green has been staging at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ross Milligan, for the past few years and it was there the dinner was held yesterday.

The four sisters had been to see their brother about a week ago and while there he wanted to take them all fishing.

Mrs. Ham said they loved to get together each year and usually manage to do so each summer.

Vain Effort Made to Save Child's Life

TRENTON — Tom Alexander, Jr., three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Alexander of 61 Shuter Street, Trenton died on the way to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto yesterday afternoon following a serious relapse of an ailment the child was born with.

Born, a blue baby, the tot was taken to Chicago when only one year old for surgery to the arteries leading to his heart and which could only be done by surgeons in the Chicago Hospital. Since the operation the child had been improving in health steadily.

Two days ago however, the child began having a relapse and yesterday Dr. W. S. Bailey made arrangements to have the child admitted to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto.

He gave the tot a needle to take away the pain and his father started out with him for Toronto in the family car.

The baby died on the way. About Scarboro, they were given a police escort the rest of the way to the hospital.

Besides his parents the child is survived by a sister, Lynn, 16 months old.

Now resting at the Weaver Funeral Home the funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Makarios Calls For UN Action About Cyprus

ATHENS (Reuters) — Greek Cypriot Leader Archbishop Makarios called today on the United Nations to intervene in Cyprus and restore peace on the island.

The archbishop, leader of the Cypriot Union-with-Greece movement, said Greek Cypriots will fight at all costs implementation of Britain's plan for the island.

"We have no more confidence in the British government, whose policy has been proved insincere and of bad faith," Makarios told a press conference.

BRITISH PLAN SCORED

Britain's plan is aimed solely at the total conquest of Greek Cypriot freedom, he said.

Britain's seven-year trial "partnership" plan invites Turkey and Greece to share in Cyprus' administration and establishes communal legislatures for the rival Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

The archbishop concluded an 11-page statement by saying the time has come for "substantial intervention by the United Nations for termination of the Cyprus drama and restoration of peace on the island."

On Cyprus' more than 1,000 British troops threw a cordon around Morphou village at dawn today in one of the biggest anti-terrorist operations in west Cyprus this year.

Soldiers imposed a strict curfew on the village 25 miles west of Nicosia, and began search operations.

Secrecy surrounded the operation but it was reported that 15 suspects had been arrested by mid-morning. There were unconfirmed reports that bombs and arms had been found in the village.

Cypriot sources said those arrested included several Greek-Cypriot policemen.

REQUEST COURT

portunity to clarify what it meant when it ordered desegration of schools "with all deliberate speed."

The court laid down the mandate in May, 1955, a little more than a year after its decision that racial segregation in public schools violates the American constitution.

The Arkansas legislature has passed in a special session bills empowering Governor Orval Faubus to close any or all Arkansas schools rather than permit the federal government or courts to force integration. Virginia already has similar laws.

President Eisenhower told a press conference Wednesday the shutting down of schools "would be a very terrible outcome" to the integration situation. He predicted it would supply "a whole basketful of litigation."

MUST'N'T MOVE FAST

Eisenhower went on record as believing the mingling of Negroes and whites in schools should go along more slowly to give "reason and sense and education" time to win acceptance of racial integration.

Faubus and Governor East Long of Louisiana applauded the Eisenhower remarks while Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said it was incredible that Eisenhower should have concluded 4½ years after the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation that the pace should be slower.

A bid for a 2½-year breathing spell at Central High was conferred Wednesday by Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas. Fulbright also filed with the court a brief and a motion seeking permission to do so.

DOUBLE PETITION

Technically what is before the court now is a double-barrelled petition filed by the NAACP.

It asks the court to set aside an order of U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Ley of Little Rock. This was the original order for a 2½-year halt to integration at Central High.

The NAACP petition also asks the court to set aside the action of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals of St. Louis in withholding application of Judge Leverting Lemley's order.

The court stayed the reversal until the Supreme Court could act on an appeal of the ruling by the Little Rock school board. The court said such an appeal must be filed within 30 days from April 21 instead of the usual three months.

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council estimates that 420 persons may be killed in U. S. traffic accidents during the long Labor Day weekend. That is 70 deaths more than might be expected to occur during a non-holiday period at this time of the year.

A WISE MOVE

Canada is reported to be considering increasing her contribution to the Colombo Plan by as much as 50 per cent.

If she does, we think most Canadians will approve.

It is reported that the decision will likely be discussed at the Commonwealth trade and economic conference, opening in Montreal on Sept. 15. There are two reasons for choosing this conference for the announcement. Canada is reported to hope that other Commonwealth countries will follow its example. Canadian authorities are also reported to view the increased aid as a means to an eventual increase in Commonwealth trade, by creating a bigger demand for capital goods which could be supplied from the more advanced producers, in other words by those "have" countries which would contribute assistance to the less developed Commonwealth countries.

There is every reason why there should be a general recognition that material needs can result from such programs as the Colombo Plan.

At the same time, it is to be hoped that self-interest alone never becomes the yardstick for such contributions. To judge the amount of assistance which should be given solely on this basis is to invite a short-term view. The day will inevitable come, if the underveloped countries receive the amount of assistance which they need to improve the lot of their inhabitants, when these countries will become competitors, as well as customers, of the donor nations.

This, though, far from being an eventuality to be avoided, should be the objective sought. Not until India, Pakistan, Burma and the other lands of Asia have a thriving heavy-goods industry of their own, capable of supplying much of their own needs for capital goods, will the Commonwealth be as healthy, economically speaking, as is desirable.

A commonwealth which had conquered poverty would be an immeasurably important contribution to the peace and welfare of the whole world.

CHINA'S OFF-SHORE ISLANDS

The Chinese Communists appear to be ready to make an attempt to capture Quemoy and other off-shore islands.

What has led them to the decision that the present is an opportune time to move against these islands is not clear.

The wonder is not, though, that the attempt now seems likely to be made, but that it has been so long delayed.

The manner in which the Chinese Nationalists have used these off-shore islands to hamper shipping bound to and from the ports of Red China would be intolerable to any sovereign nation.

The Nationalists' attacks have not been confined to ships owned by Communist China. British ships have been attacked.

There is no question but that the Communists possess the military power to wrest these islands from the control of the Nationalists, providing the United States does not intervene.

Such intervention, though, would be unwise. Not only Communist countries, but the neutral nations of Asia would regard it as unwarranted interference. Even many of the staunchest friends of the U.S., perhaps including Britain, would look on it with disfavor.

Communist seizure of the off-shore islands would constitute no real threat to the Nationalists on Formosa as long as the U.S. Seventh Fleet shields that island from invasion.

If the U.S. desires these off-shore islands to remain under Chiang's control, it should have taken the only realistic step which might have robbed the Communists of a legitimate excuse for attacking them.

That would have been to force Chiang Kai-Shek to cease using them as bases from which to attack China-bound ships.

RADIOACTIVE RUBBER BALL

The problem of how to locate a partial blockage in a pumping main 5,000 feet long was recently solved by the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority. They prepared a radioactive rubber ball which was pumped through the main, and its progress followed by a Geiger counter. When the ball was stopped, the blockage was found. Easy!

A SUGGESTION

If you've grumbled through the day
Without driving care away,
If in spite of all your grouches
Troubles on you have kept rolling,
If regardless of your kicking
And your cussing, they're still sticking,
Why not switch your tactics,
mister,
And try smiling?
If your frowning will not chase
'em
Why not grin a bit, and face
'em?
If your worries seem to like it
When your meanness they are stilling,
If your gloomy disposition
Doesn't better your condition,
Why not switch your methods,
mister,
And try smiling?
If your constant whining,
swearing,
Does not better your wayfaring,
If you find your foes no kinder
If they keep right on assailing,
Quite regardless of your wailing,
Why not switch your style of working
And try smiling?

Elephant Expert Dies

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Thousands of people throughout the English-speaking world will regret to hear that "Elephant Bill" is dead. He was Lt. Col. James Howard Williams, born at Lostwithiel, Cornwall, and there he died some days ago at the age of 68.

"Elephant Bill" was born on a farm and died on his own farm in Cornwall but for a large part of his life he was concerned with elephants. At the age of 17 he joined the Devonshire Regiment during the First World War, and served in Egypt, Mesopotamia (now Iraq) and India. Campaigning in these countries brought him in contact with animals of all kinds, and with his almost natural instinct, what to do and what not to do. He knew how to handle elephants collectively and individually; knew when they were sick and why and how to treat them. He became an authority on elephant diseases.

For the last three years, in command of his own elephant corps, he was a lieutenant-colonel with the forces fighting the Japanese serving as chief veterinary officer on the staff of the commander of the Fourteenth Army.

His exploits included guiding forty-five elephants and hundreds of carts through 8,000-foot mountains from Burma to India, and building roads and bridges for the passage of his animals. The elephants under Colonel Williams' command helped to make possible the exodus of Indian settlers and British military from Burma after the Japanese onslaught from Burma.

Such friendships developed between man and beast, and readers of "Elephant Lill" gained a real interest in knowing about the personalities of elephants. After writing a book telling but elephants and their mahouts for 23 years, "Elephant Bill" found himself somewhat lost with horses and cows on a quiet English farm.

Eisenhower's Stand Right

Windsor Star

Some may think President Dwight D. Eisenhower guilty of exaggerated speech when he indicates defiance of court decisions, but the U.S. chief, Mr. Eisenhower would be anarchy, if, literally, that is what it would be.

A dictionary definition of anarchy is: "A state of society without law or any law or supreme authority." Defiance of the Supreme Court of the United States would come within this definition insofar as the disregard of law is concerned.

It would be, of course, anarchy in a particular, local sense. But if it were allowed to spread, as it would, it quickly would spread to other Southern areas.

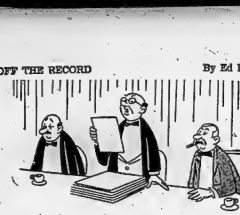
The segregation issue is a large and intense one in itself, but a small issue when compared to the much greater one to which it has unfortunately alluded. The Little Rock authorities defy the law of the land, as interpreted by the highest court in the land! Can they defy the Government? If it defies the Government does law?

There may be legitimate differences of opinion about the South, as to the wisdom of the desegregation ruling. But that is beside the major point.

If one area can defy one law, it opens the way for other areas to defy any law. That would lead to anarchy in the ultimate sense.

This issue really was decided by the Civil War. That was the question whether any state, or states, could defy the central government even to the point of secession.

If a part of a nation cannot secede, then it ensures it must abide by the laws of the land of which it is a component.



The constitution of the United States is one of the grandest of all human documents. Deliberate defiance of it cannot be tolerated, all the more so if the defiance is organized by elected officials.

No president of the United States could take any other position, else the phrase "United States" would be a complete misnomer.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE FREE MIND

Andre Gide has added his comments on the essays of Montaigne, adding much to their true and honest substance. Gide is a good reading for those that the commentator has helped to reveal Montaigne to his own words, and he wanted to be revealed. "No mind," said Gide, "could be less mutilating than his. He let it free to play and run wild as it pleased."

How few there are who want to follow in the footsteps of Montaigne, to see how we might wish to have the courage to be as free in mind expression and in personal revelations as this unusual man. His book is actually an autobiography, and to record it so carefully, and so true that before the final word was written, he stated that if he could turn back the calendar and live a different life, he would not care to!

Such a life as that of Montaigne's is most interesting, and in spots, quite admirable, but for me I would choose differently though my admiration of him in character would remain. The first essay he essays came out in 1580, later ones adding some six hundred pages of discussion.

Emerson commented that Montaigne "is the frankest and honestest of all writers," and he placed him in the highest place on alive Men with Plato, Goethe, Swedenborg, Shakespeare, a is Gide would add admirers, is it strange he had the readers that he did? And besides how could a book like this one e v e r have lasted so long and been so read by the greatest of writers if it had lacked substance and lily-whiteness. This is one book I often turn to for stimulation. The stiffid invites it, perhaps because it made from a mind that was a free, daring, and honest.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE DRINKING DRIVER

The coming weekend is always one of the most dangerous of the entire year. Many are killed on the highways, more are injured. Let it never be forgotten that alcohol is involved in just about fifty per cent of the highway fatalities. Why? Because alcohol anesthetizes the brain areas governing self-control and that leads people to take chances they would not otherwise take. Also alcohol slows down the physical reflexes and interferes with accuracy of control — hence, automobile calamities, accidents, and deaths.

The point as be illustrated by an amusing story told about a temperance lecturer in Ireland. "Whiskey," cried the speaker, "is the curse of Ireland. It makes you quarrel with your neighbors. It makes you shout at your friends. And what's more, it makes you miss him."

So there are obvious disadvantages if you plan any project in which self-control and alertness are necessary factors. And with the holiday weekend traditionally set for the next few days, what can be more important than that you should be well in control of himself and his machine? Grandstand thrillers fools often go berserk and kill and injure sober and well-behaved persons. There is little you can do, of course, to guard against that except stay off the highway.

And that might not be such a bad idea after all.

Who Wants To Volunteer?

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Canada has been offered a solution to rid it of one of its surpluses and at the same time a chance to strengthen its ties with the United States in the proposal that some of its excess of 200,000 single men be married off to wealthy, stock-owning American widows and divorcees, that is, if we read the Secretary of the Federation of Women Shareholders of America, Canadians may regain ownership of much of their industry by emigration from foreign possession.

Such a wholesale across-the-border matrimonial business would improve Canadian-American relations greatly, provided that each man had the heart to undertaking of his hands away from the bride's pocketbook. With more than one and-one-half million American widows and divorcees to choose from, there should not be too difficult to please.

It is, perhaps, a chilling thought to many men that the relentless march of industrial-ization has made strongholds has placed women in command of many of our business enterprises, but those are the hard, cold facts. It is also well known, but seldom said, that man is no longer king of his castle, but the woman who must be as proficient with kitchen gadgets as she is at carving the Sunday roast.

This being the case, the sacrifice we make of our single males in the interest of friendship is great, but it is one that in the end could make North Americans more one to one, both family, to would there be more bickering than ever?

Must Avoid Fishing War

Winnipeg Free Press

Iceland and the United Kingdom appear to be heading for a showdown in the fall of this month. Iceland has given notice that from September 1 she will keep all foreign fishing vessels at least 12 miles from her shores. Britain, whose fishermen have been among the rich fishing grounds near Iceland for centuries, has refused to recognize the 12-mile limit and has let it be known that British ships will continue to go to within four miles of the Icelandic coast. Armed naval vessels will be sent to escort the British trawlers. Their mission is to prevent the Icelandic Coast Guard regards as an unlawful attempt to interfere with British fishing rights on "the high seas".

The Icelanders, however, say that they will stand by their guns, even though their fleet of seven gunboats would be no match for the frigates and armed trawlers which will back up the British escort. Last week Iceland's minister of fisheries said he did not want war but to carry out her threat. But he warned that if she did it would be construed as an attack on Iceland.

Should that happen, Iceland would undoubtedly make her complaint of aggression to the United Nations, which she is a member. A decision on whether was aggression by the Iceland and the 12 mile limits are territorial waters, as Iceland claims, or whether they are not, as Britain claims, may be a matter for the Court of International Justice. In the meantime, although there might be some reluctance on the part of some other nations which depend on their catch — of the justice of Iceland's claim, there would be little sympathy with British action in sending warships to back it.

It is surely in the interest of both countries to find some method of settling the issue short with pending a legal decision. Such a compromise solution would have to permit British fishermen to continue, for the time being, to operate as they have been accustomed to be her own fisheries. That may not be easy.

When Iceland extended her fishing limits from three to four miles and Britain refused to accept the wider limit, the dispute dragged on for many years. But a settlement was eventually reached. There can be no hope now of such a peaceful settlement before the gunboats put in an appearance, but they should be made to establish some temporary modus vivendi that will enable them either side to abandoning its claim but does enable them to get by pending international arbitration.

"WONDER DRUGS" HELPFUL IN TREATING UNDULANT FEVER

"Dear Sir: What about undulant fever? My son, who was in the service, has it. Shots have helped him some but he doesn't seem able to shake it entirely. — F.F."

The disease has been reduced considerably, but it is still a distinct problem in the mid-western part of the country, mostly among farmers, meat handlers (butchers, packing house workers) and others who may come in contact with infected cows or goats, but at least in the cities we can be pretty sure that the milk is safe.

One name for the disease is brucellosis, but it is called undulant fever because of the fluctuating temperature that accompanies it, sometimes the fever is normal in the morning but raises in the evening.

Weakness, headaches, joint pains and a variety of other symptoms, the principal symptoms and, in women, it can cause infection in the Fallopian tubes. Also, the lymph nodes may become enlarged, in the neck, armpits or groin.

Sometimes the malady is rather difficult to diagnose. In an acute case when you can discover the germ in the bloodstream, your doctor can usually make a positive diagnosis.

In time the disease tends to "burn out" and the fever can also lapse into a chronic phase, which sounds like the old rheumatism of today. Then identifying it can be difficult, although naturally the fact that such problem involved if the disease was diagnosed while it was still acute.

REPETITION IS NECESSARY

The antibiotic "wonder drugs" have been useful in treating undulant. fever. The tetracycline drugs and possibly the use of streptomycin in injection constitute the best program of treatment today.

In return, once again, to the particular case under discussion today — what if we have to do one of those lingering chronic cases, repeated use in treatment where she visited friends. is necessary.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have had an offensive discharge from the navel since I was a child. I am seven years ago. Is this serious and is anything that can be done about it? — C.M.B.F."

There are several possibilities but most likely is some itself. Rather than put up with such a problem for years, have the operable diagnosed and corrected. Moderate surgery may be necessary or may not. That's the type of thing that needs to be looked at by a surgeon and must be looked at to be diagnosed. Neither I nor anyone else can diagnose from a description alone.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain a cornea transplant. Does the whole eye have to be taken from the deceased person, therefore causing disfigurement of the face? — Mrs. L. S."

Only a tiny bit of the cornea — the transparent covering of the eyeball — is used, of course. A whole eyeball is taken from a deceased person, however, able.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An old gentleman of my acquaintance takes a great deal of pleasure out of life. He does not mind looking at it.

He will look at it during t h e news broadcasts and commentaries. And he has one or two comedians and a couple of second-rate, non-owning singers whom he will faithfully keep track of during the week.

But his chief delight is turning on his television evening with great interest for the first five or six minutes, and the situation comedians, the challenge of t h e mystery, has been stated. Then he turns it off and goes to a walk, or sits in his garden.

"I'll never watch it again," says, "what the end of those cases was. And you can hardly blame what I am thinking. I was to care a hoot about them. In a world in which science has solved practically every riddle, in which mysteries are permitted to remain, I think it is a very valuable service to TV if somebody can contrive us with mysteries, dramas and tragic situations which, by the simple flick of a switch, can be made mysteries forever."

It is the unsolved mystery that appeals most to the human spirit.

Bowling News

One hundred and eight rinks of mixed doubles from intermediary points from Sarnia on the west to Ottawa on the east, assembled at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club on Wednesday for the annual Black Memorial tournament and when the rying had ceased shortly after ten o'clock, Ed Carswell of Oshawa and his wife were the top point getters, but only after a hot battle with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott of the Belleville Club, who only lost the first place spot by one point. Mr. Carswell had a total score of three games of 54 plus 10, while Mr. Elliott came up with a 54 point total but only had a plus of nine.

Twelve rinks from Belleville took part in the tournament but only one came home with a prize. Those who made the journey to the Lift Lock city were Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Edwards, Claude D. Tice and Mrs. Grace Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price, "Davey" Davison and Mrs. Carm Moti, "Skit" Vandervoort and Miss Margaret Fairairn, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Vince, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Watkin and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott.

The greens were in fairly good condition, the hospitality was superb and the bowling exceptionally keen as all the sharpshooters from around the district were on hand. The weather was ideal and a member of the Black Family distributed the prizes at the end of the day's play.

The mixed doubles tournament at Deseronto held on Wednesday was a decided success and of the four rinks from the local club that journeyed east, one of them, Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Fitzgibbon brought home the first prize for the best three - game score. A. Randell and Nora Dawson of the Deseronto Club won the two - game high score and Mr. and Mrs. William Wood also of Deseronto won the one-game high. For no win high Tom Warren and Dr. R. V. Hall were the winners. Other rinks to go from Belleville were George McGee and Mrs. Ken Smith, Ralph Tuck and Mrs. George Bell, and Wally Lavergne and Mrs. Addison Lloyd. The Tuck and Bell rink was beaten out of the two-game high score by a single point. All report an excellent afternoon under delightful weather conditions.

The John Shaw Memorial tournament at the local greens on Labor Day is shaping up into a grand affair. Orlo Smith, chairman of the committee in charge, was a busy man in Peterborough on Wednesday, collecting entries for the tourney and came away with six from the Peterborough Club with others to follow. Tournaments at Cobourg and Kingston on the same day may take a few entries but it is expected more than forty rinks will tee off on Monday afternoon. There will be two draws.

The tiger killed the female cheetah and critically mauled her mate. A hose and long poles were used to force the killer into a corner while two men went to the rescue of the cheetahs.

Neighbors Organize to Aid Hard-Luck Dutch Family After Third Loss by Fire

CAMPBELLFORD — Eleven members of a Dutch family, who came to this country from Holland six and a half years ago, and who have been dogged by bad luck ever since, are finding their faith in Canada and the Canadian people was not misplaced.

Last Thursday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Coens and seven of their nine children were left homeless when their farm home burned to the ground about seven miles north of Marmora. The family escaped with only the clothing they were wearing at the time.

Last February, the barn on the farm was lost by fire. The insurance on the house was cancelled by the insurance company after the barn burned.

A little over two years ago, the family lost its home by fire when living at Bonarlaw. On that occasion, there was $2,000 insurance on the contents.

The family came from Belleville, prior to which it lived in the Oshawa area.

FATHER WAS ILL

Mr. Coens used the $2,000 insurance money to make a down payment on a 600 acre farm north of Marmora, and had worked hard to pay off the mortgage. In two and a half years, he has decreased the mortgage from $7,500 to $2,500. Most of this time, he was either in hospital or incapacitated at home. Doctors last year removed three discs from his spine during a six month hospital stay, and this year he has been confined to hospital for two months. He must travel nearly 100 miles to Kingston once a week for treatment to his back.

While Mr. Coens was in hospital last year, the two oldest children, Leonard and Audrey bought and sowed grain, using the money from the sale of logs Mr. Coens had cut before being confined to hospital.

This year, he had to sell all his cattle to help pay his bills.

Last Thursday evening, the members of the family were watching television, when flames suddenly shot across the ceiling of a clothes closet. They managed to save only a washing machine and a television set. The house was completely destroyed. There was no insurance.

ORGANIZE HELP

A committee of three persons: the Rev. C. W. Jones of the non-denomination church in Marmora; Mr. Floyd Steenburg and Mr. Frank Hannah, who operates the Marmora Dairy, is asking for donations of food, clothing, bedding, dishes and household articles to get the family back on its feet. When its immediate needs are looked after, Mr. Jones hopes to interest merchants of the area in donating money, materials or labor, or all three, to build a new home for the Coens. The children are being looked after by neighbors in the area. Mrs. Coens says she is not used to having the children scattered around, and wants the family back together as soon as possible.

"They are fine Christian people, and deserve all the help the people of the community can give them," said Mr. Jones.

Gordon Moffatt, the Marmora township road foreman, has offered the use of the township bulldozer free of charge to dig the basement for the new home. An Oshawa district contractor, who knows the family, has offered to bring a crew of men to the site and lay out the cement blocks for the basement and foundation as soon as enough money can be raised to purchase the cement blocks and cement.

Marmora township Reeve Irvin McCoy said the township would "see what could be done" to help the family, but said he would do nothing until he saw whether the money would be made on a new home.

SON TAKES JOB

The oldest son, 16-year-old Leonard, has taken a job in Oshawa and is contributing to the support of his family. Thirteen-year-old Audrey is helping out at a home in Marmora. The other children are Lynn 11, Nellie 8, Jacob Jr. 8, Marjorie 5, Ruth 3, Russell 2 and Gloria, age six months. They are being cared for by three other farm families in the district.

A representative of the Children's Aid Society called at the various farms where the children are staying this week, and checked with the Coens. He told them the children were being properly cared for and that he could see no reason why the Children's Aid should take any steps to take the children from the parents. District residents said the Children's Aid Society had been called in by a member of the Marmora township council.

Mrs. Coens was quite perturbed at the thought of the family being separated, and said she hoped "things would work out somehow and we can all be back together again soon".

MUCH MISFORTUNE

Although the children appear well cared for and quite happy, Mr. Jones said the family has had more than its share of sickness and misfortune.

"What happens now is up to the people of the district", said Mr. Jones. I'm sure the people will open their hearts to this unfortunate family in their time of need", he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Coens are staying in the lower portion of a barn on their own property at present.

CLOSE SCHOOLS

SEOUL, Korea (Reuters)—The South Korean government today ordered all primary schools to close because of an epidemic of sleeping sickness which already has affected nearly 1,500 children, killing 260.

We'd like to serve you beer again soon!

We Are Doing Everything Possible—Here Are the Facts

The Brewing Industry in the province regrets the inconvenience caused its customers by the strike against the beer distribution company, Brewers' Warehousing Company Limited.

Since the strike began on August 7th, the brewing companies and Brewers' Warehousing Company have made every effort to bring the strike to a speedy and mutually satisfactory conclusion.

Last week the brewing companies launched a new and constructive effort, not only to settle the Warehousing strike, but to ensure a lengthy period of peaceful employee relations in the Industry.

Starting August 18th, a new series of meetings began, to try to work out a pattern of settlement of labor negotiations in the brewing companies and Brewers' Warehousing as well.

On Thursday, August 21st the Industry offered 97 cents in wages over a 2 year contract period. The offer which also included significant improvements in welfare benefits was made to employees of the following companies: Brewers' Warehousing Company Limited; Canadian Breweries Limited; The Carling Breweries Limited; Dow Kingsbeer Brewery Limited; John Labatt Limited; Molson's Brewery (Ontario) Limited; O'Keefe Brewing Company Limited.

But Our Offer Has Been Rejected

On August 22 the unions rejected the industry's proposals for settlement of the issues in dispute, and turned down the industry's offer of a wage increase. Even when the industry indicated its willingness to consider a more generous monetary offer on the basis of a 3-year contract, the union refused to consider the proposal.

As an example of what this offer means to Brewing Industry employees, we have selected three typical jobs in one of the companies concerned, Brewers Warehousing Company:

For purposes of comparison in the right hand column are shown the wage rates for three similar jobs in other Ontario industries

	PRESENT WAGE: in Major Ont. Centres		NEW COMPANY OFFER		WAGES FOR SIMILAR JOBS IN OTHER ONTARIO INDUSTRIES:
	Hourly (40-hr. week)	Weekly	for the contract period Hourly	Weekly	Hourly (40-hr. week)	Weekly
Warehouseman	$1.98½	$79.40	$2.09½	$83.80	Warehousemen—(retail trade)	$1.23 $49.74
Counter Clerk	$1.98½	$79.40	$2.09½	$83.80	Sales Clerk, Male—(retail stores)	$1.45 $57.94
Truck Driver	$2.08½	$83.45	$2.20¼	$88.10	Truck Driver—(local delivery)	$1.66 $66.40

Brewing Industry employees have always been among the best paid in Canada. Further, they enjoy welfare plans, vacations, and other benefits second to none.

Here are present benefits for Brewers' Warehousing employees:

VACATIONS: 2 weeks with pay after 7 months' service; 3 weeks with pay after 10 years' service; 4 weeks with pay after 25 years' service

SICK LEAVE: 6 days per year with pay

STATUTORY HOLIDAYS: 12 paid holidays per year

WELFARE PLAN: Life Insurance—$4,000.00 paid by the Company; Sickness and Accident—Weekly indemnity of $45.00 paid by Company; Hospitalization coverage—Paid by the Company; Pension plan— Equal contributions by company and employee.

We are proud of the wages and working conditions enjoyed by the employees of the Brewing Industry. Between 1946 and 1957 average wages of Brewing Industry employees in Ontario increased by 137% from $1,844.00 to $4,316.00 (DBS).

Now, we have offered our employees wage increases which average out at 12¢ per hour over the period of the contract, in addition to maintaining the cost of living provision which has increased their wages by 14¢ an hour since the last contract was signed.

The requests they have made to us would cost about $2,000 per employee, or about A MILLION DOLLARS A MONTH. Such a demand is obviously unrealistic. To accept such a request would immediately affect the Industry's ability to produce and sell beer at the lowest prices in Canada.

WHEN WILL BEER BE BACK IN ONTARIO? We hope it will be soon. We believe we have made a reasonable, indeed a generous, offer. We hope the unions will reconsider their stand and accept it so that service can be resumed.

County Home Ladies Enjoy Scenic Drive

CENTENARY — On Wednesday afternoon, with ideal weather in their favor, the ladies from the County Home again enjoyed a drive, this year across the Bay to Rossmore, Redeersville and back around to the home of Mrs. Mac Nobes.

Here the ladies were met by the members of the W.M.S. with Mrs. R. Hart and Mrs. F. Aikens receiving at the door at which time Mrs. Aikens pinned a corsage on each guest.

Mrs. B. Hardner welcomed the ladies and led in a short devotional the theme being "Prayer." Mrs. Harold Hancock played a translation of the hymn, "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Mrs. Harder spoke on the two days of the week that belong to God, the yesterday about which ones lives in remorse and—the tomorrow about which one does so worry. These two days should belong to God, so one can live today in the fullest measure.

Mrs. Percy Sutherland sang, "God will take care of you," and Mrs. Harder closed with prayer.

Everyone enjoyed a cup of tea angel food, and pink ice cream.

Mrs. H. Aylen from the Home thanked the Centenary W.M.S. for such a happy afternoon. Mrs. Ken Yorke, the matron, added her thanks of appreciation.

Mrs. Harder replied inviting them all back again after which the drivers Mrs. Mac Nobes, Mrs. Edgar Roy, Mrs. A. Christopher, Mrs. Elwin Hart, Mrs. John Reid, and Mrs. F. Edmondson drove the ladies back to the Home.

City Reporter Rides 100 Miles On Horseback

VANCOUVER (CP) — City reporter Audrey Down recently completed a 100-mile horseback ride over the old Cariboo Gold Trail to Barkerville, B.C.

"Sure it's 1958," she says. "But progress has done little to improve the gait of a horse since the 'sit and suffer' days of 1858."

The trip, organized by the Cariboo Trail Riders, was planned as a centennial project. Audrey travelled with 13 other riders.

"Some others were probably glad they stayed home when we failed to show up at our second camping spot, near Hydraulic post office," she writes. "We spent 15 hours in the saddle that day."

"The old Hydraulic trail to Likely, B.C. would have made Buffalo Bill feel like turning in his spurs.

She said she met many prospectors who still believed the hills were rich with gold.

There is one common danger here and it is that because white flour and white sugar products are cheap, they are used far too much.

GOOD ECONOMY PRACTICES:

1) A strict rule should be to eat no bread but 100% whole wheat for good nutrition's sake. It costs no more. 2) Use dark brown sugar instead of white for the same reason. 3) Buy low cost Cheddar cheese and cracked eggs (at egg depot) and use one of them instead of meat for dinner for 2 days of each week, changing your methods of serving them every time. (For instance, cheese dishes could be macaroni and cheese, cheese souffle, cheese fondue, Welsh rarebit, egg dishes could be scrambled, omelet, hard-cooked and curried; baked in casserole of mashed potatoes or rice.) 4) Use skim milk powder instead of liquid milk. 5) Make hot cereal for breakfast every morning — changing the grain every day — (for instance cornmeal, rolled oats, whole wheat, then a mixture of all three) 6) Make your own homemade soups in which you can utilize all vegetable cooking waters, bones and leftovers to good advantage. 7) Serve grated or shredded raw cabbage or carrots every day. Be sure to wash and shred outer lettuce leaves (to conserve chlorophyl) and use them in your tossed salads. Buy the bundles of outer celery stalks availabe in most big markets. 8). Potatoes: Bake them and eat the skins. Or, if boiled, boil them in the jackets and serve them in the jackets. Excellent nutritionally and flavorwise too. 9). Experiment with every available method of serving codfish. The frozen fillets can be bought very cheaply everywhere in Canada, and serve it once per week. 10). Learn how to cook such economical meats as pork liver, beef kidney and beef heart and tongue. It would be well worth it to send 50c to Canada Department of Agriculture at Ottawa for "Meat — How to Buy, How to Cook" publication 971.

I wish you the best of luck and hope you will write to me again when your food-buying habits and morale need a lift.

Actually if all of these practices are followed, you will be better nourished than the average Canadian.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beechman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP: SAY YOUR APPRECIATION

Don't hold back words of appreciation to your friends, particularly about qualities and kind institutions you admire in them. Recall how happy you were made by someone's sincere and warm-hearted words of tribute to you about a certain quality of accomplishment you had been trying so hard to develop. Then pass on this happiness to someone else. The world, your world, needs this heartening stimulation!

ABOUT GROOM'S TWO SISTERS GIVING SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married 1 a t e this month. His two sisters are to be bridesmaids. Would it be proper for them to give a shower for the bride-to-be at our home?
— Mr. C.

It is not considered correct for a member of either the bride's or the groom's family to give a shower. If there are to be other bridal attendants besides t h e groom's two sisters, the entire bridal party might plan to give a shower together, at the home of one of the other attendants.

A SECOND GIFT NOT NECESSARY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The stork has been busy lately among my friends . . . and my budget has been likewise! In the last several months I've gone to four stork showers, and to each I've taken what I think was a very nice (and certainly not inexpensive) present. Now that I've just returned from my vacation, I'll be going to see three friends and their new babies. Is it a "must" that I take the baby a present when I go to make these calls? — Reader

Another present but at all a "must." If you have a garden you might take the mother some garden flowers. Or if you have some small white garden flowers (baby's breath, most appropriate, of course) fashion a pert little bonnet and put it in a "cologne" bottle made of a white lace-paper doily.

I wish you the best of luck and hope you will write to me again when your food-buying habits and morale need a lift.

Actually if all of these practices are followed, you will be better nourished than the average Canadian.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, a lawyer, a clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Barbara R. — I like to go Dutch with Peter.

Mrs. L. R. — She makes a doormat of herself.

Barbara R. — I am 22 years old and for the past year I have been seeing a medical student a f e w years older. So far we are just friends. We both go out with others. However, I do think I like Peter best. He has suggested marriage, but he said it would be many years before he would be able to marry.

When we go out together we always go Dutch. Peter's folks have barely enough to see him through school. He picks up some money at odd jobs, but much is for books and clothing. I think it's only right that I should pay my own way.

My mother is very conventional and objects to this. She thinks a man doesn't respect you if you make things too easy for him. I think her attitude is just awful.

Mrs. L. R. — I think going out Dutch is all right for very young teenagers, but by the time a man and woman are old enough to marry, the man should take over his proper role.

I know for a fact Peter takes advantage of Barbara's good nature. I have heard that when he goes out with other girls he does treat them. I have a feeling that when he is short of money he goes out with Barbara because she pays her own way. I also suspect Barbara has lent him some money.

It annoys me that Barbara seems always ready to make a doormat of herself for certain boys who don't appreciate her. The cost who treat her well and show her every consideration can't make any headway with her.

The Council: We think t h e Dutch treat is a fine institution under the right circumstances. But it appears that, in this case, Mrs. L. R. has a few valid objections. She is not taking a purely "conventional" point of view.

However, Mrs. L. R. may misinterpret Barbara's attitudes. Far from making a "doormat" of herself, Barbara appears to be trying to assert her power by taking more upon herself than is customary in a man-woman relationship.

The reasons for her doing this may be somewhat complex. Barbara may find it worth her while to think about it a bit before she becomes seriously involved in any relationship with a man.

A woman with Barbara's inclinations might easily wind up with a man who is quite dependent upon her. She may like this at first, but in time she would come to resent it, or an unpleasant rivalry might develop between her and her husband.

We think Barbara ought to try to concentrate her attention on some work or skill as a means to the power she seeks. This will give her more confidence in herself and she will be less bent on getting power over human beings. Then she will be able to enjoy the company of men who are as interested in giving as they are in receiving.

To Carry On

Mrs. Jean Casselman, 38, widow of a politician and daughter of another one, is making a bid for Parliament in her own right. Seen with her father, Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe since 1925, Mrs. Casselman will be a candidate in a by-election in Grenville-Dundas September 29. The seat was held previously by her late husband, Lt.-Col. A. Clair Casselman. (CP Photo)

Jean Casselman Once Campaigned for Others, Now Doing Some for Self

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Political campaigning—for somebody else—always has been part of Jean Casselman's life. Now she is doing some campaigning for herself.

The charming 53-year-old widow of a politician—and the daughter of one, too—is the Progressive Conservative candidate for a federal byelection to be held Sept. 29 in Grenville-Dundas.

The Prescott, Ont., housewife and mother is making the bid to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband, Lt.-Col. A. Clair Casselman.

HELD SEAT 33 YEARS

—Until his death last May 11, Col. Casselman held the riding—Conservative since Confederation—for 33 years.

He was dean of the Commons, the title now held by Mrs. Casselman's father, Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative MP for Dufferin-Simcoe since 1925 and a former minister without portfolio in the Bennett cabinet.

Perched on the corner of a desk in her father's House of Commons office, Mrs. Casselman pondered a question about her own political ambitions.

"I had never conceived of a situation where I would be running (for election) myself," she said. "I've always been working for someone else."

Friends persuaded Mrs. Casselman who has never held a public office to let her name stand for nomination. The willowy brunette squeezed out a fourth ballot win over four other candidates.

WOULD MAKE HISTORY

If Mrs. Casselman wins the election she would both make, and repeat, a bit of Commons history.

A win would bring the first father-and-daughter team to the Commons, as well as a third woman. Citizenship Minister Ellen Fairclough and Margaret Aitken, Conservative MP for Yorkhumber, now are the only women in the 265-seat House.

The possible repetition in history dates back to 1941 when after the death of F. C. Casselman, Liberal member for Edmonton East, his widow, Mrs. Cora Casselman—the two families are not related—did not run for another election after her 1945 defeat.

Mrs. Casselman says the St. Lawrence River - bordered riding is "very politically minded."

As a candidate with a warm, friendly personality and an infectious laugh, Mrs. Casselman says she has "no feminine axe to grind."

She also says she is not a club woman. Her interests include golf and curling.

KNOWS THE RIDING

Married 12 years ago to Col. Casselman — she was his third wife — she says she feels she knows her constituency well.

The two-county riding is predominately rural, but with the St. Lawrence Seaway development, the future may bring greater industrialization.

Born on a Simcoe County farm north of Toronto, Mrs. Casselman graduated in arts from the University of Toronto, took a business course and worked in Toronto for about five years before her marriage to the Prescott lawyer.

She figures there wouldn't be much change in her family life if she wins the election. Home, with Nancy, 9 and six-year-old Clair, and a housekeeper, still would be the castle-like frame house on the banks of the St. Lawrence about 70 miles south of Ottawa.

As for the children, "they already take politics for granted," says their candidate-mother.

Well Cut Costume

By VERA WINSTON

Precision tailoring marks this pleasing daytime dress of mohair tweed, a frock that is indicative of the more practical aspects of the new fashions. Detail includes buttoned, flapped pockets and a half belt which extends from the side seams to the back. The dress is easy fitting in front with a softly defined waistline. The classic collar is cut wide enough to allow for a scarf.

Skirts Hardly Cover Knees In Fall Show

PARIS (Reuters)—Hubert D. Givenchy was acclaimed again Tuesday as the rebel of the Paris couture following the first showing of his winter collection.

Opposing Dior's mid-calf hemline, Givenchy's skirts hardly covered the kneecap. Everything was up—from waistlines to stove pipe coat collars which touched the chin and millinery trims that soared away from the head.

The two basic dress silhouettes were an empire-sack and bolero bodice style with full skirt mounted high in gathers.

The rib cage was bandaged with wide crushed belts with matching bolero jackets cut away at centre fron to reveal a big buckle or fringed sash end.

DRAWSTRING WAISTLINES

Other models affected drawstring waistlines marked over the breast bone with bows of stiffened leather loops.

Givenchy featured reversible coats, with big cape collars that switched from inside to outside.

Other coat models with collarless necklines were double breasted from throat to the seven-eighth length hemline. Horizontal cuts and yoke effects were marked by welted seams, with side vents slit to mid-thigh.

Hooded burnoose coats and suits—with one a white Shetland cowled boleros were often lined matic—with one a white Shetland under reversing to deep burnt in fur. Color contrasts were dra- orange.

Simply Smart

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Slightly shaped in front, this chic little daytime dress is fashioned of a fabric not seen around for several seasons— wool crepe. The color is beige. The back hangs loose but not overly full. A self bow slips through the seamed detail to mark the high waist that is a constant feature in current clothes. The simple turn-back sleeves and flat collar lend a casual air to a dress that would give plenty of well-bred service in any wardrobe.

Hemlines Up To Knee Length In New Designs

PARIS (Reuters) — Balenciaga retains evolutions of the sack in his winter collection shown to the press Wednesday.

The new sack takes on indications of the high-waist line, suggesting a bosomy effect through yoke treatment, and keeps hemlines up to knee length.

The basic shape remains loose, but gives a more definite indication of the body underneath.

Balenciaga's waist treatments star the back-buttoned coat dress cut like a smock or chemise.

He does them with deep-set flat yokes and fullness gathered into a horizontal line across the rib-cage with big bone buttons from neck to hem in back. Other highlights are the reversible coats, both in double — faced duvetteen and broadcloth fabrics, or fuzzy mohairs of contrasting color used in double thickness.

The twist this season is rounded back effects in coats, paired with removable capes and scarf collars. Coats and coat dresses were nearly always nine-tenths length.

Fundy's Friendly Tides

CANADA

Text:
Fundy's fabulous tides — believed to be the highest in the world — have tried the skill and patience of sailors for centuries, but to Nova Scotia's fishermen who dwell near the Minudie marshlands at the head of the Bay of Fundy they are known as the "Friendly Tides" for twice a day when the tides roll in they bring with them a rich harvest of shad, a tasty fish of the herring class. The fishermen hang their nets on stakes at low tide, then return to their homes to wait for the tides (which in some parts of the Bay reach a height of 70 feet) to drive the shad ashore where they become trapped in the nets. When the tide goes out again the fishermen may take in as many as 1000 shad. This picturesque and unusual method of fishing requires only the simplest of gear: a net, a cart and a ladder.

Shad, which are trapped by their gills in the net are removed at low tide. The fish average about 2 feet in length, weigh up to 14 pounds. Shad roe is considered a great delicacy by connoisseurs. National Film Board of Canada Photos

With their simple and unusual fishing gear — a cart and a ladder — fishermen cross the hard-packed sands to their nets. Fish are collected twice a day when the tide is out.

A Minudie fisherman mounts ladder to remove shad caught in top of the net. Local folk refer to this method of catching shad as "Ladder Fishing".

HONOR COMMONWEALTH OFFICIALS

Vice-chancellors of many Commonwealth universities received honorary LLD degrees at a special convocation of University of Toronto. Shown with Claude Bissell, right, president of U. and T., are Thomas Alty, left of South Africa; Nirmal Sidhanta of Calcutta and Raymond Sloughton of Ghana. Vice-chancellor of Oxford university, John Cecil Masterman addressed the convocation and warned against the danger of over-expansion. He urged the establishment of new universities rather than expansion, which he said leads to mass production and depersonalization of the university.

Defence Suggests Crown's Bribery Witness Paid Off

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Somers bribery - conspiracy trial jury heard defence suggestions Wednesday that "unscrupulous persons" were behind the politically-potent case and that the Crown's chief witness had been paid off.

The suggestions came from Alfred Bull, veteran counsel who represents accused timber engineer Charles D. Schultz and his firm, the C. D. Schultz Company Limited.

Summing up his case, Mr. Bull pictured Schultz as a ruined man and told the Assize Court jury of nine men and three women they were trying "no ordinary prosecution." His clients were the "victims of a most disgraceful undertaking carried out by unscrupulous persons."

The lawyer made frequent references to chief Crown witness Charles Eversfield, former Pacific Coast Services Limited bookkeeper who took scores of documents to the attorney-general also spark the case late in 1953.

CHARGES LAID YEAR AGO

Charges were eventually laid late in 1957 and early in 1958, involving former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, H. W. Gray, John Gray, Schultz and his firm, and Pacific Coast Services, Evergreen Lumber Sales and B.C. Forest Products Ltd. The Crown in a 20-charge indictment alleges the minister took bribes in connection with forest management licences.

Opening his summation on the 51st day of the trial—a record for B.C.'s criminal assizes—Mr. Bull said Gibson had engaged in a "smear campaign" against the Social Credit government in connection with timber licences. For two years the public was besieged by press stories of allegations against Sommers, who resigned his portfolio in 1956 but still is a member of the legislature.

"You are not trying a prosecution begun in the ordinary way," the lawyer told the jury. "You are trying a case instigated for ulterior motives by others and I'll name them—Gordon Gibson, Eversfield, Sturdy and the Vancouver Sun."

As for Eversfield, Mr. Bull said the jury should remember he was a thief, he was a forger, he was a blackmailer and he was an accomplice of (H. W.) Gray on the assumption that Gray engaged in a crime."

ILLEGAL ACTS CITED

Mr. Bull said he did not take the position Gray had committed a crime. But Eversfield had testified he believed illegal acts were going on, yet he had helped Gray in their commission.

Mr. Bull recalled testimony that Eversfield tried to blackmail Pacific officials for $10,000 or a life partnership to keep quiet about dealings with Sommers and had said if they wouldn't pay he "knew someone who would."

He suggested that Gibson was that someone. "He had the money."

The defence lawyer also recalled testimony that Eversfield had received $1,700 in "expenses" and loans from David Sturdy in 1955, a large sum for a young Vancouver lawyer to pay "unless he could see it coming back in dividends."

GOVERNMENT OPPOSED

Mr. Bull believed the reason Gibson was approached by Sturdy and Eversfield—with the latter's pile of documents—was that Gibson was a millionaire who was actively campaigning against the Social Credit government. If Gibson could "get the evidence it would upset the government."

The jury also heard a summation by E. E. (Ted) Hinkson on behalf of John Gray. The lawyer said his client's connection with the alleged bribery-conspiracy plot was "only incidental." As an executive of the Pacific and Gray had permitted his personal bank account to be used for certain transfers of money, but only on the insistence of Eversfield whom he then trusted as the company bookkeeper. Eversfield had said they were "internal transfers." The Crown now said they were transfers of moneys to Sommers as bribes.

It was not until much later that John Gray had learned through his brother of Eversfield's deceit and his efforts to blackmail them for $10,000 or a life partnership to keep quiet about transactions with Sommers.

In his record 11 days on the witness stand early in the case, Eversfield flatly denied he had ever tried to blackmail Pacific officials.

Britain Wonders If Color Bar Is Creeping In

LONDON (Reuters) — A disturbed Britain is wondering if racial violence that flared up during the weekend in Nottingham foreshadows a color bar creeping into society.

Nobody knew the fight started Saturday in a working class district of Nottingham is blurred but it is believed the battle was a reprisal by colored men for earlier attacks on them by whites.

The riot spotlighted the problem that has arisen in some areas because of the influx of 30,000 West Indian Negroes and 10,000 other colored people in Britain since the war.

Talks were held at the Home Office Tuesday over the clash.

A few dance halls in some cities have barred or restricted colored customers, but otherwise there is no overt ban.

Most newspapers expressed shock at the riot.

The Labor London Daily Herald said: "We don't want a color problem in this country. But the ugly and ominous racial riot in Nottingham is only the latest sign that we have got a problem brewing especially with increasing immigration since the war.

"We are proud of our open door policy (West Indians are British subjects and free to come into Britain). We don't want the door slammed shut. But we aren't proud to have colonies of immigrants living in undesirable conditions, many without jobs."

The Conservative London Daily Telegraph, said the riot came as a "considerable shock to the irascible, tolerant British public."

Stirling

STIRLING — Mrs. Gladys Milne spent last week at Queen's University, Kingston and attended a summer seminar on the themes, "Educational Leadership."

Dr. Ralph Vanderveort returned to his cottage, at Oak Lake, on Friday. He has been visiting ovary in the General Hospital, Belleville.

Misses Janet Ann Fletcher and Margaret Mutheron attended Junior camp at Quin-Mo-Lac, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson have returned home from a delightful holiday in the north.

Seven Africans Will Die for Medicine Murder

MASERU, Basutoland (AP) — Seven Africans were sentenced to death by the Basutoland high court Wed. for medicine murder.

The prosecution alleged they waylaid an African boy last October, mutilated and bled him to obtain medicine for a chief who himself was on trial for medicine murder at the time.

The boy, still living, then was placed under a cliff to make it appear he had fallen off. His body was found next morning.

Medicine murders arise from the fact that some Africans believe parts of a body taken from a living victim and ground into "medicine" are beneficial in correcting various complaints.

Professor Says Realistic Toward Western Nations Growing in Asia, Africa

MONTREAL (CP) — A scholar steeped in the lore and learning of Islam, in personal contact with many in the Islamic countries, says a tide of anti-Western hostility is rising in the Middle East and the rest of Asia.

"Western policies are constantly being constructed with scant concern for how people feel," says Prof. Wilfred Cantwell Smith of McGill University. "What we're busily doing is pushing almost everybody over to the Communist side."

Professor Smith, at 42 one of the leading authorities on Islam, says he hopes the tide may be stemmed, but first western leaders must forget some of their economics and politics and acquire more human understanding and humility.

And the West, which lacks a policy for Asia, must adopt one.

"This cannot be done lightly," says Professor Smith. "To come to terms with it will require a high order of creativity. Our failure is growing year by year. We have not yet effectively realized that the problems of dealing with the people of a civilization other than our own are fundamentally new. They cannot be handled by old methods, such as our present structure of diplomacy, run by old ideas."

Professor Smith says the relations of the West with "the non-Communist, non-western world" may in the long run prove more important than the problem of Communist expansion.

"We tend to look on the people of Asia and Africa in terms of our relations with Russia. This is one of the things that is running our relations with them. The very fact that we subordinate them in our thinking to our concern with Russia is one way we are alienating them.

"The alienation is very deep and no bitter fruit conceivably it's too late to remedy it. However, I haven't given up hope."

The first step towards reconciliation with the East is to recognize that the problem exists, he says.

"The second thing we should do is change our attitudes. Our civilization suffers from a certain provincialism. We must learn that Asian cultures are important, that they're worth preserving and developing.

"We should be able to persuade the people of Asia — and that means first of all persuading ourselves—that our policy is to help them preserve and develop their own cultures.

"There's too much talk of trying to get them on our side. Our purpose should be to show that the basic ways we are on their side.

"Instead, we are gradually finding ourselves with two enemies instead of one: The Communists, and the Asian nationalists."

Western statesmen seem incapable of thinking in any other terms than political and economic, he says.

"They're ready to rush in with an economic program as a final flourish, as though they believe the only major problems in the non-western world are economic, and that the only objectives are for a higher standard of living."

Asia, including the Middle East, cannot be dealt with by means of stop - gap, patchwork measures such as the landings in Lebanon and Jordan, which may be effective from day to day but fail in the long run, says Professor Smith.

"At the most the West seems to think the objective is for the Asians to become like us."

Last year, Professor Smith's book, Islam in Modern History, earned him the praise of Moslem intellectual leaders as well as Westerners. It has been quoted in the Commons by External Affairs Minister Smith, no relative.

The book was based on years of study that began at the University of Toronto and continued at Princeton, Oxford and Cambridge and in France, India and Egypt. He speaks Arabic, Hindustani and Persian.

A tall, shy man with quiet humor and a slight stoop, Professor Smith is professor of comparative religion at McGill and director of the university's Institute of Islamic Studies, recognized as the only one of its kind in the Western world. About half the professors and students there are Moslems.

Prof. Wilfred Cantwell Smith of McGill University is a leading expert on Islam. His book "Islam in Modern History," published in 1957, earned him the praise of Moslem intellectual leaders. Prof. Smith points out that a tide of Western hostility is rising in the Middle East and the rest of Asia.

Printing Bureau Architect Turns Tables on Government Questioners in Investigation

OTTAWA (CP) — Architect Ernest Cormier turned critic Wednesday night and supervised to win a round from his Progressive Conservative interrogators during the public accounts committee investigation of printing bureau costs.

He said the Conservative government's proposal to spend $700,000 to improve an air condition system that originally cost $500,000 is "out of range entirely."

It should cost about "one-fifth that amount," he said.

Mr. Cormier, whose plans for the $18,000,000 building have been under fire from Conservatives in the Commons committee throughout the four weeks of investigation, appeared at ease in his third day on the stand.

Questioned recently voted $700,000 for modification of the air conditioning following complaints it was not doing a proper job.

"It shouldn't have been passed," said the Montreal architect.

He had written the public works department as recently as this summer reminding it the air conditioning difficulties could be corrected for $178,000.

This was the cost of an auxiliary conditioning unit which he had planned for the original cooling system but which then deputy works minister R. J. Murphy had cut out because of cost.

The system's failure because you were not allowed to put in two units?" asked Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto - Rosedale), chief government interrogator.

"Yes."

"If a second unit were put in would it give a norm of 80 degrees without spending $700,000?"

"Certainly."

Mr. Cormier also had a comeback to criticism of water in the bureau's sub-basement.

This "so-called trust stream" is simply drainage for water-treatment equipment in the new Hull, Que., building, he said. It appears only once every 15 days.

Earlier evidence was that cost of the bureau, originally estimated by the works department —before Mr. Cormier was engaged — at $6,000,000, had increased because the basement floor had to be raised when an underground stream was found below the site.

Mr. Cormier said the floor had been raised as a "temporary precaution" against flooding until walls were closed in. He said it didn't cost the government as extra cost.

It was another of the committee's uproarious days. Charges of "McCarthyism" were hurled.

The Liberals boycotted two of the committee's three sittings of the day and night on the ground members were being overworked.

A Progressive Conservative MP who also is an architect had a heated but apparently inconclusive exchange with the witness.

Frank Pratt, member for Montreal Jacques - Cartier-Lasalle, charged that bureau drawings presented to the committee "are phony exhibits," and Mr. Cormier replied that Mr. Pratt "is not an architect at all," although he afterwards asked this remark be struck from the record.

English Doctor Acquitted at Little Current

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Richael Ash, an English physician working for the federal government as an Indian reserve doctor, was acquitted Wednesday on charges of unlawfully practising medicine.

Magistrate A. M. Limbert dismissed the charges laid by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons after one of its investigators went to the reserve for treatment by Dr. Ash.

The magistrate ruled Dr. Ash had done nothing which constituted "professing to practise."

Dr. Ash, 42, who holds membership in seven British medical associations and formerly practised on London's famed Harley Street, was not called to testify.

TREATS INDIAN

He is salaried by the federal government's Indian affairs department to treat Indians on the reserve near this Manitoulin Island centre.

The court was told that Dr. Ash had an agreement with three doctors in the area that he would treat white persons if an emergency cases provided any payment for such treatment was given over to the federal government.

Chief crown witness was G. A. Monaghan, an Ontario government medical inspector attached to the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

He said he went to Dr. Ash's office in nearby Manitowaning and complained of a sore shoulder, abdomen and back. The doctor massaged him and gave him medicine.

GOVERNMENT MONEY

Mr. Monaghan said he asked the doctor if he could bill it was $5. He quoted Dr. Ash as saying, "This receipt must be put away for the government." The doctor gave him an official government receipt for the money.

Defence Counsel David Mossop of Sudbury, retained by the federal government, argued that Dr. Ash's actions did not constitute an attempt to practise medicine. He said four other doctors in the area declined to hold the post, swamped by work and had really agreed to let Dr. Ash handle emergencies.

The defence lawyer pointed out that Dr. Ash did not have a sign or nameplate outside his office to attract patients.

Dr. Ash, father of seven children, came here last April.

Truck Backs Over Worker

PALERMO, Ont. (CP) — Morley Penfold, 42, of York was killed Wednesday night when a dump truck ran over him on Highway 25 near this community 10 miles north of Hamilton.

Police said Penfold, a construction worker, was directing traffic around a truck which was backing up to the scene. The truck, driven by E. E. Gilks of Brampton, backed over him.

Teachers' Federation Asks End to Emergency Measures To Fill Teaching Ranks

BRACEBRIDGE (CP)—Teaching permits, emergency diploma courses and teaching qualifications came under fire Wednesday in a panel discussion of the Ontario Teachers' Federation governors.

The annual meeting of the board of governors winds up today with election of officers.

The panel discussion agreed that granting teaching permits to unqualified persons should stop.

ELIMINATING FEAR

Panel member Sister Mary Leonore of Belleville said the fear of being unqualified compared to the board of education that emergency courses be eliminated over the next two years.

Other panel members were moderator Cora Bailey, Cornwall; Therese Delanger, Ottawa, Dr. H. O. Bereth of the Toronto board of education and D. G. Dewar, Toronto.

Mr. Dewar said the number of teachers with permits has reached about 1,000 in Ontario. They have few or no qualifications, he added.

Dr. Barrett said secondary school teachers hired to fight the teacher shortage had good academic qualifications. All had university degrees but their total professional training is 15 weeks of theory, he said.

Mr. Dewar said the summer course did not fully qualify a teacher for teaching. He said about one-third of Ontario elementary teachers are poorly qualified and receive no practice teaching in the summer courses.

The panel members voted unanimously to ask amendments to the Ontario Juvenile Delinquents Act allowing school authorities to lay charges of persistent truancy and incorrigibility.

The governors approved a report recommending guilty students be committed to reform school or detention homes.

The report, to be sent to Education Minister Dunlop, also suggested that validity of promotion from one grade to the next be enforced through an external check such as standardized tests.

The federation represents 67,000 teachers. About 40 governors are attending the board meeting.

Wheat Growers To Be Assisted Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government is "seriously considering" a $25,000,000 program of assistance to western Canada wheat growers.

It says in an Ottawa dispatch the program will probably comprise a special $1-an-acre payment to a maximum of $200 for each farmer.

The aid could probably be announced before the end of the current parliamentary session as part of a Progressive Conservative program to win the session a strong upbeat ending.

The newspaper says the government has been exploring the possibility of making the payments under either the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act or the Prairie Farm Assistance Act without passing special legislation.

"The payments, for this year only, would be designed to help the farmers on an emergency basis until the government has time to study and perfect a more equal assaults against them by comprehensive program at the next session of Parliament."

Supporters of Integration Against Eisenhower Attitude

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Supporters of racial integration in American schools are in opposition to the attitude of President Eisenhower.

The president has declined to say what his own opinions on the controversial question are. He has taken steps at his duty only to make sure that the United States Supreme Court rulings demanding an end to discrimination against Negro children are enforced.

It's no part of his job, the president has declared, to tell people what to think.

This frame of mind—that he is above the hurly-burly of politics has been apparent most of the time since Eisenhower was elected in 1952.

Critics of his administration complain that it is this Olympian attitude of detachment — among other things — allowed the late Senator Joseph McCarthy to continue his witch-hunting as long as he did and jeopardizes budget balancing and other moves by mutual assaults against them by opposing parties.

OPPOSITION STRENGTHENED

In the school integration controversy, it has been said Eisenhower's little Rock action of last September might have been headed off if Democrats had taken a firm public stand. His isolationist decision to send troops to Little Rock over only served to strengthen southern opposition and won him little support in the north.

The president now has hinted that he might speak out at some time if a state fails to quell violent opposition to integration. Reaction to Eisenhower's performance has been less critical than that from southerners bitter to see Negroes go to all-white schools, but they say Eisenhower should not only act promptly in spite of his office to swing public behind him but that the president's opponents cannot alone achieve.

At a press conference in Washington Wednesday the president admitted he might have told Little Rock to go ahead with integration should be slowed down.

COMMON AND SENSE

"We have to have reason and sense and education and a lot of other qualities that are needed here in hand . . . if this process is going to have any real acceptance in the United States," he said.

It is this type of lead that Eisenhower is being urged to take. Apparently he doesn't feel that it is his responsibility to help form any new public opinion.

Franklin D. Roosevelt had a different idea. He said: "The presidency is not merely an administrative office. That is the least of it. It is pre-eminently a place of moral leadership."

TAILOR'S SON

Massey Takes Grandchildren on Tour of Midway

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National Exhibition visitors watched Wednesday night as Governor-General Massey and his three grandchildren on a tour of the midway and kiddieland.

The governor general arrived with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Massey, grandchildren Susan, 6, Eva, 9, and Gene, 10, and Mrs. Cruikshank of Ottawa, a playmate.

Hundreds of curious visitors clutched Wilfred the vice-regal party as Mr. Massey placed the children aboard a merry - go - round. He declined to step aboard himself.

Hiram McCallum, CNE general manager, attempted to hold back the crowds and about 12 reporters and photographers who had followed Mr. Massey down the midway.

WANTED QUIET VISIT

"No one was supposed to know about this," Mr. McCallum said. "It was to be a quiet, private visit.

That's the way the governor-general wanted it.

Following the midway visit Mr. Massey drove to the grandstand, where he watched a trick-service guard of honor and settled down to enjoy the night's variety show featuring Danny Kaye.

Of comedian Kaye, the governor — general said: "He's a perfect clown and he's certainly a very, very intelligent gentleman."

Warm clear weather attracted 67,000 people to the CNE products and Merchants' Day. It was the second-highest total this year. Thursday's Dad Day last Saturday drew an all-time record of 335,-000.

NEED MORE TOURISTS

Frank T. Sherk, president of J. H. Heinz Company of Canada, addressed the food industry at a CNE directors' luncheon. He said Canadian organizations should double their efforts to attract United States tourists who "have thousands of cars to ride in and nowhere to go."

He said the tourist trade is the equivalent of our paper exports in earning U. S. dollars for Canada.

LANGUAGE EXPERT

PARIS (Reuters) — Georges Lecomte, 91, permanent secretary of the Academie Francaise, the 40-man body which guards the purity of the French language, died Wednesday night. Lecomte was a literary journalist, playwright and novelist. He died of complications following an accident in which he broke a thigh bone.

Life Not Very Comfortable In Besieged Indonesian Town

BALIGE, Indonesia (AP)— What a it like to live in a besieged Indonesian town?

The curfew in Balige begins every night at 8 o'clock, and the gunfire across the river crackles out about 9.

The schools are half empty, the two hospitals have no patients, there is no newspaper, and mail deliveries are few and far between.

Balige is a city of 33,000, huddled inside the mountain ridge of Lake Toba, deep in rebellious North Sumatra. It is one of five towns held by the government across Tapanuli province. The rebels began within sight of the city limits.

"We are quite safe here — the rebels haven't tried to take the town—but we don't feel secure," said a young housewife, a baby slung from her arm.

She watched an empty Red Cross ambulance — converted bus—roll down the street.

"Balige is no fun any more," she said.

"Things are getting worse," a farmer explained. "We can't get our rice to Medan. We have to store it up. And prices here are very high."

Half the boys from school have joined the rebel army, and seven or eight girls have gone to fight with them," said a pigtailed student.

"At night we have to sit inside and play cards, and there are no movies because we can't go outside the town."

"The high school kids think it's a big adventure to go with the rebels. They get a gun — that makes them feel important—and they make 50 rupiahs every time they go on patrol," a government soldier said.

"I'd go with the rebels myself —they are people against us. They are my friends — but I can't leave my family," he added. The local loyalist troops like himself have been disarmed by their own commanders, he said. Hi carried only a flashlight.

Balige seems quietly normal during daylight hours. Pigs root in the mud outside the mud-brick houses, and the women gather on doorsteps to chat.

"Don't go to the pig now," said one young man. "The government has machine guns. The rebels have had four cars in Balige — there aren't any now."

Most of the people in town are on the government side, no matter what they say to the new Balige commander, Maj. N. Pelawal, a lean, sharp - featured soldier from outside the province. A poster over his desk reads "uns kan gun."

"We could probably have finished off the rebels, but my orders are to hold the city and to hold the town. There's a difference, of course, between what we could do here and what I report to headquarters."

"We don't feel very secure," said the Batak lawyer (lawyer) D. J. Marpaung. "There are rebels very much fighting recently, but many of our young men are with the rebels. Prices are high. People don't mind the government troops, as long as they behave themselves."

REINFORCE 7th FLEET

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Navy reported Wednesday that the aircraft carrier Essex and four destroyers are en route from the Mediterranean to join the 7th Fleet in the Western Pacific. The fleet is under a precautionary alert because of heavy Red bombardment of islands between the Communist-held Chinese mainland and Nationalist-

Congress Wants Scientists To Be Able to Travel Freely

MONTREAL (CP) — The Permanent International Committee of Genetics Congresses has called on governments to give their scientists the right to travel freely for scientific purposes, regardless of whether their scientific views and work conform with political policies and ideologies.

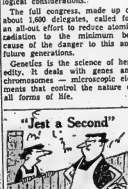
The committee, singling out Soviet Russia, expressed "deep concern" over the number of scientists who failed to appear at the 10th International Congress of Genetics which was to be held in Montreal. The congress was scheduled to open Aug. 20 but was postponed by the full congress but it was agreed that the Montreal international committee with one abstention and two members absent.

HARSH RESEARCH

The committee said government interference with the pursuit of science and free dissemination of scientific information was a "serious violation of the basic principles of research."

Dr. Lerner said the committee voted to express "the deepest sympathy and and its warmest regrets that all scientists who may have been prevented from attending by their governments."

This was an obvious reference to Soviet Russia, represented at the Congress by scientists including Dr. V. N. Stoletov, the Soviet Union's first deputy minister of education.



Twenty - seven Russian scientists had notified the congress they planned to attend the International conference but only nine showed up.

Some scientists also interpreted the resolution as having a strong slap at the United States. They said the U.S. in recent months has been discriminating in the way of Russian scientists visiting the U.S.

Dr. Stoletov, commenting on the resolution, repeated assertions that the Russian delegation was completely free and that scientific work in the Soviet Union was not governed by ideological considerations.

The full congress, made up of about 1,600 delegates, called for an all-out effort to reduce atomic radiation to the minimum because of the danger to this and future generations.

Genetics is the science of heredity. It deals with genes and chromosomes — microscopic elements that control the nature of all forms of life.

"Well, if you're broad-minded you keep your brains in a funny place."

150,000 Welfare Cases Qualify For Free Care

TORONTO (CP) — Welfare Minister Cecile has announced about 150,000 Ontario welfare cases will automatically qualify for free hospital care when the Ontario hospital insurance plan becomes effective Jan. 1, 1959.

This number includes more than 90,000 old age pensioners, more than 20,000 persons between the ages of 65 and 69 in assistance and close to 30,000 received mothers' allowances. Blind and disabled persons receiving pensions from the province also are entitled to free care.

Old age pensioners not now receiving free medical services from the province would qualify for free membership in the hospital insurance plan if they met financial requirements set by the federal government.

If single, their income could not be more than $960 annually and their cash assets not more than $1,000. If married, the figures were higher.

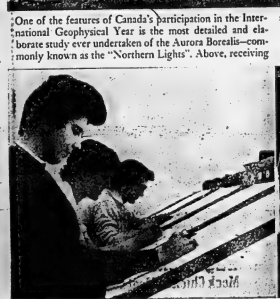
Canadian Contribution to Geophysical Year

New Light on Northern Lights



A special recorder (left foreground) for measuring the intensity of northern lights was developed at the University of Saskatchewan. Its recordings are closely related with other information to give a complete picture.

An "all sky camera" which operates only in darkness, turn itself on automatically at dusk, shuts off at dawn. Camera keeps a continuous photo record of entire night sky during auroral displays.

One of the features of Canada's participation in the International Geophysical Year is the most detailed and elaborate study ever undertaken of the Aurora Borealis—commonly known as the "Northern Lights". Above, receiving antennae for an auroral radar station. By bouncing radio waves off the aurora, it is possible to make a continuous day and night study of the Borealis. Such equipment is indispensable in the north's long winter-sunlit days.

All information is funnelled into the auroral recording centre at Canada's National Research Council in Ottawa where the data are correlated and maps constructed to cover every 15 minutes of auroral activity.

One of many hundreds of observers stationed across Canada makes a direct reading (above) of the Aurora Borealis. Many Astronomical societies, airline pilots, and weathermen are cooperating in the survey.

Round mirror of the "all sky camera" reflects the entire night sky. Two types of cameras (16mm. and 35mm.) have been set up at strategic spots across Canada.

Dr. Peter Millman with model display of northern lights (above) is coordinator of auroral research in Canada. Understanding of the Aurora Borealis holds key to many unanswered questions about the upper atmosphere.

INDIANS' DOCTOR IS ON TRIAL FOR TREATING WHITE MAN

Dr. Michael Ash is on trial at Little Current, Ont., charged with treating a white man, whom he thought was an emergency case, without an Ontario practitioner's license. The charge was laid by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons after it sent out a "spotter" to pose as an emergency case. When Dr. Ash took on emergency cases, he remitted the money to the crown.

CHEMICAL & ORGANIC FERTILIZERS

Lawn grasses need feeding just like any other crop that grows. We've seen lots of cases where a poor, brown or weedy lawn has been revitalized in one season by two or three applications of a good balanced fertilizer.

There are two types of fertilizer available; the slower-releasing solid or organic base fertilizers (Milorganite, So-Green etc.) and the quick acting soluables (RX-15, Lawn Green etc.). Solid fertilizers last longer and give slower but more lasting results; liquid fertilizers produce faster reactions, but should be applied more frequently.

Either type has a place and we'll be pleased to make a recommendation for your particular situation and need . . .

DEATH IS THEIR GUARDIAN

Macabre is the word for this strange piece of sculpture, fashioned from gnarled tree roots and tree limbs in Frankfurt, Germany. Created by locksmith Karl Bacher, 53, it depicts the grinning skull of death watching over the "Big Four" statesmen. The political figures represented, from top to bottom are: President Eisenhower; Prime Minister Macmillan; French Premier De Gaulle; and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Dairy Industry Concerned Over Drop in Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's dairy industry is concerned over a drop in butter sales but encouraged over a continuing rise in other dairy products, the National Dairy Council says.

Announcing it will hold its two-day annual meeting at Montreal Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, the council said sales are running at an all-time high for fluid milk and cream, ice cream, evaporated milk, skim milk powder and cheese.

"However, butter, which uses about one-half the total milk supply, has shown a disturbing drop in sales while its competitor, oleomargarine, with a price advantage of some 40 cents a pound, is increasing at over 1,000,000 pounds a month."

Legal Notices Given Paper By Duplessis

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir yesterday received legal notices Wednesday from Premier Duplessis, Lieutenant - Governor Onesime Gagnon, Hon. Edouard Asselin, government leader in the legislative council, and five members of the provincial cabinet demanding retractions of statements about them in a series of articles on a provincial car transaction.

Similar notices were given to the newspaper last month. The second notices asking for retractions say that these were issued because of statements made by the newspaper since the first notices were served.

In a front-page statement today, publisher Gerard Filion says "we will retract nothing and we are ready to defend ourselves before the courts." The statement is identical to those published under his name last month when the newspaper received the initial notices.

SERIES OF ARTICLES

The legal developments resulted from a series of critical articles published by Le Devoir on the sale of Quebec Hydro's Montreal household gas-distribution system to the privately-owned Quebec Natural Gas Corporation.

The newspaper said a $20,000,000 stock market coup accompanied the transaction and named seven cabinet minister, five legislative councillors, the lieutenant-governor and Mr. Duplessis' private secretary as shareholders or former shareholders in the corporation.

The corporation and commissioners of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission said there was nothing irregular in the deal.

The notices were sent under provisions of the Quebec Press Act, under which a newspaper has three days to retract statements that any person deems damaging to himself.

The act adds: "If the newspaper fully retracts and establishes good faith, in its issue published on the day following the receipt of such notice or on the day next after such day, only actual and real damage may be claimed." If no retraction is made, a damage suit may be started in Superior Court.

Rain and Prayer Only Hopes for Checking Fire

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP) — About 170 men today continued to fight the advance of Alberta's largest forest fire of the year which so far has swept across 180,000 acres of scrub bush in the Peace River district.

That blaze and forest fires in northeastern British Columbia have unfolded a smoky haze across northwestern Alberta, blotting out the sky over this town about 300 miles northwest of Edmonton.

L. P. Gauthier, superintendent of the Peace River forestry division, said Wednesday "we have tried everything and the only thing left is for rain and prayer."

The fire, which burned three times the area swept by all other fires in Alberta this year, has swept into stands of young pine and spruce along the head waters of the Whitemud and Notikewin Rivers.

Drivers Work Too Long Hours, Company Fined

BRAMPTON (CP) — A Hamilton trucking firm was fined $200 and costs Wednesday for letting four of its drivers work 80 hours or more a week.

Manders Limited was also fined $50 for not filing a certified copy of its payroll with the Ontario labor department.

The charges first of their kind heard in an Ontario court, were laid under the Hours of Work Act. This sets the work day at eight hours, the work week at 48 hours, and allows 12 hours overtime a week byp ermission from the labor department. The firm had not applied for an overtime permit.

The firm pleaded guilty to all charges. Crown Attorney A. G. Davis of Brampton said the charges resulted from an accident in Brockville when a Manders driver was involved in a collision after 50 hours on the road without sleep.

In one of the charges a Manders driver was said to have worked 120 hours in one week.

No Word of Bid By Avro Arrow For Speed Record

TORONTO (CP) — The Avro Arrow flew new trials over Ontario Wednesday but there was no word on an unofficial bid to set a Commonwealth air speed record.

Chief experimental test pilot Jan Zurakowski took the CF-105 on a combat range check-one of the many trials that the batwinged 25-ton jet is undergoing in its advanced development.

It was announced earlier that Wladyslav Spud Potocki would not fly the Arrow. Potocki, a wartime associate of Zurakowski, was to have been assigned to the Arrow for increased supersonic speed tests.

Last week Zurakowski approached the 1,132 m.p.h. record set in Britain in 1956 in a Fairey delta. Officials of the company now believe the Arrow is almost ready to better that speed.

FIVE-MONTH TOUR

LONDON (Reuters) — The Old Vic Theatre Company will leave here by air Sept. 9 for a five-month American and Canadian tour. It was announced Wednesday. The tour, opening in San Francisco Sept. 10, will feature three Shakespearean plays—Hamlet, Twelfth Night and Henry V.

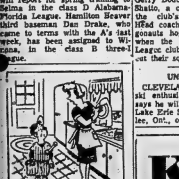
Adams Signs 21 Players, No Holdouts

DETROIT (AP) — General manager Jack Adams has signed 21 Detroit Red Wing hockey players and anticipates no holdout trouble.

Only five players in the National Hockey League club are unsigned and only one of that group is a regular—defenceman Marcel Pronovost.

"I talked with Marcel recently and he's going to sign when he comes in Detroit," said Adams. "We'll have no trouble at all."



The team has abandoned its Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., training site and will do its pre-season work on Detroit Olympic ice.

GEOFFRION FINED

TIMMINS (CP) — Hockey star Bernard (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens in National Hockey League was fined yesterday $50 and costs or 14 days for speeding. Geoffrion did not appear in court. Police said on Aug. 1 he was driving towards Matheson, 40 miles east of here, travelling at speeds up to 100 miles an hour.

VISEAU SIGNED

HAMILTON (CP) — Kansas City Athletics of the American League, have announced the signing of a second Hamilton player, Ron Visbeau, 19, a pitcher for Hamilton Optimist Cardinals in the Intercounty Baseball Association's junior series this year, will report for spring training to Selma in the class D Alabama-Florida League. Hamilton Beaver third baseman Dan Drake, who came to terms with the A's last week, has been assigned to Wichita, in the class B three-I league.

Cobourg Ousts Juveniles With 5-3 Victory

Cobourg exploded for four runs in the fourth frame last night to shade Belleville 5-3 in the deciding game of their OBA Juvenile "A" playdown series. Cobourg took the series two games to one with one tie.

Belleville jumped into a 2-0 lead in the initial frame and made it 3-0 in the top of the fourth but they could not control the home duffs in the bottom of the frame. Cobourg used four of their six singles along with three Bellerville errors to plate their runs. They added an insurance tally in the fifth.

Fred Mayhew hurled the victory, allowing six hits. He whiffed eight and issued one free ticket.

Gordie Vaughan hurled well for Belleville but lacked support as his mates batted five times. He gave up six singles, fanned seven and walked twice.

Cobourg batters divided their base hits among Arnew, Richards, Ewart, Sharpe, Taylors, and Harris.

Denis Kerrish paced the losers with a triple and a single. The other four hits, all one-baggers, went to Ralph Plant, Jackie Elliott, John Brennan, and Ralph Boomhower.

Jimmy Beecham Scores Upset To Beat Boyd

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Jimmy Beecham of Miami punched his way to a unanimous decision over Bobby Boyd of Chicago to a hotly fought 10-round fight Wednesday night.

Boyd, ranked No. 10 among the welterweight, was hurt in the first and had the longer reach but Beecham scored repeatedly with looping lefts to the head and right crosses to the body.

Beecham, ranked among the top 10, started slowly but opened up in the middle rounds and Boyd was busy jabbing with his left most of the way after that.

Ken Ford Out

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback prospect Ken Ford, who played college football in the United States last season, was released Wednesday by Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four union.

His departure left Canadian Gerry Doucette and import Dick Shatto, a converted halfback, as the club's only quarterbacks. Head coach Hamp Pool said Argonauts hope to obtain another when the National Football League clubs in the U.S. begin to cut their squads.

Gleason Returning to TV With Usual Stock of Laughs

By CHARLES MERCER

AT THE PARK — London, the greatest Guy since Sir Tim Tim, stars with Fleecy the Lamb in the "Littlest Hobo" now showing at the Park Theatre. Its the same program "Snowfire" in radiant Technicolor and Cinemascope. Also starring Molly Bee. Doors open at 1.15 p.m.

NEW YORK (AP) — Finally heeding the sensible arguments that the people want to laugh, Jackie Gleason is returning to weekly television after a year's absence with a half-hour all comedy variety program.

The show, which will make its debut Oct. 3 (8:30 p.m. EST) over CBS-TV, is similar in format to his program of two years ago: the Gleason gallery of characters abetted by Buddy Hackett.

It should be good news to millions of viewers—and if the TV critics don't bother to tune in, Gleason couldn't care less. For those currently enjoying Gleason in The Honeymooners, the No. 1 filmed rerun, it may be confusing to hear he has been away from live television for a year. But he has.

He's been writing, conducting and recording music, he's been thinking, reading and seldom turning on a TV set. He's taken up golf. In the process 60 pounds have melted off Gleason, with 20 more to go before he wastes away to his desired 200.

Critics and columnists have long heeded Gleason's canard as to why Gleason quit his live TV show two years ago.

Canard: his friend, Perry Como of NBC-TV, beat him in the ratings battle. Gleason during 39 weeks Como outpointed him only 11 weeks. Canard: he couldn't get a sponsor. Truth: Five sponsors were bidding for his services. Canard: Gleason on film would be as good as Gleason live. Truth: 66 per cent of the viewers always saw him on kinescope film anyway.

"You can't get angry with critics when you know they obviously haven't got the facts," says Gravy Gleason. "I've made a couple of million bucks in television and when a critic says I don't know what I'm doing it's tragically humorous."

As an actor, Gleason has turned down movie offers based on the appeal of Gleason as a comedian —"when you give yourself away on television, you have to do something different to get them to pay to see you." As a comedian, he feels that his greatest strength is in being able to play a variety of comic roles while most comedians play only them selves.

AT THE BELLE — Diane Varsi of "Peyton Place" stars with Gary Cooper and Suzy Parker, in Twentieth Century-Fox's production of John O'Hara's, "Ten North Frederick", a fascinating story of a wealthy family and their secret lives, playing tonight, Friday and Saturday at the Belle Theatre.

Business Is Booming In Entertainment Capital

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—(AP) — Entertainment is booming in the show business capital of the world.

The Hollywood Bowl is finishing up a record season. The Greek Theatre, once a civic white elephant, has been booming. Maurice Chevalier, Danny Kaye, Jose Greco, Cyril Richard, the ballet and now Jerry Lewis have proved to be sure-fire attractions.

That fabulous invalid, the theatre, is booming. Eve Arden brought boo town as Auntie Mame and she'll have one of the longest runs in recent times at the Biltmore.

Half a block away at the Philharmonic Auditorium, The Music Man is displaying his brassy wares nightly to packed houses. Forrest Tucker is winning many friends with his job in the Robert Preston role. The guy deserves a better fate than horse operas.

PARKS DOING GREAT

The parks are doing great. A return visit to Disneyland impressed me once more what a unique wonderland it is. It's a rare treat to sit in the plaza as the lights begin to blink on in the evening and watch the delighted throngs.

Pacific Ocean Park also is getting off the ground in fine style. The joint venture of CBS and Santa Anita has drawn 500,000 in the first 30 days of its seaside amusements. Marineland also is doing well.

And don't leave the movie business out of the picture. Hollywood is bringing up its biggest guns to aim for the late-summer trade.

PECKS THROWS PARTY

Last weekend Gregory Peck tossed a party to celebrate his Big Country premiere and it seemed as though the cast of days had returned to Hollywood. The picture was exactly that, a western in the truly epic tradition, it is movie making at its best.

There are plans for Tea Cat On a Hot Tin Roof, a fine, taut drama with Elizabeth Taylor, Rainbeau Debutante, all fluff and delightful; The Defiant Ones, a return to tight, meaningful story-telling; White Wilderness, a Disney delight; The Hunters, a zippy set film.

Loop Rejects Pension Plan For Players

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Directors of the International Baseball League have rejected a pension proposal submitted by player representatives of the eight-club league.

In a statement issued after the meeting Wednesday the directors said they were sympathetic with the pension request but that they had found the cost would not be economically feasible.

They said the proposal is a contribution of $1.50 a day by each player to be matched by the clubs.

The players are seeking a pension plan similar to that now in effect in the majors.

The International League directors said that the major league plan cited about $5,500,000 annually.

It is financed almost entirely from world series and all-star game television revenues—sources not available to the International.

DIAMOND PLAYDOWNS

With the holiday weekend coming up many of city and district folks will be taking it easy...taking a trip to the Toronto Exhibition, or maybe spending another quiet weekend at the family cottage.

Most of the people that I expect, those connected with sport. As always in the playdown season, things will be humming all over the place and it certainly is no exception here in Belleville.

The local clubs all seem to have got off on the right foot and providing the Bobcats won in Peterborough last night and the Juveniles in Cobourg, no Belleville club has bitten the dust yet in Ontario playdowns.

Latest team to find itself involved in a heavy weekend of action is the Hawks, this city's entry in the OBA peewee playdowns. The Hawks eliminated Cobourg in their opening round and were notified yesterday that Port Colborne was next on the list.

They will play host to the Port Colborne club here Saturday evening at the CNRA Park at 5:30 in the first game of a two-of-three series. Second game will be played at Port Colborne on Monday afternoon, game time two o'clock. If a third game is necessary it too will be played there on the holiday, as the second half of a twin bill.

According to minor officials here the Hawks are a smart young team with a good chance to go all the way. The team is made up of the following players: Domonic Tomaso, Bobby Boyle, Bobby Ethier, Bill Bell, Les Mullins, Walter Clare, Larry Brant, Allan Mott, Jon Rutherford, Dave Hannah, Tommy Locke, Perry Soule, Carl Boomhower, Billy Goodfellow, Rickey Douard, Larry Truman, Pat Glancy and Dwight Rathwell.

While the baseball fixture is slated for 5:30, the CNR diamond will be busy long before that. Turning to softball, Joe Culhane's Booth Radio-TV's will play host to Oshawa here in the second game of their OASA bantam "A" series. That game is scheduled for 3:30. There's lots of minor action so you parents get out and cheer your boys on to victory.

Still on the minor picture, both the bantam and midget squads have won their first rounds and are waiting at the present time for word on who they will meet next. The midgets ousted Trenton without a setback and the bantams turned the same trick against Cobourg.

The juveniles hoped to do the same thing in Cobourg last night and the results will be elsewhere on these sport pages. They dropped their opening game to Cobourg but have come back strongly. They tied one game here 5-5, had another washed out in the second inning, and then downed the visitors in a replay of the tie Tuesday night by one-run margin. They were confident when leaving town yesterday for the big one.

Getting around to the bigger boys we find Point Anne the field of battle this evening, the tournament are playing host to Peterborough Watercraft in the opening game of their OASA intermediate "A" second round series. Game time is 5:30. Pat Miracle will be starting for the Shaw-Lett crew while Peterborough's best, Bobby Green, will likely be on the slab for the visitors. Second game is back in the Lintlock City Saturday night at eight o'clock.

FLASH — Bobcats tied their series with Peterborough, winning 5-1, as Bobby Green turned one-hitter and fanned 10. He was terrific. Third game is here Monday.

While we are on the softball subject, friend Bunny Morganson of the Toronto Telegram passes along good news for any fans who will be attending the Exhibition next week.

The original King and His Court will be playing exhibition games at the "Ex" on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday against Ontario All-Star teams. The four-man team has the "King", Eddie Feinger, on the mound, Meade Kinzer behind the plate, Gerry Jones in the outfield and Mike Mellicke covering the infield. This club originated in 1946 and has been one of the game's big attractions ever since.

GOT A BIRD-DOG?

Open seasons and bag limits for upland game birds for 1958 have been announced by the Hon. J. W. Spooner, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests.

Here in this district where partridge, which are actually grouse, and the "Huns" or Hungarian partridge, are available to the man with a good dog and sharp eye, the season opens on September 27 and lasts until November 15.

You can shoot a "Hun" anywhere in the province except Thunder Bay during this period. The bag limit is eight per day and the possession limit is 16.

Partridge are fair game in Frontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland, Peterborough and Prince Edward, among other counties during the same period. Some areas have different opening and closing dates. The bag limit is five a day and the possession limit is 10.

Happy hunting, but don't jump the starting date or bag too many.

"RASSLIN"

The weekly heavyweight wrestling card tops the sport calendar for Friday night with three fine bouts lined up for Memorial Arena at nine o'clock.

Leading off the night's activity will be Tarzan Tourville and Leo Garibaldi in a one-fall, thirty minute match.

But by the time this one is over the fans should be warmed up enough to watch a tag-team bout, also one-fall, between the brother combination of Joe and Guy Brunetti and Leo Henning and Tiger Tasker.

Then, to wind up the evening with a bang, Gene Kiniski, the game's meanest meanie, will tackle Bernard "Frenchy" Vignal in the two-of-three falls main event. It's an action-packed card all the way.

Squeezed Out by Giants Now Plays Smart First Base; Braves Lose Little of Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Writer

Gail Harris, squeezed out of a job with the San Francisco Giants, has become Detroit's No. 2 gunner now that the Tigers have given him a home at first base.

That's all he needed. In parts of three National League seasons the 30-year-old lefty hitter had batted only .228, with 22 home runs and 68 runs batted in. Now, after 104 games in the American League, he's batting .285, leading the Tigers in homers (14) and triples (7) and is second only to Al Kaline in RBI with 61—just five less than his total for 181 games with the Giants.

Harris was right handy Wednesday, driving in six of nine Tiger runs in a day-night doubleheader split at Boston. He had a two-run homer and a two - run double as they won the nightcap 7-2, and singled home both Detroit runs in a 2-1 afternoon defeat.

AS CLOBBERER YANKS

Kansas City ripped New York 11-7, reducing the pennant-bound Yankees' edge to 1½ games. The Athletics were right handy Wednesday, driving in six of nine runs as they won a twi-night doubleheader split at Boston. He had a two-run homer and a two - run double as they won the nightcap 7-2, and singled home both Detroit runs in a 2-1 afternoon defeat.

He had a two-run homer and a two - run double as they won the nightcap 7-2, and singled home both Detroit runs in a 2-1 afternoon defeat.

Harris homered in the nightcap first, then doubled in the winning run in the afternoon finale. Charley Maxwell, who drove in Detroit's other three, hit a two-run homer off Dick Hyde in the nightcap lock (12-4). Paul Foytack (10-11) won it.

Harvey Kuenn was 6-for-9 in the pair for Detroit and took the American League bat lead at .328. Boston's Pete Runnels (2-for-6) slipped to second at .327 with Kansas City's Bob Cerv (2-for-5) third at .326.

GET 14 HITS

The As scored seven unearned runs in the first off Johnny Kucks (4-7). Tom Gorman (4-4) was in in relief for the As, who lagged four pitchers for 18 hits. Yogi Berra hit his 20th homer and Mickey Mantle socked his 27th.

Southpaw Billy Hoeft won his 15th with a four - hitter for the White Sox, giving up a seventh-inning run to Norm Zauchin. Camilo Pascual (7-9) lost it.

The Indians had 15 hits but Gil McDish needed ninth - inning relief for his 14th victory. Don Mossi drove on with a run in the bases loaded and none out. He gave up Billy Harrell's single to Boyd, then fanned Gene Woodling and Bob Nieman and got Joe Ginsberg on a grounder. Connie Johnson (6-8) lost it.

Pitching: Al Worthington, San Francisco Giants, Milwaukee Braves without a hit in three relief innings for a 3-2 victory in 12 innings.

Hitting: Gail Harris, Detroit Tigers—Drove in six of Tigers' nine runs in day-night doubleheader split against Boston Red Sox. Singled home winning run in 2-1 defeat, then hit two-run homer and a two-run double in 7-2 victory.

San Francisco Giants finally squashed Milwaukee's hex, hiking the law of averages for a double dozen behind the Milers' relief pitching of Al Worthington.

The Giants had lost eight in a row to the Braves and Worthington had been there only twice in 15 decisions before the big righthander backed up his almost perfect three-inning job on the mound with a 12th-inning single that led to a 3-2 victory Wednesday night.

That clipped the Braves' National League lead to seven games over Pittsburgh Pirates, who popped it his and beat St. Louis Cardinals 14-1. Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 8-7 and Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 with Ernie Banks pushing his major league-leading home run total to 42.

WALKS CEPEDA

The Giants made it as Bob Trowbridge of Milwaukee walked Orlando Cepeda with the bases loaded in the 12th, cracking a single that had stood since Joe Adcock beat the Braves' cause with a pinch home run in the seventh. Worthington then got Jackie Brandt to load the bases.

Worthington (5-5) gave the Braves nothing but a walk in his three innings. Stu Miller went the first nine. Then the Braves' only home run, following a walk to Cepeda, came in the fourth on an eight-inch drive to right field.

Battle Raging For Fourth, Final Playoff Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the top three spots in the International League pretty well sewed up, the battle now rages for the fourth and final playoff berth.

Columbus, 17 games behind league-leading Montreal, is the current occupant, but Miami is only a game behind, and Richmond is 1½ games back in sixth.

Richmond is making the most serious bid at the moment for fourth, knocking off Columbus 9-5 Wednesday night for their third straight victory. Havana dropped Miami 9-2 to vacate the cellar as Buffalo lost 6-3 to Montreal, Rochester and second - place Toronto split a doubleheader, Rochester winning the opener 2-0 and Toronto the nightcap 13-0.

WHIFFS 12

Emilio Cueche struck out 12 for his 13th victory against 10 losses for Havana.

Borrego Alvarez of Havana smacked his 24th homer. Satchel Paige took the loss.

Bob Lennon hit a three-run homer with two out in the top of the ninth inning to give Montreal's victory.

The fans held up the game 15 minutes with a barrage of beer cans and paper cups after Leo Kiely, Miami pitcher, was rankled when Betz called a runner safe at second on an attempted pickoff play. With runners on first and second and one out, Bob Gray beat out a double play bounder on a close play at first. The fans were in an uproar, and when Lennon, next up, slammed the first pitch for a homer into the loge their barrage.

PEPPER WINS

The Red Wings' Hugh Pepper edged Pat Scantlebury in the first game.

Gary Blaylock took his 10th loss in the second game. Rocky Nelson hit his 39th home run for Toronto as Rudy Minarcin won his eighth victory in 18 decisions.

STILL ARRANGING

NEW YORK (CP) — Negotiations for a fight between Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., and Archie Moore are still in progress, Harry Markson of the International Boxing Club says. If arranged, the bout would be in Montreal, probably late in October. Markson, managing director of the club, said he expects to hear from Moore in a day or two.

Second Attempt To Swim Lake Ends in Failure

TORONTO — Alouna Koen of Montreal has failed in her second attempt to swim Lake Ontario.

The 16-year - old student was pulled from the water at midnight after more than seven hours and 18 miles on the 32-mile course from the mouth of the Niagara River to Toronto's waterfront.

Her legs were going numb and her back was giving out when she decided to quit. Officials said Alouna will not likely try the lake crossing again this year since it has to return to school.

Last Friday she was pulled out with cramps. She holds the record for the longest distance swim in Canada—65 miles between Montreal and Sorel, Que., along the St. Lawrence River.

ANOTHER CHECKER

Another marathon swimmer who planned to tackle the lake lost her financial support when a Toronto real estate pulled out "because lake swims have lost their glory."

James Squigma was to have sponsored 20-year-old Asha Leaseyole of Elliot Lake in her bid. She is a former conqueror of the English Channel but has failed three times to swim Lake Ontario.

"Nobody gives a darn about the swim," Squigma said Wednesday in St. Catharines. He blamed it on too many swimmers attempting the lake without any real intention of finishing.

Bobby Green's One-Hitter Gives Bobcats Series Tie

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville's Bobby Green turned in a spectacular pitching performance last night as the Bobcats defeated Peterborough Queen's Hotel 5-1, tying their OSA Intermediate "AA" series at one game each.

The third and deciding game in this zone four title series will be played at the CNRA Park here in Belleville Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

Green, the 'Cats' ace southpaw, hurled his best game in years to stop the Petes under the lights right on their own diamond. He faced only 29 batters, two over the limit, gave up one infield single and a walk, and blazed third strikes by 20 Peterborough batters.

He also helped his own cause at the plate by slamming a run-scoring double to the fence in deep left field during Bobcats' game-winning rally.

For a while it appeared Green's effort would be a wasted one. The Hotel crew opened their lone run in the third inning for a 1-0 lead. Bobcats knotted the score in the fourth but it was not until the eighth that they came to life at the plate, scoring four runs for the 5-1 triumph.

Don "Snuff" Locke gave the 'Cats their tie-breaking run with one out in the eighth, slamming a home run over the right field fence. This snapped his mates into a tilting mood and Bert Faulkner followed with a double. Earl Cousins drove him home with a sharp single and on the next play, a sacrifice by Bunny Wiechorek, Peterborough threw the ball away twice—without getting a man on—Bobcats made it 4-1. Green then smashed his two-bagger for the final run. A wild throw by Ford followed and "Wiener" Brown lined a terrific blast to deep centre, only to have Ross Jamieson spear the sinking liner for the third out.

Meanwhile Green had started the game by fanning five of the first six batters he faced. He gave up a single to Bob Cassidy in the first frame. The next two men went down but runner reached third when Catcher "Cap" Wiechorek plated the run when he hit a slow roller toward second base. Shortstop "Wiener" Brown raced over and made a fine play but was a step too late as Leska crossed the plate and Wiechorek had his club's lone hit.

Belleville tied it with two out in the fourth when Earl Cousins doubled to left and Russell's infield single to short scored him, following a passed ball.

Meanwhile after Wiechorek's single, Green never allowed another base runner, retiring 19 batters in a row. The usually wild lefty had excellent control and was seldom behind a batter. He fanned the side in the second, fifth and fourth frames and got two in all the others except the seventh, tripping only one this frame. Peterborough threw one ball to the outfield, a short pop to Guidolin in left field. Green's series strikeout record is now 29 in 15 2-3 frames.

Veteran Reg. Gordon went the route for Peterborough and although allowing 11 hits, had only the one bad inning. He had two strikeouts and passed three.

Earl Cousins, Green's battery mate, spearheaded the Tabbies' attack with a double and two singles in four trips. Bert Faulkner had a double and single while Don Barclay singled twice. Locke homered. Green doubled while "Bey" Guidolin and Paul Russell helped with singles.

Bobcats backed Green's pitching with a perfect night in the field, although they had little to do. Peterborough erred three times.

GUELPH (CP) — Coach Tom Mooney says he has the finest team in Ontario Agricultural Veterinary College Redmen this year in the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

The Redmen begin training Monday with 31 members of last year's team returning.

The Redmen open their eighth game schedule on the road, playing University of Western Ontario in London, Sept. 20. First home game will be with Kingston's Royal Military College Sept. 27.

Oshawa Edges Booth Bantams By 6-5 Score

Booth Radio-TV's dropped a close 6-5 decision to Oshawa in the Minor Group-1 series last night in the opening game of their zone four OASA bantam "A" playdown series.

Second game in the two-of-three set is slated for CNRA Park here Saturday afternoon at 3.30.

Oshawa scored four times in the first frame and were never behind last night. Booth's got going late in the game, netting two in each of the fourth and sixth and one in the fifth but two Oshawa runs in the fifth salted away the victory.

Oshawa pitcher Hobbs struck out 18 Belleville batters while allowing just four hits. He tripped the first three Belleville batters on strikes, He walked four over the route.

Dave Lewis started and took the loss, being relieved by Lorne Patrick to open the fifth. They gave up 12 hits between them, including one and walking nine.

Bobby Boyle hit a two-run homer for Booth's in the sixth while the other Belleville hitters were Rickey Denard with a double and Pete Pickrell and Dave Gallagher with singles.

Elliott had a double and single for Oshawa while Ryan hit a two-run circuit blast. Hobbs, Sage, Bradley and Stanley also had twice while Kitchen and Bickle had one hit each.

Johnny Bower Inks Contract With Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs have signed goaltender Johnny Bower to a two-year National Hockey League contract.

Assistant general manager Stafford Smythe, hired by the Leafs last month, signed the former York Ranger and Cleveland Baron netminder Tuesday in Saskatoon.

Imlach said at a press conference he thinks the team plans to use Ron Bower and Ed Chadwick, the Leafs' regular goaltender last season.

Stafford Smythe, head of a seven-man committee which runs the Leafs, said Bower's acquisition could mean another 10 points in the standings.

"We're using two goalkeepers. We'll be able to change them when the snow signs of tailing off.

"For instance, Chadwick turned in strong games against some clubs last season against which he was weak. Perhaps Bower would be better against the other clubs."

Two Injured In Pileup, One Driver Suspended

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP)—In what local officials termed the worst pileup in the track's history, 12 cars and other vehicles Wednesday during the harness racing at the Tillsonburg Fair. As a result of the mishap, judges decided to suspend the driver responsible, Norman Paul, of Belwood, for the balance of this season.

It is learned in Albert Buehler, of Essex, who received a fractured shoulder and other injuries when he was thrown 25 feet in the upset. McPaul was treated at 207 Telesand.

The mishap occurred when McPaul, tangled with the wheels of a sulky driven by Stan Williams, of Southwold. Both carts upset, horses stumbled to the ground and drivers were thrown clear of the melee.

A split second later, Rufus Jones, with Mr. Buehler driving, charged into the pileup and the driver was catapulted through the air.

Officials said McPaul cut over on the Southwold entry, causing the accident.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Nine all-time highs for attendance and wagering were established at old Woodbine during the 50 - night meeting which concluded Wednesday night.

Figures released by the Ontario Jockey Club showed 181,627 people sent $6,604,112 through the pari-mutuel machines.

In the final night's racing, Jiggs McFadden emerged as winner of the driving competition. He and Hugh McLean were tied with 22 victories apiece, but McFadden's margin of 32 to 17 for place positions gave him the top spot.

In the night's features, $2,000 events for pacers in the eighth race and trotters in the ninth, Rosena Chips, owned by N. Litt and M. Rubin of Stratford, won the trotting event, and Sharon's Counsel, owned by Jim Keeling's Owen Sound stable and driven by third-place driver Wilbert Hopkins, won the pacer.

Howard Perkins of London, Ont., scored in six of the nine races, won the second with Jean Gratton of Smithfield; the fourth with Lee Mac of Penetanguishene and the sixth and seventh with mounts owned by Serge Lafleur of Buckingham, Que.

Perkins and Cornwall driver Wes David Hal to victory in the feature eighth race.

BATAVIA (CP)—Ensign Dilon, owned and driven by Ed Arbuor of Batavia, N.Y., scored one of the featured $2,400 pace by Peter Scott Wednesday night.

Arbuor came on with a bold finish which missed catching the pacer Jerry Hal by narrowest margins. Tar Boy won his ninth straight.

Kitz Lasalle, the property of William C. Woods of Chesley was the third race. Shadow Stone, owned by West Litt of Stratford, finished in a dead heat for first with Kaha Fence in the eighth, a $1300 event.

MONTREAL (CP) — Private Ike, a five-year-old boy gelding from Argyle, N.Y., paced the mile in 2:06 3-5 to win the $1,400 pace at Richelieu Park Wednesday night.

Wee Atom, from Brampton, driven by Harold McKelvey, won the third mile-C pace.

Johnny Bulla Favored to Win Golf Tourney

By NAT COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 44-year-old professional who hasn't won a major tournament in 17 years joined the long list of favorites as 118 golfers teed off today for the $45,000 Centennial Open, Canada's richest golf tournament.

Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., a spasmodic entry in big tournaments, led a field of more than 50 pros with a seven-under-par 65 Wednesday in a pro - amateur tournament preceding the Centennial.

Bulla, who has played in only five tournaments this year, fired seven birdies—five of them in the last nine holes. He scored his only major tournament win in 1941, when he took the Los Angeles Open.

VENTURI HOT

Ken Venturi of San Francisco, third in winnings this year with $33,000, fired an 11-under-par 61 rounds of 68 with a 66 in the pro-amateur.

Moe Norman, the colorful Kitchener and Toronto golfer who has the reputation of being afraid to turn in top scores on practice days, posted a 66, turned in a five-under-par 67.

Five players finished with 68s and the scores went out of the picture.

NO INDICATOR

The "circus" pro - amateur, however, wasn't much of a guide when it comes to picking favorites for the four-day Centennial, which starts Thursday.

For instance Vancouver's Stan Leonard and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Houston, Texas, former singer Gordon McRae setting off fireworks Wednesday night, are not for crucial putts today. Neither will easy-going Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex., and congressman J. C. Gossie of Knoxville, Tenn., have to put up with the playful antics of ex-football coach Annis Stukus.

Wininger and Gossie each had a 68 despite this handicap and rank among leading contenders. But with only seven of the top 30 money-winners existing from the Centennial, nobody is anxious to try picking a winner.

One of the most consistent golfers has been 27-year-old Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., who fired a Wednesday to match similar scores in practice rounds.

Emily's Pride 2- Heat Winner Of Hambletonian

DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Emily's Pride, a big bay filly, trotted a Hambletonian mile second in 1:59 4-5 in the decisive third heat Wednesday in swishing to victory in the $102,719 stake.

Trained by 78-year - old Fred Egan and driven by Flick Sheppard, Emily's Pride showed 22,500 fans at Duquoin's city mile track that she was the solid favorite in the field of 14 three-year-olds.

She won the opening heat in 2:00 1-5, fastest time ever for a filly, then came back well enough in the second mile when she suddenly broke stride and finished 11th.

Little Rocky, an unofficial 12-to-1 shot in the betting, was Canadian and Ontario junior gold champion, walloped Dave Lacey, 16, of Windsor Beach Grove, and 6 Wednesday to win his third consecutive three-heavy goll championships.

He is the first three-time winner of the event.

Panasiuk swept through the three - heat tournament without anybody getting near him. He qualified with a one-over-par 71 and finished half four match play opponents without going past the 15th hole in any of the matches.

Wins Golf Title

WINDSOR (CP) — Bob Panasiuk, 16, of Windsor Roseland Canadian and Ontario junior golf champion, walloped Dave Lacey, 16, of Windsor Beach Grove, 7 and 6 Wednesday to win his third consecutive three-heavy golf championships.

He is the first three-time winner of the event.

Panasiuk swept through the three - heat tournament without anybody getting near him. He qualified with a one-over-par 71 and finished half four match play opponents without going past the 15th hole in any of the matches.

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP) — Willowdale Boy, owned by Peter Del Greco of Toronto and ridden by Norman Lacy, won the $5,000 Colin Stakes for two-year-olds at Fort Erie Jockey Club Wednesday.

Willowdale Boy beat the favored New Providence by a head. Mr. Edgar hung on to finish third.

One of the largest prices of the meeting was recorded in the fourth race when Wine Taster scored a narrow victory over favored Colonel Cowan. Wine Taster paid $42.70, $23.30 and $9.70.

DURELLE FIGHTS

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Yvon Durelle, the happy-go-lucky slugger from Moncton who won Empire light-heavyweight title, is a solid choice to beat Brooklyn's Freddie Mack here tonight in a 10-round non-title scrap. The Bale Ste. Anne, N.B., lobster fisherman, third - ranked light-heavyweight meets the unranked Negro in his first fight since he succesfully defended his Empire title against Canada's Mike Holt in Montreal July 16.

MAKING PROGRESS

NEW YORK (AP)—Jockey Camponella reported Wednesday the former catcher for Brooklyn Dodgers is making up a fight for head with his hands. The catcher told of his comments on a national television program. He added that the Dodgers, now installed in Los Angeles, paid him his wages this year. He still is in a hospital.

PORT PERRY WINS

PORT PERRY, Ont. (CP)—Port Perry Merchants defeated Uxbridge Merchants 8-3 in the opener of their Eastern Ontario Baseball League final Wednesday. The second game of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate "B" best-of-three series

Astrological Forecast

BY CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, August 29

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—There are a great number of small duties that must be attended to infallibly today, though your inclinations are elsewhere. Get them out of the way. This pleasant time for more fascinating pursuits later. Keep working steadily.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Angry pal or one who loves to gossip could today so disturb your thoughts and waste so much of your time is would ruin your nerves, if you permit. Impress upon him or her that you have much work to do. Then get busy and do it.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Do nothing that will reflect upon your good name and standing today. There is power are in a criticizing mood. Don't give them any reason to start in on you, or your credit, job, etc., might suffer thereby. Keep all promises made to the letter.

Moon children. (June 22 to July 21) — Running away from your commitments, as you would like to do, would solve nothing today. Work diligently instead and fine, new ideas will occur to you. Thus you turn problems into dollars. P. M. have nothing to do with shifty outsiders.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) Here is a day when you want to be inordinately extravagant, or get in the way of higher ups who are almost at breaking point owing to difficult problems they are currently facing. Get your bills paid instead and work.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—An upset associate could really hurt things up for you if you let him or her in any way. Stick to own labors conscientiously instead and give a word of praise or gratitude now and then. Don't hurt anyone today.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Imperative you work more slowly and with particular care today, since there is a tendency to bring little damages, errors here and there. This brings fine returns. P.M. take care of your health.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—While you wish to enjoy yourself at any expense today, you also are tempted to alienate the affection or regard of one you most admire by some uncalled-for remarks. Economize instead, and be charming and clever.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you do not understand that keeping your equilibrium is most necessary, today, you would have quite an argument at home or elsewhere. Be particularly considerate of others and listen to their side of situation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A day for taking great care while out driving, walking, traveling in conveyances of all kinds. Try not to forget or lose anything, too. And refrain from uttering words that could start unfortunate arguments.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Take care you are not extravagant or invest so much that you will be unable to meet later demands. Spend your time making conversation, repairs instead. Also, get your bookkeeping system adjusted better.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Feeling very irate, you would like to storm and break things. Go out to your beautician, barber and get yourself nicely groomed. This will do wonders for your disposition, state of mind. Relax.

If your child is born today ... The rather depressed and depressive little child born today will early need training in religious and ethical subjects in order to mature into a happy and practical adult. The potential is great, however, and the chances fine for such professions as expediter, credit adjuster, skilled work. But particularly is it good for any ventures that have to be brought down to workable level.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

MOST HANDSOME THRUSH

Of birds bearing the surname "thrush", which means omitting the robin and the bluebird, probably the wood thrush is l e a s t known to Canadians. At first, thought, this may seem curious, because its 8 inches make it the largest, and it carries the most points of distinction for the confusingly similar members of the group. It is chunkier in build than the other thrushes, large, round black spots cover the breast, and the head is an extremely reddish brown.

However, until recent years Canadians have had little opportunity of observing this handsome bird of the south-because it seldom came beyond southeastern Ontario. Although there has been a considerable spreading out in the last forty years, the w o o d thrush is still far from common elsewhere in Canada; and because it chooses woodlands (as the name would indicate) in which to hide or shady spots among tall trees in more residential areas, we rarely see it.

But the tall trees are useful only as parasols, for the wood thrush spends much time scratching around among dead leaves on chance of finding the bird. the ground to find insect food, which is occasionally supplemented with some small fruits.

The nest is placed in the crotch of a bough, from 5 to 15 feet up, of their eggs in the nest of birds larger than themselves; however, last autumn the nest of a w o o d thrush was found in the Montreal district with two cowbird eggs.

The sweet song of a wood thrush, always given from a low branch, is as distinctive as its appearance. No other member of the family always sings in groups of three notes of equal value. T h e range is great. There is no definite beginning or ending — the song just goes on and on with clear, flutelike notes, some always quite low. The bird's scolding note, which you may hear if you disturb it, is a sharp, rapid "pit, pit, pit, pit".

Not until well on in September does the wood thrush l e a v e Canada for Central America; but once the breeding season has passed and the singing begins to peter out we have even less chance of finding the bird.

NOWLAN SAYS CBC

chatelets (L — Montreal Masonneuve-Rosemont) raised the case of 116 customs officials in the port of Montreal who have been told they will receive compensating time off instead of pay for future extra work, Mr. Nowlan said there is no easy answer.

The men prefer cash, he said, but civil service regulations stipulate that time off must be given in return where possible. That left discretion to administrative officers but they also had responsibility to enforce the regulations.

NOT SATISFIED

Mr. Nowlan made these points in discussion of CBC spending estimates:

A $710,000 option on two sites in the Don Mills area of Toronto, designed to "centralize" CBC activities now carried on in more than 20 buildings, has been allowed to lapse because Mr. Nowlan is not satisfied with "appraisals" he ordered.

There is no early hope for television coverage in the Churchill area — distance does make a difference" — but developments promise that its radio needs will shortly be met.

In the case of Newfoundland, it is thought the CBC TV network will be extended to St. John's by next summer.

COMPLAINS OF PROGRAM

Audience reaction to TV programs also was discussed. For the second time in three days, Hubert Badanai (L — Fort William) brought up the case of an item of rootless ill added. Four blue green eggs are laid, similar in though naturally smaller than a robin's. Cowbirds are generally wise enough to avoid putting one larger than themselves; however, thrush was found in the Montreal district with two cowbird eggs.

Goderich Chief Refuses to Quit, Is Suspended

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief F. M. Hall refused to resign as head of the Goderich police force Wednesday and was immediately suspended by the Goderich Police Commission at a special meeting.

The commission had offered Chief Hall and Constable Albert Smith a "resign or be fired" ultimatum. The constable handed in his resignation and it was accepted.

He had been given 48 hours to admit the charges or prepare his defense. The chief asked whether he was entitled to engage counsel.

Peiping Threat May Lead U.S. To Defend Isles

Communists Artillery Attack Reaches Peak

WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials said today a new Peiping threat will weigh heavily in any decision by President Eisenhower on sending U.S. forces against key Red Chinese invaders in the Formosa strait.

The state department was impressed by Peiping's statement of an impending invasion that it issued a hand-off warning to Red Chinese Communists Thursday.

The United States is pledged by treaty to defend the big Nationalist island of Formosa and the nearby Pescadores Islands, about 100 miles from the China mainland.

EISENHOWER TO DECIDE

Congress left it up to Eisenhower to decide whether any Red Chinese attack on Quemoy, Matsu, small islands closer to the mainland, was the start of an attack on Formosa and the Pescadores.

If Eisenhower decided it was, the next step could be to oppose it with the 7th Fleet and other American military power.

This, in part, is what Peiping radio said: Red guns pounding Quemoy and Matsu in a continuing record bombardment:

"The Chinese People's Liberation Army is determined to liberate the fatherland's territory of Taiwan (Formosa) and the coastal islands."

SAY ISLAND DOOMED

"The radio-called on Nationalist defenders of Quemoy to surrender, saying "The island is doomed . . . a landing is imminent."

U.S. officials said this is probably the most serious statement yet made by the Chinese on this subject.

They said it might be interpreted as an expression of intent to conquer Quemoy as part of Peiping's ultimate goal — conquest of Formosa and destruction of President Chiang Kai-shek's regime.

SOME DOUBTS

There was speculation on Formosa that if the Reds really intended to take the Quemoy area, they would not broadcast it in advance.

However, if Eisenhower accepted the interpretation that the Reds intend to try to take Quemoy as a step toward conquering Formosa, it would be within his discretion to order American forces into action.

The 7th Fleet already is on alert. It has been conducting war exercises with Chiang's military establishment.

Eisenhower told his press conference that because the National Security Council for the Investigation of Peiping's intentions, and the organization plans to carry out the tests for a pill that can be swallowed to control pregnancy.

Wright said he already has 300 women who have had one method of birth control whose effectiveness has not yet been established.

The tests will range over a two-year period. They hoped to narrow down known methods to the best one.

Then the medical organization hopes to develop a simple contraceptive pill that can be taken orally.

Hurricane Daisy Growing Weaker, New England Safe, Not Maritimes

NEW YORK (CP)—New England escaped hurricane Daisy today, as the storm moved past northeast course but there was a threat it would strike the Canadian Maritime provinces.

The weather bureau at Boston said except for the offshore waters around Cape Cod the threat to the U.S. is over.

The bulletin, however, the weather bureau said Daisy was expected to hit almost every part of Nova Scotia, southern New Brunswick and eastern Prince Edward Island.

High tides were expected to run up to six feet by midnight.

Hurricane warnings remained displayed from Provincetown, Mass., to Block Island, R.I., but will be lowered to gale warnings later today.

The Boston weather bureau said Daisy seems to be decreasing in intensity.

As Daisy skirted eastern Long Island and Connecticut on Friday, Bright sun flooded New York city from clear skies immediately after the storm had passed.

105 DISTRICT PEOPLE PAID FINES IN WEEK

"Follow the birds to Victoria" is common invitation extended to the people of Canada by citizens of the capital of British Columbia.

One hundred and five Belleville district people followed each other to O.P.P. headquarters during the past week and paid fines for speeding or for infractions of the Highway Traffic Act.

Police hope motorists become more mindful of the laws regulating their driving so that they do not follow the birds to the police station or court.

Both O.P.P. and city police today urged motorists to take double precautions when out on the highways over the Labor Day weekend. Labor Day weekend is considered by police to be one of the worst times in the year for highway accidents.

"I have no interest in motor cars," he said, "other than in any other part of the city. In the old days I used to walk a favorite spot for fighters," he said.

PC Nominee Lloyd H. Price Elected East Hastings MLA By Acclamation on Thursday

The Warden of Hastings County, Lloyd H. Price of Actinolite, was declared elected Progressive Conservative member for Hastings East at a nomination meeting held on Thursday afternoon in the Madoc armouries before Ken Vivian, Queen's Park Returning Officer. There were no other nominations for the by-election slated to be held on September 11th.

The by-election was called after Progressive Conservative member for the riding for 15 years, resigned his position to take over the sheriff's post in the County. Mr. Price was chosen as the party candidate at a nomination meeting held in Madoc two weeks ago, when he defeated five others aspiring for the office.

After Mrs. Vivian had read the writ declaring the by-election, the Returning Officer informed the many hopeful nominations and when no papers were presented Mr. Vivian declared Mr. Price elected the elected member for Hastings East, as several radio listeners from the district looked on.

Mr. Price in a few words stated it was a great honor to be elected member for the riding.

"It has been an easy fight as no opposition has been forthcoming but I do not know what will be fought out and more candidates will be in the field when a general election is called probably in the early part of next year," said Mr. Price. "I feel I will prove worthy of the trust that has been placed in me by the electors of the riding. I will always try to serve everyone, of politics or faith. I will be a Legislature during my term of office."

At this point, Douglas McPherson, president of the Hastings East Liberal Association, stated that "it is the opinion of the local Association that the by-election is completely unjustified. Mr. Frost should not have accepted the resignation of the member for Hastings East because it is a violation of the principles of good government for a member to give up his seat to take an appointment of political patronage." He said that very soon a Liberal candidate will be appointed to contest Hastings East in the provincial general election whenever it is called.

LLOYD H. PRICE

The newly-elected Conservative member for the riding is a farmer and has his brother in the Log Cabin Gasoline Station and Restaurant at Actinolite. He was born at Whitevale and was educated at the public school at Whitevale and Tweed High School. Mr. Price has been in business since 1936, but took time off to give five years of his life in the service of his country in the active service in England, France, Belgium and Germany. He landed in Normandy on D-Day.

He entered municipal life as a councillor for his township in 1947 and served until 1954, then becoming reeve by acclamation, a post he still occupies. He was elected warden three times. Mr. Price was chairman of the PC Association in this township for six years and is secretary of the Hastings-Frontenac PC Association. The new member was active in establishing a museum proposed by the city and county historical societies.

Mr. Price is married to the former Miss Shirley Bonga of Tweed and four children, have been born of this union, three girls and a boy. Fraternally he is a member of Tweed Masonic Lodge and he is a member of The Canadian Legion also at Tweed.

Good Progress Being Made Installing Gas Lines in Town

TRENTON — Gas line officials said yesterday it is expected they will be finished work on the east side of the river about the middle of September and they will start putting in the lines on the west side some time between the first and fifteenth of next month.

At present the main body of men are working on the line running along Marmora Street, with smaller lines being run down the streets between there and Ontario Street.

Another main point of operations is along the railway tracks between Marmora Street crossing and the foot bridge where the line will cross the Trent River and carry the gas to the west side of town. At this spot they have run into a serious handicap in the form of rock and it is necessary for the crews to use explosives to remove it.

Officials say they are having the co-operation from just everyone concerned in Trenton although they realize there has been some inconvenience about the streets being closed to traffic. They say they have done everything in their power to only keep the streets closed down for a minimum time and where ever possible have left the street open to at least one-way traffic.

Although the company would like to get down to work digging the trench on Dundas Street East they have decided to leave the highway clear of any obstruction until after Labour Day when they realize traffic will be extra heavy. They will, however get at it as soon after the holiday weekend as possible.

The Burkhardt Construction Company of Oshawa, who have the contract for digging the trenches and laying the pipe say they are averaging about 2,000 to 2,500 feet per day despite the many conditions they have run up against. One of their biggest is the trouble they have to be removed by hand after the digging machines have loosened them and brought them to the surface.

These boulders are later hauled away and removed rather than having them put back in the trench. After the piping is completed other crews follow with the pipe and it is welded together and laid. Other men follow up putting sand around the pipe to cushion it and in the last operation heavy machinery again moves in to push the heavier soil back into the trench. Having crews will follow at a later date to repair the streets which are now being torn up and hammered the loose fill down.

ACROSS RIVER

The largest operation in the gas line installation is the crossing of the river. It is expected they will start this work on the north end of next week. At present the pipe is assembled on the west bridge just south of the foot bridge.

Operations there are unique and are being handled by a special crew of men. The lengths of pipe have all been cased in cement and are being welded together on the west side of the river. An empty gasoline drum is strayed to the line at about every two feet to provide buoyancy and the river bed is then dredged in which has been dug in the bottom and will be further padded with sand and then filled over.

When crews begin working on the west side of the river the gas company officials are to make the decision on whether or not they will put the line through Champlain Heights. As yet it is under discussion at the main office. The possibility of a housing development have presented a petition to the town and the gas company officials say they did not wish to have the gas put into area because most of the homes, which are new, have modern and up to date heating units now. The petition does stated they did not want their streets or boulevards torn up when they do not intend to use the gas.

STAR GAZERS

Canada's first astronomical observatory at Fredericton, N.B., in 1851, was founded to establish the town's longitude.

Special Meeting On Sewage Held in Camera

TRENTON — A special meeting, in camera, was held in the board room of the Municipal Building concerning the removal of sewage from a large Trenton industry yesterday afternoon and was under the chairmanship of Councillor Charles Hilton.

In an interview following the session Mr. Hilton said the meeting with the five officials of the plant, which was not named, involved a no fore a problem, which is facing several municipalities in that it is the proper disposal of sewage from their firms as well as the supply of water.

Mr. Hilton said, "When it comes to sewers we elected officials have only a rubber stamp for the Ontario Water Resources Commission. We actually cannot put in a sewer in Trenton without their permission. It seems to me there are too many things being taken out of the hands of the town fathers and the final decisions are being made by some board or commission."

Councillor Hilton said the meeting yesterday presented a big problem and will take considerable study before any final decision is made.

Reeve Blames Trouble on Tourist Operator

MAINTOPARDING, Ont. (CP)— Reeve George Bishop of Sandy Lake Township said Thursday a charge of practising without a licence against Dr. Ash is "ridiculous."

The reeve blamed the doctor's troubles on a tourist operation whose wife the doctor had treated.

The charge, laid by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, was dismissed in nearby Little Current Wednesday by Magistrate M. M. Limbert. An OCPS investigation followed but was treated by Dr. Ash.

Dr. Ash, a member of seven British medical societies and a former practitioner on London's famed Harley Street, was hired by the federal government to treat Indians on a reserve here and agreed to four local doctors to treat only emergency cases among white persons. He is not licensed to practise in Ontario.

SNACKS OF RACISM

Reeve Bishop said the attitude of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons smacks of racism.

"Its representative claims that it's all right for Dr. Ash to treat Indians but not white men. We feel that if he is good enough for the Indians he is good enough for us."

The reeve said the tourist operator hired for Dr. Ash's court emergency treatment to his wife, then complained to the doctor's bill from a bill on behalf of the federal government. The bill is still unpaid, Reeve Bishop said, now belong to the union.

Network Denies Twenty-One TV Show Rigged

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Company and producers of the television quiz show Twenty-One deny accusations by a contestant that the program was rigged.

Herbert Stempel, who won $50,000 on the show, contended he was coached on the answers before he went on the air and then was told to miss a question that enabled Charles Van Doren to eliminate him.

Frank Hogan, New York County district attorney, confirmed Thursday that Stempel's testimony brought the show into the TV quiz program inquiry touched off by a complaint of a contestant on the Dotto show.

SAY CHARGES MALICIOUS

Jack Barry and Dan Enright, producers of Twenty-One, issued a statement saying Stempel's charges were "entirely spurious and malicious."

NBC issued a statement simultaneously, terming the accusations "utterly baseless and untrue." The network said it learned of them more than a year ago and an investigation turned up nothing to substantiate them.

Hogan said his investigation of TV quiz shows has uncovered nothing thus far to warrant grand jury action.

VIEWERS ANGRY?

But television viewers, he commented, "certainly have a right to be angry with the misrepresentations if what is suggested is true."

Hogan did not disclose what Stempel told him. But the latter has been quoted in newspaper stories as saying, after he won $50,000, he was ordered to miss a question "any schoolboy could answer."

Van Doren, who went on to win $129,000 after beating Stempel, said: "I am sad and I'm shocked. I don't know what to say except that I thought I won honestly."

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (CLC) announced Wednesday it has booked $1,000,000 a fund to be used to complete organization of Canada's garment-wear industry, about 20,000 garment workers, most of them in Toronto and Montreal, now belong to the union.

Heavy Cruiser Joins 7th Fleet In Pacific

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A U.S. Navy spokesman said today the heavy cruiser Los Angeles had sailed from Long Beach, Calif., to join the 7th Fleet in the western Pacific.

The spokesman also confirmed that the aircraft carrier Midway left Pearl Harbor Thursday to join the 7th fleet, the U.S. naval force patrolling the Formosa Strait.

On Wednesday the Navy announced that the aircraft carrier Essex and four destroyers were being moved from the Mediterranean to join the 7th fleet.

The fleet already has 66 ships, including four carriers.

The dispatch of more warships to the Formosa Strait was seen as an attempt to deter the Chinese Communists from a possible invasion of the offshore islands held by the Nationalists.

Finance Company Employees Supply Tip for Arrest of Two

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Police said today two finance company employees unwittingly involved in the $1,500 holdup of a bank here Thursday, supplied the tip that led to the arrest of two suspects.

Pte. Donald Albert Little, 25, of the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, and Michael MacDonald, 30, of Halifax, recently discharged from the army, were arrested five hours after the robbery. They will be arraigned on charges of armed robbery today.

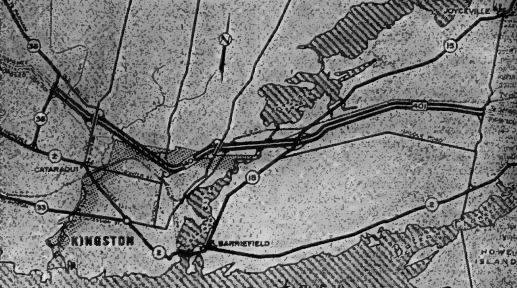
Police said $1,100 had been recovered.

HEAR ON RADIO

The two finance company men reported to police after they heard their descriptions and that of their car on their car radio.

They told police they had gone to Wolseley Barracks, not far from the Canadian Bank of Commerce Oxford-Adelaide Branch, to repossess a car. Unable to find the car owner, they headed toward the bank to get a cheque certified.

The men, James Granger and William Pitt, told police they spotted the car, its owner and a companion on the way to the bank.



ALL ENTER BANK

The car was repossessed on the spot and the men asked for a lift to the bank. All four went into the bank and Granger and Pitt left after certifying the cheque.

A few minutes later a man with a revolver pressed between the backs of his hands asked a cashier into the wicket of teller Laurans Doyle and threw down a note.

Without reading the note, Miss Doyle tripped the alarm and handed the man $1,500 in cash as she reached for more. He said "that's enough" and hurried away.

The entire Kingston by-pass section of Highway No. 401 will be open to Labor Day weekend traffic over a length of 13 miles. The section east from Highway 15 to the Joyceville side road will be open for traffic this Friday, while the section from new Highway 38 to Highway 15 has been in operation since last November. Construction is now in progress to extend the by-pass east from the Joyceville side road to intersect with Highway 2 and Highway 401 east of Gananoque. This section will be completed in 1959.

THE GOVERNMENT'S RESPONSIBILITY

The Children's Aid Society is one of the member organizations of the Belleville United-Appeal. Like the other 53 Children's Aid Societies in the Province of Ontario, it comes under the supervision of the Ontario Department of Welfare. It receives provincial and municipal grants. But these public funds are not sufficient to defray the entire cost of the work carried out by the Society.

"The Society," stated a report in Tuesday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer, "must rely on the support of the Belleville United Appeal."

We should like to know one good reason why this should be so.

If the protection of neglected children is not a responsibility of government in a civilized country, what is?

There is a place, and an important place, for private charity. But nothing so important as the welfare of children should be left to the somewhat uncertain response to appeals for private generosity. It should be a charge — a first charge — on the public purse.

The way to alter this undesirable situation is certainly not to withhold private gifts. That would be to let children suffer. But more than a spirit of charity is needed here. The children should also get justice and they will receive it only if the financing of the work of Children's Aid Societies throughout the province, is assumed entirely by provincial and municipal governments.

Once this is done, it would be the proper role of private charity to provide these children with any additional benefits thought advisable. But this additional help should be entirely divorced from the work of the organization responsible in law for their care and protection.

RACE RIOT IN BRITAIN

Sad reading, indeed, is the account of a weekend brawl between negroes and whites in Nottingham.

Two hundred persons battled for 90 minutes, using knives, axes and sticks as well as fists, before bobbies and their dogs finally broke up the brawl.

Race riots of this kind are bad enough in Detroit or Chicago, but in any English city, and above all in an English city made famous by the old champion of equality, Robin Hood — the thing is unthinkable.

But this riot happened.

There are sure to be those segregationists who will maintain it should teach the British to be more tolerant of incidents in the southern states.

And that is the saddest part of the whole affair. It demonstrates that racial prejudice is much more widespread than many of us had believed.

If incidents of this kind can happen in Britain, they can happen almost anywhere.

SHILLELAGH SHENANIGANS

News services being what they are, we fear we shall hear no more about James Herron of Haberfield, Australia, and the shillelagh sent him by a relative in Belfast.

Sydney customs officials have decided that the shillelagh is not a dangerous weapon and, with the honor of the nation thus upheld, the news services will almost certainly leave Mr. Herron, just at the point where the story was getting interesting.

For, while customs officials ruled that the shillelagh was not a dangerous weapon, police decided to see if Mr. Herron was "a fit and proper person to receive such a weapon." The shillelagh, in Australia, is thus still regarded as a weapon, but not as a dangerous weapon and therefore it must be an undangerous weapon. We are somewhat intrigued by the thought of an undangerous weapon, but not half so much as we would be by a man who was considered not a fit and proper person to receive an undangerous weapon. Alas, we fear that the news services will leave us in ignorance as to whether Mr. Herron is such a person. Even if they tell us, we have scant hope of learning whether, in the opinion of Australians, a person unfit to receive an undangerous weapon ought to be supplied with a dangerous weapon or an undangerous nonweapon.

NO FAULT OF MINE

It sometimes take myself in hand
And view my faults and con them o'er,
And try to see the things I do
That make some other fellow sore.
I study that I am quick of speech,
And lose my temper now and then,
But I have never sat around
And interfered with busy men.

I'm selfish, too, I recognize
That I want all that I can get,
But still in spite of that too oft
For books I go headlong in debt.
I've other faults, some big some small
Too numerous they are to pen,
But still I'm glad that never have
I interfered with busy men.

Should Mark Mail Boxes

Gananoque Reporter

Driving through the county on a recent evening looking for a certain farm on one of the rural routes out of town, we were struck by the number of farmers who either had no name on their rural mail boxes, or whose name was so illegible as to be useless in identifying the property. In other cases the name on the mail box had not been changed with the change of ownership. This makes it very confusing when one is searching for a property, with only the rural route and name of the property holder to go by. In many instances rural homes are reached by long (and sometimes poorly surfaced) lanes, which makes it quite confusing, particularly for a total stranger, to find a specific farm. The habit of providing neatly painted mailboxes, with legible name plates would not seem to be a difficult task, and besides being a help to strangers, would also add to the appearance of the premises.

Another confusing problem in the rural sections, particularly those off the highways or county roads, is that of the modern township roads, in most instances, have no signs showing where one is. In New York State practically every road is named, and has the name prominently displayed at the junction with the more prominent arteries of traffic. Not only does one easily lose ones' way. The expenditure of a few dollars by the township councils to have these roads plainly marked at the intersections would make travel throughout our scenic districts much more convenient for visitors and residents of other sections alike. This slight expenditure, plus the cost of marking mail boxes for the rural owners and tenants, we think, would be money well spent.

Family Menu Has 45 Dishes

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

It now appears that we don't eat the way the ads and the packaging experts thought we did. Maybe it would be more accurate to say that we don't eat the way we have been supposed to.

To begin with, a recent survey turned up this rather startling finding. About 35 per cent of all food is bought by men. This is out of line, so far as the usual housewife-directed sales campaigns are concerned. Hardly any foods are promoted as particularly attractive to to men, yet figures show that they, at least, must eat it.

It appears that 70 per cent of the breakfasts are eaten in the kitchen, a fact that everybody knows and nobody quite believes. Even the preparation and serving of food is completely dominated by women.

Home cooking, as it used to be understood, is slowly fading away, but there are cakes mixes have taken over, especially in the big cities and in night clubs where most people live today.

Even more interesting is this finding of the researchers. The average family has a repertoire of about 45 dishes. These are to be covered in about two weeks on the average, after which the menu starts again. The order in which the same old thing comes to the table varies, but the chance of a completely new dish appearing is somewhere around zero.

Therefore, on the face of it, the vast outpouring of new recipe books and women's magazines is wasted effort. The housewife cluver who wants to introduce a new food faces an enormous wall of public inertia. We know it can be done, but it takes a lot of effort to change that old-hab, two weeks rotation custom.

Maybe the studies will suggest a way to do it, and put more variety on the average family table. It is pretty sure to lead to deep thinking in the sprawling food marketing industry.

Not To Be Outdone

The kids were playing "cowboy" when one ostentatiously like a good spot for a gas station packing case labelled "Last Chance Saloon." Loudly pounding on the bar, said, "Gimme a rye." Another kid, far younger, but not to be outdone, pounded his whole wheel," he demanded.

This Story Not for Him

By Ernest Hevins in Quote

The new barber who was busily cutting Dave Harper's hair suggested singing it with this explanation: "Every hair is a singer. Some of that sort of bleeds when it is cut, so it gets weaker each time you cut it. But if you don't cut your hair, it seals the ends; your hair begins to sing."

"In that case," I asked, "can you explain why the hair on my ears and nose is stronger all of the time, in spite of the fact that I shave myself out off every morning for 25 years?"

"Sure," can explain it," said the barber blandly. "You just ain't the kind of feller that story was made up to tell to."

TODAY'S TALK

OUR SECRET SELF

I do not believe any one of us this secret self, without anyone else knowing about it. The silent are so often the great People and are congratulated when they admit the fact that they have been burdened with a free mind — a mind of courage, full of patience, and always honestly humble. There is never any need for anyone of us to boast about his triumphs. There are always so many more to be won, and do, "Top" us.

Some of us are discouraged, lose heart, and incentive, and wish so much for someone to set us up, lift us up or stir us up, so that we can take our place back in the procession. Where all the honors were created and distributed. Once the power of this secret self of courage, full of confidence and faith are restored, and we are on our way up again

Honor Heroes Of Plague

By R. Kneitzsel in "Coming Events in Britain"

At the sequestered upland village of Eyam, in North Derbyshire, overlooking the lovely Derwent Valley and overshadowed by the wild Peak Edge, a memorial service is held annually on the last Sunday in August. Its purpose is to pay tribute to the self-sacrificing heroism of the villagers who died during the plague of 1665-1666.

Along the main street, straggling for nearly a mile from east to west, and lined by old stone cottages with pretty gardens, goes a procession composed of clergy, surpliced choir, villagers and other persons, to visit the public. Its destination is the Delph, a secluded grassy dingle just off the main road; and its significance — the re-enactment of a similar gathering almost 300 years ago in the same place, when a rapidly-spreading plague was responsible for deliverance from the "black death."

This dread disease, bubonic in origin, had ravaged London in 1665-1666, but the measures and purposes it had been obliterated by the Great Fire which followed. Any organized plan of revival could occur in a village so remote and secluded that its existence would have been received with incredulity.

But fear befell harshly with the little community. Into that collection of lead-roofed cottages and the destroyer in the shape of germs that had escaped unnoticed. Early in the year of August, 1665, there came to the village tailor at Eyam a certain consignment of cloth from London. Found damp on arrival, George Vicars threw it open to dry before a fire to dry. This action unwittingly released the germs, and on the following day he died with unmistakable symptoms of the plague.

Each day the pestilence gained impetus, claiming one victim after another. But the exceptional severity reduced the mortality and raised hopes that relief was about to arrive. The sickness spread like wildfire when the summer of 1666 brought a period of warmer weather, and it reached its peak in August with 77 victims.

French Fear China Most

Windsor Star

Two former French premiers, Paul Reynaud and Georges Bidault, both anti-Communists, see Red China will be a greater danger to world peace in the future than Russia is today. They may not be talking through their berets.

Russia now is the ever-present menace, with the Middle East the current trouble spot, but the world could cope with China well be the greater menace, and the Far East the battleground. Communism is a dirty word in the Orient. Conditions in that area are ripe for Russia herself.

Whatever one may think of the Communist system in China, and it has all the evils of Communism, including appalling degree in poverty is changing that country. The sleeping giant has awakened from a long sleep.

It is just possible China is making a greater progress today than Russia did in the immediate years after the Communists came to power there. There is an appearance of efficiency, perhaps more than there is, but China has never known. After what Russia has accomplished in the past quarter century it is not unreasonable to expect China to scoff at what China can achieve.

China is not a poor country. It has tremendous resources. It has a population with a free mind — a cause of its lack of organization, inefficiency of administration, great and weakness, combined with a huge passive population.

Russia certainly wants to spread communism throughout the world, but it is not the ambition of the Kremlin. She is not averse to doing this by force, but only when it appears possible without devastating retribution.

Russia, however, lacks some of the pressures which exist in China. China has plenty of room and resources for her 500,000,000 people. China's population now is about 650,000,000 and can reach 800,000,000 in a relatively short time.

This population pressure is apt to burst bonds and borders. For example, Soviet Siberia just to the north could catch the eye of the Chinese far other neighbors than in the main, themselves over-populated.

Reports are that Russia is to supply China with atomic weapons and know-how. This could be a very dangerous policy, though in time the Chinese doubtless could evolve them for themselves.

Fifty years from now or sooner the United States, Europe may be watching ominous threats from China, even as the world now, including China, is watching Russia

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

DRUGS ARE NOT AN EFFECTIVE CURE OF OVER-EATING

"Dear Dr. Molner: Should an overweight boy nine years old receive medicine to lose appetite? — Mrs. G. L."

Overweight in a child is due to excess eating. If you don't eat enough food, the excess calories aren't present to turn into fat.

Let me expand a little bit. It is true that there are differences in glandular activity. It is also true that you may not be simply a manifestation of glandular difference) that some people put on weight more easily than others. Certainly there are differences in the natural rate of activity, the rate of "littering" and tenseness which can make a difference. Perhaps there is a difference in the rate and degree we each utilize food we eat.

But after individual variations are taken into account, we still come back to the fundamental fact: If you don't eat, it can't turn to fat. So I say that excess eating or eating more than we require for energy — is the cause of overweight in child or adult.

As I have pointed out before, some foods are more fattening than others and are retarded in normal child-ish sexual development, may need special treatment from an endocrinologist who can help the glandular system. In the meantime it is astonishing in a modern age like ours — a time when ease, and one of the greatest causes of imbalance.

CORRECT THE CAUSE

Whether frustration or just a simple habit of extra-hearty eating is the cause, I certainly favor correcting the cause of the overeating rather than giving drugs to a child to reduce his appetite.

A diet low in calories (but including considerable quantities of vegetables, for their mineral and vitamin values, plus fruit (fiber value) plus ample exercise are the essentials.

Then youngsters of that age will get hold of themselves and turn out to be well-formed adolescents and adults.

If they depend on medicines to reduce the appetite, they never develop a sound habit of eating, because pills aren't going a change a faulty habit. Many an adult, resorting to pills for reducing, has found that on... stop the pills and you go right back to the old habits that caused the fat in the first place. Hence my advice, especially with a child, is to stick to fundamentals instead of trying an "easy" way which so often lets the youngster stay in a faulty eating habit that will plague him the rest of his life.

"Dear Sir: I am a woman of 50 in good general health, but in a checkup I was informed I have a polyp in the uterus. Is it necessary to have it removed? — I.W."

Uterine polyps on the cervix (neck of the uterus) should be removed. They are a source of bleeding and discharge, and may occasionally be cancerous.

Mrs. D. H.: No, I can't accept your case. Send patients for a variety of good reasons. But your full, with two years of constant pain, certainly means you should see a doctor at once. It may be only a fibroid, but it may not.

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Calorie Game," write me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin.

POSITIVE HINDRANCES

"A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone," once wrote Henry David Thoreau, the nineteenth-century Massachusetts philosopher. This is a remarkable statement, for at first glance it would seem just the reverse of the obvious truth.

Yet Thoreau's statement is truer than it seems. Many thousands of families today are living in poverty in a sense that Thoreau could hardly have anticipated. A family living in a modern home with household appliances, automobile, and perhaps television set, may be living in the poorhouse because of all the things it has to maintain. Many a home-owner finds himself in debt to the installment plan can certainly be very poor because of all the things it has to maintain. Many a family with a car is financially embarrassed by the upkeep of the car.

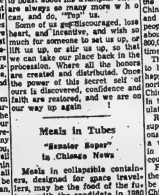
As he wrote elsewhere, "Most of our luxuries, and many of the so-called comforts of life, are not only indifferent, but positive obstacles to the elevation of mankind."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

No wonder the young generation is so active, free-limbed and free-spirited. Look at the clothes in which they were brought up in infancy and early childhood, during the restrictive years of their babyhood. There has been a revolution in babies' and toddlers' clothes. We have been so honored by the company of grandchildren, grandnephews and grandnieces in our small fry, and I was astonished to learn that they really all wear pants instead of the clasthe three-cornered ones with which I had been familiar.



Thanks to rubber pants, which were unknown in my day, baby does not have to be strapped up in the three-cornered type, which was guaranteed to stunt growth. I had determined were those least likely to bark or scratch, and to acquire pants allow, with the rubber pants over them, freedom of limb unknown to past generations. No more does a baby have to waddle with a mess of napkins and safety pins, a hurdle impedes a breachy step.

Why should not baby? Does anybody remember what I o n g clothes were? I were 'em until I was able to walk. Thereafter I was wound up in rollers, encased in woollen stockings. Childhood was put in "dresses" until the age of two, graduating later to a long series of stiff woollens, reefers, a species of garment like a pea jacket. It is a wonder we grew up active at all.

However, we built no railroads, we drove the forests, isolated up the bridges, dug the tunnels, laid out the farms. I suppose it can be said we were active; but not active in the straps of pants, rubber pants, overall skis, rock 'n roll dance floors, and other such aids to free limbs.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

HE WOULDN'T DIE

Iggy Crotty, the boy who wouldn't die, plays happily four years after he nearly lost his life when hit by a car. Well wishers from North America and Europe sent $10,000 as the boy battled for survival in a Toronto hospital he was unconscious for 116 days. Iggy, 13, has a slight flaw in his speech and a stiff right arm but he likes sports, climbing trees — and rock 'n' roll. (CP Photo)

Except for Slight Flaw in Speech, Stiff Arm, Iggy Crotty Good as New

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., (CP)—Remember IGGY Crotty, the boy who wouldn't die? You may have been among the thousands whose contributions made it possible for him to lead a normal life today.

Iggy, who celebrated his 13th birthday on July 30, shows only a slight effects of the hit-and-run accident that left him twisted and dying in a ditch four years ago.

Today he has a slight flaw in his speech and his right arm is a bit stiff. Doctors say these symptoms will disappear as he gets older.

FATEFUL DAY

But it's unlikely that time will erase the memory of that day in May, 1954, when he and a friend were going fishing. A car rushing along the Logy Bay road hit Iggy and threw him into a ditch.

For 116 days the youngster was unconscious. When he awoke crippled and speechless, well-wishers from all over North America and parts of Europe had donated $10,000 to a fund that enabled Ignatius, to give him his proper name, to receive special care at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Friends, family and relatives prayed each day for his recovery. After about four months here and six in Toronto, the prayers said at thousands of services were answered.

Iggy returned home in March, 1955, and 19 days later was back in school. His mother, Mrs. Leo Crotty, said at the time that "he's not very fond of school. He always manages to have a pain in his stomach or a headache when it's time to go. I know he's bluffing half the time."

RUNS, CLIMBS

Nevertheless, IGGY has done well with his studies, and is far from backward in sports. He showed a reporter that he could run as fast as anyone, and he climbed a tree with agility.

"And he's the real teen-ager, too," says Mrs. Crotty. "He likes rock-'n'-roll, he can sing all the latest pop tunes and he loves to watch wrestling."

CNE Choirs Sing In Five Tongues On Music Day

TORONTO (CP)—It was Floral, Music Arts and Health Day at the Canadian National Exhibition Thursday but it wasn't hard to tell the emphasis was on music.

At 16 bandstands scattered around the 350-acre grounds, choirs singing in at least five languages and bands competed for the sare of 182,000 visitors. The wall of bagpipes was added this year when the Scottish National Dance festival was moved outdoors for the first time.

The main attraction among 16 choral groups was a 30-member glee club from Notre Dame D'Acadie girls' school at St. Joseph, N.B. Specializing in French-Canadian folk songs, it has won several major festival awards, including the Lord Beaverbrook Choral Trophy.

The choir, whose trip is sponsored by the New Brunswick government, is to visit the Stratford Festival today.

Choirs and dancers in National costumes from Toronto Finnish, Italian and Macedonian ethnic groups and glee clubs from Stratford, St. Catharines and Richmond Hill also performed.

Other events connected with the Music day program were a fiddling contest and the Canadian Bandmasters Festival. Hamilton players, dominated the old-timers' fiddling class. Thomas Sanders was first in the 75 and over class and Stan Hall won the 60 to 75 class.

The Barrie Collegiate band just returned from winning three international awards at Kerkrade, Holland, won the Challenge Trophy and the high school section of the brass and reed band class.

Church of St. Edmund Holds Annual Supper

STOCO — Owing to weather conditions last week, the supper held by Church of St. Edmund, was curtailed and the draws were made after many had left, as the result of the downpour. The ticket for the gate prize bears the ntumber 360122 and the prize may be claimed by the holder of the coupon bearing this number.

The following won the other prizes: steam iron, Don Meraw, Tweed; electric clock, Wilfrid Lesage, Tweed, quilt, table cloth, Michael O'Brien, 128 S. John St., Belleville; $10.00 cash, Dr. Wm. A. Paul, Tweed; large doll, Bruce Nicholson, Winnipeg; fruit cake, Mrs. Wilfrid Corkey, Kingston; novelty doll, Maureen Whalen, Stoco; candy dressed doll, Frank Brennan, Tweed.

Meanwhile, no one has claimed Mrs. Crotty's $500 reward for information leading to the capture of the hit-and-run driver. Iggy was able to give a brief description of the driver who was believed accompanied by a woman. "The car was green."

CURIOUS TO SEE FIRST U.S. JET TRANSPORT

A crowd jams international Airport, New York, for a closer look at the first jet transport to be delivered to a U.S. line. More than 400 persons watched the sleek Boeing 707 fly in from Puerto Rico for Pan American World Airways. The $5,000,000 plane completed the 1,602-mile trip in three hours, 24 minutes, more than two hours less than a piston-driven flight takes. The plane will now undergo tests for noise.

Famed St. Joseph's Oratory To Be Scene of Ceremonies

MONTREAL (CP)—In a colorful torch - light procession representatives of workers in Quebec province will march up the slopes of Mount Royal on Monday to participate in special Labor Day ceremonies at famed St. Joseph's Oratory.

A highlight of the ceremonies will be the blessing of the workers' tools—hammers, saws, chisels, paint brushes and other portable equipment used by various trades in the province.

The Labor Day ceremonies were inaugurated at the Oratory three years ago when Pope Pius XII established the Feast of St. Joseph the Worker. The Pope decreed the feast, May 1, 1955, in the presence of 300,000 Italian workers gathered in St. Peter's Square in Rome.

RELIGIOUS THEME

The Pope said then that Labor Day—May 1 in Europe—should be given a Christian significance to counter the materialistic significance attached to the day by the Communists.

In Canada, the feast was made to coincide with the first Monday in September—regularly set aside as Labor Day.

About 20 to 30 trades are expected to be presented among the 4,000 people who will jam the Oratory's main basilica for a special mass to be chanted for the workers. This year the celebrant will be Msgr. Maurice Roy, Archbishop of Quebec City. Throughout the mass the tools of the workers will be grouped along the altar rail.

The Oratory is considered a natural setting for the ceremonies. The shrine was built as a result of the work of the late Brother Andre, a humble lay brother with an intense devotion to St. Joseph.

Brother Andre, whose frail health and lack of formal education prevented him from becoming a priest, die Jan. 6, 1337, at age 91. Procedures have been started that could lead to his beatification and canonization as a saint of the Roman Catholic church.

It was to St. Joseph, the carpenter of Nazareth, that Brother Andre directed the poor and the afflicted to pray for help in obtaining divine relief or cures.

It was during his 40 years as porter, gardener and student barber at a Montreal college that he spurred construction of the Oratory.

On the slopes of Mount Royal opposite the college, his first chapel was completed in 1904. A crudely - constructed steep - sloped building capable of seating about 100 persons, therefore he had a poorly furnished room where he met and chatted with the callers.

As his fame spread, the number of visitors increased. They left contributions large and small, and work started on what has become one of the largest shrines in the world, attracting about 1,000,000 pilgrims annually.

WOULD DEVELOP TRADE

LONDON (Reuters)—Industrialist Cyrus Eaton met Agriculture Minister Vladimir Matskevich in Moscow Thursday, the Soviet news agency Tass said. During discussion on the program of Eaton's visit he said he wanted to obtain a general impression of the country, Tass details for another visit. Rocks on Tracks Spotted by CNR Engineer

JORDAN STATION, Ont. (CP)—An apparent attempt to wreck a passenger train was foiled Wednesday when a pile of rocks on the track was spotted by the engineer of another train.

Engineer Ernest Moran of Niagara Falls, Ont., driver of the train that stopped short of rocks near this community three miles west of St. Catharines, said Thursday he was warned about the obstruction.

Moran said his train was flagged down at Beamsville, 10 miles west of St. Catharines, and he was told a train travelling on the other side of the dual line had spotted the pile of rocks on the rails.

"We slowed down about a mile from the spot and travelled slowly up to the rocks," Moran said. He added he thought he saw a man running into the undergrowth.

The conductor removed a large flat boulder and a number of small ones and the train moved on to New York.

About 300 people were aboard the 16-car train on their way from Toronto.

William Smith, 45, of no fixed address, was arrested Thursday and charged with attempting to derail the train. He appeared in magistrate's court and was remanded for examination by psychiatrists.

Special Loans May Be Given Que. Students

QUEBEC (CP) — A student group says Premier Duplessis has promised to introduce a bill at the next session of the Quebec legislature establishing a system of special loans to university students.

Representatives of the newly-organized University Action League made the statement at a press conference Thursday following a two-hour meeting with Union Nationale leader.

The league announcement said the loans will bear "interest which would start only several years after the student leaves university." Amounts students would be able to borrow and other details of the proposed legislation were not disclosed.

In the past the Quebec government has granted scholarships to some students on condition half the value of the scholarship is repaid after graduation.

The UAL has been criticized by the Quebec Association of University students, representing 22,000 students, at the province's six universities. The association had sought to have the premier unsuccessfully since spring this year to discuss increased financial aid for universities and students.

Constitution-Selling Tour By De Gaulle No Pushover

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's probable that General lead to more violent repression than before.

Charles de Gaulle wasn't expecting his African constitution-selling tour to be a pushover.

The constitutional referendum Sept. 28 in France and her colonies will be a vote on an anxious future.

But he must have been perplexed in French West Africa to be greeted with demands for immediate independence from thousands of Senegalese.

De Gaulle shouted back at the demonstrators that he is ready to give fit to them. His remarks apparently were lost in the uproar.

One of the main points in the soldier-premier's proposed new constitution is that the African colonies can have complete internal autonomy in a federal community with France. Paris would retain control of defence and foreign affairs.

De Gaulle has bypassed proposals that the overseas territories be incorporated with metropolitan France, as Algeria is, because he feels French opinion couldn't stomach this.

WITHDRAWAL RISK

Financial aid from France if what the colonies will need as their move toward independence in the premier's view. The colonies would be free to withdraw later if they suggested federal organization if they wish. De Gaulle says they would do so "at their own risk and peril."

Perhaps the Senegalese leaders in Dakar weren't aware of these views when their supporters demanded that the general give them what he had already promised.

The constitution doesn't promise anything for Algeria. The European population is predominantly nine to one by the Algerians and is violently opposed to any moves to give the majority independence.

Many Europeans are reported to be annoyed at de Gaulle's explanations to Africans during his tour about how they can secede from France. They fear this will give the Algerian ideas. De Gaulle's reception in Algiers was described as distinctly cool.

KILLING CAMPAIGN

The wave of killings and sabotage sweeping France and blamed on Algerian rebels may be part of a campaign to induce Frenchmen to call it quits and leave Algeria to the Moslems.

This is not likely to be the reaction of Europeans in Algeria. By past performance, it may

There are lots of reasons for a lawn to do poorly but one of the more frequent causes, particularly on old lawns, is compaction. The soil becomes so hard-packed that the roots simply cannot penetrate and both water and fertilizers run off rather than absorb into the root area.

Under these conditions the only thing to do is to open the subsoil with an aerator. This machine forces pencil-sized holes into the ground to a depth of 3 or 4 inches without damaging the turf. Aeriation should be followed by a light top dressing, an application of a balanced fertilizer and probably re-seeding.

We'll be glad to talk to you about grass at any time and to show you our rental aerators, both hand and power propelled, in case you think your soil requires this treatment.

Wedding

RODIER — WALDEN

East Minister United Church parsonage was the setting on Saturday, August 23rd, at 4.00 p.m. for a quiet, but lovely wedding when Ola Walden, of Belleville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rodier, was united in marriage by the Reverend Alexander McDowell, pastor of the church, to Raymond Rodier, of the RCA, Picton, son of Mrs. Arthur Rodier, of Montreal, and the late Mr. Rodier.

The bride was attractively attired in navy blue with pink hat, pink accessories, and corsage of pink, Sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

She was attended by Mrs. Percy Day, of Belleville, who was gowned in pale blue with white accessories, and corsage of yellow, Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Eric Rodier, of Picton, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Yarrow, sister of the bride.

The bride's table was prettily appointed beneath white, ceiling streamers, with white and green, centred by a three - tier, all-wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom underneath archway of white bridal flowers. Tall, white candles in individual silver holders and the usual bouquets added a delightful festal note.

After the wedding trip around Lake Ontario by motor, the bride chose a navy blue ensemble with matching dubonnet hat and accessories, and corsage of pink, Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodier are residing in Belleville.

Guests attended from Picton and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Melbourne Fraser are pictured signing the register following their recent marriage in College Hill United Church, Belleville. Centenarian Lives With Son in Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—Mrs. Louise Josephine Restating is a centenarian who came to Canada at an age when most people have quit travelling. She was 66 when she left her native Grenoble in France and came to Calgary in 1924.

She now lives with her son and daughter-in-law, spending a lot of her time knitting and taking care of the lighter household chores.

Widowed at 29, she raised three children, and when her daughter died in France she set sail for Canada where a son, Joseph Restating of Calgary, and a grandson and granddaughter live.

The grandson is Father Louis Restating, a Roman Catholic priest in St. Boniface, Man. He attended the 100th birthday celebration here recently, as did a granddaughter, Mrs. Douglas Wood of Montreal.

Mrs. Restaing, who speaks only French, takes great pleasure in story-telling. She liked to recount tales of the Napoleonic regime in which she heard first-hand from her parents.

Never Inside Private Russia, Home in Stay

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. D. J. von Ballusek, wife of the Chilean consul and ambassador to Canada, says she never was inside a private Russian home during the 15 years she spent in Moscow.

Friendship between the Russian people and members of the diplomatic corps is frowned on, by Russian officials, she explained in an interview during a recent visit here.

But Mrs. von Ballusek, who moved to Ottawa from Moscow six months ago, draws a sharp distinction between Russian politics and the Russian people. The latter, she says, were "extremely nice," friendly and hospitable.

Travel outside of Russia's largest cities is difficult for practical as well as political reasons, she said. Many smaller towns were primitive, with no sewage systems or electricity.

Her conclusions were that the Russians are a people "with a gift for suffering" and incredible patience.

MODEL GIVES UP $60 AN HOUR CAREER-

A top-flight model for three years in New York and Paris, Canadian Patricia Bell has given up her $60 an hour Manhattan career, because she's "homesick". The 22-year-old hazel-eyed blonde was ordered to rest by her doctor, so she returned to her home in Toronto. There she plans to study art in the fall, but will do no modelling. Meanwhile, she enjoys relaxing in slacks and sweater without make-up, left. Gone are the days when she was known as a "spook" and posed for high-fashion photos like one at right. A spook is the trade name for glamorous models who are so tall and thin that they don't look quite real. At five-feet 7½ inches and weighing 100 pounds, Patricia was typical of the spook type.

The Experts Say

Working for United States But Must Know About Canada

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Sarah (Sally) Brook, who was born in England and brought up in Toronto, likes working for the United States.

Miss Brook is commercial assistant to the economics officer at the United States consulate-general here.

That means I have a vested interest in improving trade between Canada and the United States," she said.

HELPS BUSINESS

Part of the job is to help Canadian businessmen use opportunities in the United States market. Miss Brook is in charge of the consulate which contains all kinds of trade periodicals and reports.

The department also operates a service where Canadians who wish, for instance, to represent U.S. firms or do sub - contract work with U.S. companies, can make their needs known through the commerce department publications.

Working for the U.S. here means Miss Brook must know about Canada. She assists her boss, John L. Hill, United States economic officer, to prepare reports for the state department from studies of Canadian industries and products.

ANSWERS QUERIES

On the other hand, she must know plenty about the United States in order to answer inquiries, from Canadians.

"In addition to other duties, I have somebody approaching an information service here," she said.

She gets all sorts of questions, and if she hasn't got the answer immediately she makes it her business to find out.

"I've worked at the consulate 2½ years," she explained, "and I think my job helps to bring Canada and the U.S. closer together."

Only Woman Movie Producer To Put Romance in Westerns

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Women who are sick and tired of starring night after night at television westerns, where the fellow never gets the girl, says Helen Ainsworth, Hollywood's only woman movie producer.

"Women want romance," says Miss Ainsworth, who started out as a talent manager and now is producing under her own banner in partnership with her client, actor Guy Madison. "Any fool should know that, but I guess it takes a woman to make it clear.

"Even the actors are getting fed up with all these rootin'-tootin' westerns. Why for eight years, starring in these rough, tough, he-man shows, and Guy Madison hasn't kissed a single girl on camera, that is."

ONLY WOMAN

Miss Ainsworth, a hefty blonde with a sentimental smile, is proud of her distinction of being the only woman producer in the film capital. Says She:

"It's just naturally emotional, but I think it takes some of that to get some heart into movies. Of course you have to have plenty of tough business sense, too — after all movie production is one of the country's biggest business. But it can't be all business.

"For instance, when I take on a new client, I'm not only his business manager, but also practically a nursemaid, confidante and mother.

"Actors are sensitive people, and you have to handle them carefully, build up their confidence, keep them ticking."

Among Miss Ainsworth's discoveries are such stars as Carol Channing, John Raitt, Howard Keel and, of course — Madison. Her first TV commitment under the new production company will be a weekly series starring Madison in a romantic period role.

ROMANTIC SERIES

"It's going to be something like the old roles of Douglas Fairbanks Sr., says Helen. "You know — swordplay, dashing uniforms and plenty of girls. We'll even have a romance in every story. Oh yes of the country's top archers, you know — goes hunting big game with a bow and arrow. I want to get away from guns.

"Anyway, there's going to be plenty of love interest in this series — a romance in every single episode."

Miss Ainsworth feels that TV's female audience has been shortchanged by program directors

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

LETTER:

. . . I've been wanting to write Mrs. Marianne Rome last year with red currants, asking "Is there anything one can make from red currants besides jelly? Yes there is. Since childhood I can remember my mother making a delicious dessert with them. She never used a recipe but I've worked it as follows:

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

FRIDAY

Tomato Juice, Fish and Potato Cakes with Parsley Sauce, Carrot Coins, Broccoli, Sliced Cucumbers in Sour Cream with Dill Weed, Chilled Compote of Plums, Peanut Butter Cookies, Tea.

ROTE GRUETZ:

(A red currant dessert pudding — courtesy Erika M.)

Stem and wash 1 quart box of red currants. Boil in water to cover for not longer than 5 minutes. Pour in mesh sieve and with wooden spoon work the currants into a mash. Keep adding a bit of hot water to fluff, then working juice out again. Repeat until pulp is pale and fairly dry, thus getting all the flavor and color into the juice. Discard pulp. To the juice add enough water to make 2 cups, add 1½ cups sugar and 1¼ cups minute tapioca, — slowly or it will lump! I put this on direct heat, it will need constant stirring. A double boiler can be used but is too slow for me. (Note: Emem strongly recommends double boiler.) I leave this on the stove (not too low burner) until nearly all the tapioca is transparent. It will all be transparent by the time the pudding is chilled. If left on stove too long the consistency becomes more runny and its supposed to be fairly firm. Chill. Fill it serve the following custard sauce poured over spoonsfuls of pudding: To 3 cups milk add 1-3 cup sugar, 2 level tablespoons cornstarch, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 beaten egg. Make in the usual order but I never boil after egg is added. Chill. By now you'll see I don't always abide by standard cooking procedure. I hope you'll like this — I have yet to meet the person that doesn't. It is a German recipe, is called Rote Gruetze, translated Red Gruel. When my brother and I were children we indelegantly dubbed it "Red Guts". In sound fairly near to its German name although not its meaning. Perhaps you can think of good name for it. One other standard rule I don't follow anymore is flouring fruit and nuts before adding to the batter. I was never satisfied with the results. I once read (I don't remember where) to add them just before the eggs are entirely beaten in to prevent them from going down in cakes. I seldom have a failure that way. My family claims I'm a fairly good cook but I consider myself only half as good as Emem so I'll be "Em."

ANSWER:

Red Guts is fine and I have another corruption of the same name — Rot Gut! Helen C. who used to be women's editor of a big Canadian women's magazine served it to us about 20 years ago. She passed heavy pouring cream and berry sugar in a silver sugar shaker. It was elegant and delicious and never to be forgotten. I'm glad you brought it to light again.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

SUE REBELS AGAINST SHOWER-GIVING "RACKET"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Bridal showers today can be a real problem to a "working gal." Is it really necessary for a girl to accept an invitation to a shower given by a friend or acquaintance for a girl she has never even met, or for a girl she knows only slightly? For example, I've just received an invitation from a girl who has been a co-worker in my office for several years and who is giving a shower for a friend of hers who worked for our company for only three months last year, whom I knew only casually, and whom I have not seen since she left.

So often, too, when a girl you may know fairly well is to be married, the showers given for her can (and do) become a deluge. I'm quite sure that the bride's mother or sister — whoever gives the same list of names over and over again of friends to be invited to the showers. I "burn" when I receive an invitation to a shower to be given by the bride's ever-lovin' mother or sister (or both) or by the groom's mother or sister (or both).

When the bride-to-be hasn't too many close friends, or when she herself has the reputation of not being too active about giving shower presents, then very often no one steps forward to plan a shower for her — and then a member of her family or the fiance's family "comes to the aid of the party," the shower-party. And when some hostesses ask the guests to bring "money-gifts" — ugh.

Another gripe of mine, and a many, many of my friends, is this: so often, once the bride-to-be has gathered in the loot, you don't even get a thank-you note, just a more or less quick-and-easy-out thanks at the shower. And sometimes you're not even invited to the wedding. It's all quite a problem nowadays.

You've written so understandingly about these forced "promotions for girls," that I wish you'd please tell me what point of view a girl should really take about this shower-racket. Thank you for your advice. — Reader

You're not right to call this shower-do a "racket," for that's just too, too often what it degenerates into. And since there is, or really can be, no rule or regulation to cover all circumstances, the only thing a girl can do is to use her own judgment, accept the shower invitations she really wants to accept, and not accept those which for any reason she has no wish or inclination to accept.

For example . . . why accept that invitation from a co-worker you don't know well to a shower she is cooking up for a girl you really don't know at all, haven't even seen since she left her position in the company? Making any effort to go to this shower and to take a present just doesn't make sense. A shower can be such a delightful fun-occasion when it's done with taste and social judgment . . . enjoy these occasions, and just don't clutter up your life with the ones that have no interest or meaning for you.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Sam S. Pat's sister must look out for herself.

Pat S. She has had a tough break.

Sam S. — My wife and I have been married ten years and have four children. Things have gone well with us since our marriage. We've been able to buy a nice home and my wife has always had all the help she needed.

Nevertheless, I often come home to find Pat all worn out because she has been helping her sister all day. She'll often go to her sister's home in the morning and stay most of the day helping her with her young children. In the meantime our children are looked after by a servant.

I've tried to show Pat this just doesn't make sense. Her sister must look out for herself. This sister is just making use of Pat and has never shown any gratitude for all Pat has done.

Patricia S. — In his more considerate moods, Sam will admit that my sister has really had a very tough break in life. Her husband was in an accident early in their marriage and he has never been able to get back into full swing in his work. They have barely been able to make ends meet.

My sister has four children, as I have, but each child has been seriously ill at one time or another. There always seems to be a big emergency in her household.

How can I possibly relax in my home when I know my sister is going through crises without any help in hers? My sister and I are only a year apart in age and we were always very close. It's unfair that things should be so much harder for her.

The Council: One famous character in English fiction had a habit of writing long letters to the newspapers about the terrible plight of the starving children in all parts of the world, while her own ragged, starving children tugged at her skirts, begging for food and attention.

Pat may feel her situation is a long way from this one, but we think it's a fairly apt parallel True, Pat's children are left in the care of a servant who feeds them, but we wouldn't hesitate to bet on the fact that each one of those four young children could benefit by their mother's attention several times in the course of a day.

Ordinary common sense and mother's instinct should tell Pat that her place is with her children while they are young, but she is driven to her sister's home by something stronger — a sense of guilt which can only have its basis in an unexpressed hostility toward her sister.

We aren't trying to belittle Pat's "good" ingtincts and her genuine desire to see her sister better off, but we do think she should be able to recognize when and why her solicitude for her sister exceeds sensible bounds.

Sport Snapshots

By MARVEN ROSS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — It takes more than a sharp eye and a steady hand for competitive shooting, says Mason Warner, one of Canada's top marksmen for the last 15 years.

"Training is all-important, just as in every other sport," said the specialist in small - bore rifle events, a trucker from Lemoyne, Que.

"In big meets, you shoot intermittently for up to six or seven hours with a rifle that weighs 18 pounds or so. To do well, you need to be in top condition."

PHYSICAL EXERCISES

Warner, 38, a father of two, puts in at least 12 hours a week at intensive training to keep himself in shape. His program covers calisthenics such as pushups, roadwork and weightlifting.

At the world shooting championships in Moscow this year, he was the highest-scoring member of a Canadian team that finished ninth in the small-bore matches.

Like many shooting enthusiasts, he makes his own ammunition. Commercial bullets are considered unsuitable for top competitions because they have a rounded nose.

"All it takes to make a good bullet is a little bit of high school mathematics and a great deal of caution," he said.

Warner first gained shooting prominence in 1948 when he won the Quebec provincial indoor and outdoor rifle crown. He represented Canada in the last Olympics, but did not show well.

CHAMPION HONORED

Bob Bedard, three-time winner of the Canadian singles Tennis championship, has received a special tribute from his hometown, Sherbrooke, Que.

A few weeks after he won his third title, a Bob Bedard Day was held in Sherbrooke. Bob received several gifts, signed the city's Golden Book and rode in a gleaming convertible at the head of a motorcade through the city. A brass band, trumpets blaring, led the parade.

Mayor Armand Nadeau of Sherbrooke said Bedard had put the city in sports headlines of newspapers throughout the country.

Bedard, 27, a physical education instructor, downed Whitney Reed of the United States in the final at Vancouver and became the second to win the title three times. Toronto's Jack Wright did it in 1951.

In the semi - finals, Bedard watched Reed in action against Kosei Kamo of Japan, and the Canadian thinks it was this opportunity that turned the tide in his favor in the final. He carefully noted any mistakes Reed committed. "I still think I was lucky, though," he said.

MEMORABLE DAY

Jim MacKenzie, a soft-drink distributor at Lachute, Que., had just scored a hole-in-one on the Lachute course and was recounting the feat to his wife, playing with three other women behind him.

They were gathered with some other golfers in a wooden shelter waiting fro a rainstorm to clear.

Suddenly there was a loud crack. The shelter had been struck by lightning. Some of the other golfers suffered slight shock and minor burns. MacKenzie and his wife came out unscathed.

FIRE TROUBLE

Since 1945 there has been an average of 5,000 forest fires a year in Canada.

Lions Contact Big Names for Coaching Job

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bids are high but there are no takers for a head coach to replace Clem Crowe, fired by the British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

A committee under Ralph (Hunk) Henderson has the job of getting a new coach. It is a tough one.

Otto Graham, one-time great of the Cleveland Browns, got a bid, but he turned it down. He can't leave his lucrative insurance business in Cleveland, but he expressed mild interest in a 1959 contract on a long-term basis.

Jim Sutherland of Washington State also got an offer. He couldn't accept because he can't break his contract.

Coach Forrest Evashevski of Iowa State is another on the list. He couldn't be reached, but apparently he will stay at Iowa under an iron-clad contract.

United States Takes Big Lead In Golf Match

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States took a strong lead Thursday in competition for the Duke of Devonshire Cup at the Canadian senior golf tournament, piling up 16½ points to Canada's 7½ in two-ball foursome matches.

Sixteen American golfers over the age of 55 won six of eight matches against an equal number of Canadians. They carry their nine - point lead into singles matches today.

Points are awarded on the basis of one for winning the first nine holes, one for winning the second nine and a third for taking both nines in each foursome.

The favored Canadian team of Vice-Admiral H. G. DeWolf, who Tuesday won the Canadian senior men's championship, and A. R. Wilson of Burlington, was defeated by E. F. Quittner, Pinehurst, and J. W. Roberts, Columbus, Ohio, by three points.

In other matches: J. C. Griswold of Darien, Conn., and J. D. Miller of Port Chester, N.Y., defeated J. A. Cameron of Montreal, and R. F. Marwin of Sudbury, 3-1.

Better to Lose Beauty Contest If You Want to Become Star

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's nice to win a beauty contest but it's better to lose—if you want to become a movie star.

The history of beauty contest winners has been dismal in Hollywood, but losers go on to stardom. Take Vera Miles, who lost out in the Miss America contest some years back. Even she can't remember the name of the girl who won the year she entered.

In the recent Miss Universe contest, Evy Norlund as Miss Denmark wasn't one of the five finalists. Yet she is the only one of the 79 international beauties who wound up with a movie contract.

Max Arnow, talent director at Columbia Pictures, watched the telecast of the Long Beach beauty pageant. It was a miniature screen test for the 20-year-old Evy.

Arnow had a look at another beauty contest loser a few years ago. He took her to the late Harry Cohn and urged that she be signed. That was Kim Novak.

HE ALSO BLOWS HOT

He has the same feeling about Evy — also a blonde. She's getting the same build-up that Kim got four years ago.

Evy, a shapely blonde with an intriguing accent, is a Scandinavian Brigitte Bardot.

The Hollywood wolf pack has tried to date her, but she has a girl friend back home in Denmark.

What does he think about her beginning as extras?

"It is very hard for him to understand," she answers. "He is an actor and he can't understand why I should have a contract and not him. Actors are actors the world over, I guess."

Winner of $129,000 on TV May Become NBC Newsman

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Van Doren detests being described as a "personality."

"I'm a person," says van Doren, who received an NBC-TV contract after his intelligence, character and manner made a tremendous impression on viewers last year in the course of winning $129,000 on Twenty-One.

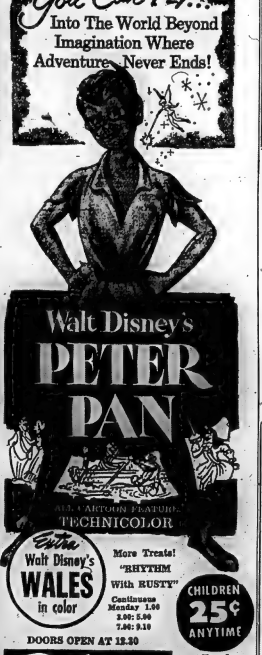
This week van Doren is substituting for Dave Garroway on the Today show. In a couple of weeks he'll return to Columbia University and resume teaching English literature. In November he'll publish an anthology of letters entitled "Letters to Mother."

Exactly what he'll be doing on NBC during the coming season is uncertain, but some time ago he decided that the television field where he could be most useful was news. He went to the office of Robert Kintner, president of NBC.

"I told him what I wanted to do," he said, "and Mr. Kintner said, 'fine. We'll send you to Tokyo for some news experience.' I was rather startled. My wife was pregnant and I asked Mr. Kintner if I could take her to Tokyo too.

"He said, 'sure,' and to check out with Bill McAndrew (vice-president in charge of NBC news). But Bill McAndrew said they didn't need anybody in Tokyo. The best place for experience, he said, was Washington.

Van Doren considers the five weeks he spent in Washington one of the most profitable times of his life.



Van Doren is determined not to quit his teaching career. He has no illusions about some people in the academic world resenting his career in television. And he has no illusions about some people in television resenting his career as a teacher. He will continue in both.

QUEEN LINKED WITH DIMAG

SMITHFIELD, Va. (AP) — Beauty queen Marian McKnight says Joe DiMaggio is "very charming and a very wonderful man" but "we are not thinking of marriage." This was Miss America of 1957's reply to reporters' queries after she saw the former baseball player off at Norfolk's Municipal Airport Monday night.

TROUBLE IN PEMBROKE

Pembroke Lumber Kings always seem to be in hot water. They have money problems, with owner Wally Lenser losing a great deal last year. They have coaching problems, differences of opinions between Lenser and everyone at large, including the arena, his players and his coach, whoever he might be at any given time.

There always seems to be trouble up north. Pembroke never seems to be sure if the team will operate or not. They threatened last year to move to Hull, Quebec. They are always talking of moving back to the NOHA and at one time this summer, were hot on the idea of forming a new league altogether.

Now out of the northern city comes word of more trouble between the "Mag With the Golden Arm" and three of last year's players. Wally has had plenty of player trouble in the past. Players have been suspended, others have quit only to come back later, others have walked in, worked money loose from Lenser then taken off. Some players have left the fold claiming the club was financially obligated to them.

Latest in the never-ending tale of woe is a story given to the press by Jim Farelli, Jack Douglas and Jim Maxwell, three of the 1957-58 Lumber Kings.

It seems Lenser placed the trio on waivers last week. He claims they would not accept cut in order to pay them the top salary under the league's new limit. The players have stated they would all quit hockey before accepting waiver calls or move from Pembroke on any deal made by Lenser.

Jim Maxwell, one of the club's high scorers despite his loafing habits, was grabbed off by Kingston when he was put on waivers. He says he will not go to Kingston under any deal made through Lenser. Maxwell showed reporters a statement, signed by Lenser and by the commission which operates the rink there, granting him his release as a free agent upon the completion of the 1957-58 season. Maxwell's contract was held by the commission before Lenser took over the club last year, according to the news story.

Reg Walton, president of the Limestone Hockey Club in Kingston, confirmed the fact that he had picked Maxwell as one waivers last weekend. "I was talking to Maxwell last Friday, and he told me then he had his release", said Walton.

Jim Farelli also claims he will not move under a Lenser deal. He showed reporters a contract signed by Lenser to play hockey in Pembroke for two years at a stipulated salary. Farelli said Lenser offered him a "radical reduction in salary" this year and when he refused, Lenser threatened to sell me".

Farelli said the original contract was signed at the time he was purchased from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League for $3,500. Lenser could pay only $1,500, according to the player and Farelli said he took the loss in return for a two-year contract.

Jack Douglas insisted he had signed a verbal agreement with Wally for the purchase of his own release. Douglas said $30 a week had been taken from his pay last year for 26 weeks. Upon payment of a further lump sum, he was to be released. Douglas says Lenser admits receiving the $30 weekly, but refuses to accept the final payment or to grant the release.

At the time the story was released out of Pembroke Lenser was said to be out of town and could not be reached for comment.

It's hard to say just what will happen but it appears "Wally the Wonder Boy" will have some straightening out to do before the season gets under way. It is difficult enough running a senior hockey club without having discord in the ranks. And hockey season is still a month and a half away!

SEASON NEARING END

There is another first class wrestling match on tap this evening at Walt Gerow's Memorial Arena, but with the hockey season drawing near, the grunt and groan battles are numbered for this season.

Headlining the cast of tonight's show will be the terror of the west, Edmonton's Gene Kiniski, going against Montreal "Frenchy" Vignal of Paris, France. This will be a two-of-three-falls event and should be a dandy, with Kiniski up to all his old tricks.

A special semi-final bout pits the crowd-pleasing Hamilton brother combination of Joe and Guy Brunetti against rough and tumble Lee "The Leer" Henning and his equally nasty partner Tiger Tasker.

In the evening's first bout at nine o'clock Leo Garibaldi tangles with muscular Tarzan Tourville.

Russ Soule's bantam "A" baseballers start the second round of their playdowns the holiday Monday afternoon when they trek to Whitby for a series opener.

The bantams eliminated Cobourg in their first round and hope to push the boys from the Land of Dunlop onto the sidelines in their quest for provincial honors. Monday's game will be at one o'clock. Second game will be played in Belleville on Saturday, September 6. The time and field have not been decided upon at the present time.

Sport fans who will be in the city Monday afternoon will find plenty of action available at the CNRA diamond.

Bob Temple's Bobcats will play hosts to Peterborough at two o'clock in the deciding game of their OASA intermediate "AA" set. The winner will be zone four champs and will meet Toronto in the next round.

Bobby Green, who has hurled his best ball since junior days in this series, will likely again be Temple's starting hurler.

Then at 4:15 Chuck Kingston's Junior "A" baseballers will take over the field for the second game of their OBA quarter-final series against Markham. The first game of that set will be played in Markham Saturday afternoon.

No-Longer Bungling Bucs Play League Leaders Seven Games Over Two Weekends

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh's persistent Pirates thunder into 10 telling days in the National League pennant chase tonight, opening a three-game series at Milwaukee with the first-place Braves.

The next 10 days could be thrillers or chillers for the no-longer bungling Bucs. At the moment, they're in second place, 7½ games behind the Braves. They stand 7-8 against the Braves with seven games remaining in the season series.

All seven are scrambled for the next 10 days—three at Milwaukee this weekend, four at Pittsburgh next weekend.

The Bucs face a half game Thursday, but had nothing to say about it. Milwaukee wrapped up a 4-1 series at San Francisco by smacking the third-place Giants 3-0 behind Bob Rush's 10 - hit pitching in the only game scheduled in either league.

It was Rush's seventh victory in 18 decisions.

Rush walked but one and struck out seven while giving up eight singles plus a triple and double to Orlando Cepeda.

The Braves had only six hits, four of them by Red Schoendienst, who doubled home the second run —of loser Johnny Antonelli, now 11-11. Del Crandall's walk and stolen base, triggering errors by catcher Hal Schmidt and center fielder Willie Mays, gave the Braves the run they needed to push the Giants nine games back in the fifth inning.

The New York Yankees should finally get around to making Washington the first victim of the inevitable in the American League pennant "race" this weekend.

The champs magic number for officially eliminating the last place Senators is three. Any combination of Yankee victories and/or Washington defeats totalling three counts.

The Yankees open a three-game set at Washington tonight. There were no games in the American League Thursday.

But if the Senators are doomed to be the first to go, they won't be alone very long. The number is 17 for the Yankees to clinch the pennant over the second-place Chicago White Sox.

The magic numbers that officially eliminate the rest of the league go like this:

Boston, 16; Baltimore, 12; Detroit, 12; Cleveland and Kansas City, 13.

Whitey Ford (14-7) goes tonight against Pete Ramos (11-13) at Washington.

Elsewhere it's Detroit at Chicago, and the Tigers sending Herb Moford (3-6) against Dick Donovan (10-12). Baltimore is at Boston. The Orioles have handed Arnie Portocarrero (12-9) against Frank Sullivan (10-7). Cleveland (Gary Bell, 7-8) is at Kansas City (Ned Garver, 11-9).

Dazzling Running, Passing By Kenny Ploen Beat Lions

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dazzling running and passing by import quarterback Kenny Ploen led Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 29-19 victory over the woefully weak British Columbia Lions in their Western Interprovincial Football Union game Thursday night.

The Lions scored one touchdown and passed for two more as Bombers trampled Lions for 421 yards along the ground and beat them in the air.

The powerful Bombers, defending league champions, into a first-place tie with Calgary Stampeders. Each team has six points. Stampeders are unbeaten in three starts. The Blue Bombers have three wins and a lots.

SIX OTHERS IN SCORING

Fullback Charlie Shepard, halfback Leo Lewis and end Frank Gilliam scored Winnipeg's other touchdowns. Gerry James converted two and kicked a field goal. Second-year Gerry Vincent each booted a single.

Lions' only point came in the second quarter when Norm Rauhaus was rouged by Dick Kaser on Ted Hunt's quick kick.

The Lions showed no signs of pulling out of disastrous start in the young season. They fired coach Clem Crowe earlier this week after losing three games by one-sided scores.

DOESN'T HELP

The team was under the direction of former assistant coaches Vic Lindskog and Wali Schlichtman and three players. It didn't make any difference.

Lions picked up only nine first downs as against Bombers' 22. They registered a mere 91 yards rushing and 102 yards passing. B.C. quarterback George Herring completed 10 of 28 pass attempts but most were short strikes. Two were intercepted.

Although Ploen completed only seven of 17 pass attempts for 140 yards, his ball handling was brilliant. He kept the Lions' defence off balance with great faking and running.

Only 4 Strokes Separate First 50 in Tourney

By NAT COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) Tough competition faces a field of 110 top golfers today in the second round of the $47,500 British Columbia Centennial Open, Canada's richest golf tournament.

Only four strokes separated the first and 50th placed golfers after Thursday's opening 18-hole round. Most of the pros had to scramble over the 6,505-yard Point Grey course. A few blew to the high 70s.

Two Canadians, a Japanese and a Texan were clustered at the top of the list with four-under-par 68s. Eleven players had 69, 10 had 70s and 13 scored 71s. Sharing the lead were Al Balding and Moe Hearn of Toronto, Kosuke Ono of Yokohama, Japan, and Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex.

NEEDS ONLY 72 PUTTS

The biggest surprise was 29-year-old Ono, three-time winner of the Japanese Open who has yet to win on the big circuit. The first-round leader needs only 29 putts as he fired five birdies for nine-under par 35. He went over par on only one hole.

Hawkins, his 68 after making two left-handed shots when his ball landed near trees. His 37-33 included three birdies.

Balding, playing in the same threesome with Hawkins, was one stroke running for the lead until the last hole when he sank a 15-foot putt for his third three. He had nines of 36-32. Magee played consistent golf.

NORMAN TWO OVER

Moe Norman, former Kitchener, amateur now playing as a professional out of Toronto carded a 71 after a 38 and 36.

Two regulars on the circuit were missing from the second round, cutting the pro field to 105.

Bert Weaver of Beaumont, Tex., was disqualified when he used shoes of several sizes for the 18th hole—a birdie four in stead of two. Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., withdrew after scoring a 77 in the first round which he played with a throat infection and a high temperature.

Thursday's first cut collapse came when Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., 1958 Masters champion, followed a one-over-par five on the 14th hole with a two-over par 38 on the 4th and a one-over-par on the 17th. He had been three-over par before he struck putting trouble.

LEONARD LUCKY

Dick Leonard, the local favorite, turned in a 70 and said "I could have been 90 for all the luck —all I need is a little talent."

Dick Stryukoff of Vancouver

Score Was 4-0

Maracle Tosses One-Hitter As Point Anne Blanks Petes

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Pat Maracle let up on one pitch and it cost him a perfect game last night as the veteran hurled Point Anne Cementmen to a 4-0 shutout over Peterborough Watercraft in the first game of their OASA Intermediate "A" set.

The second game in the two-of-three series will be played at the Bowl in Peterborough Saturday night. Game time is 8.15 under the lights.

Maracle had perfect game going for him with one out in the top of the seventh, having retired the first 19 batters he faced. The Cementmen had built a 4-0 lead as Pat mixed his pitches and had had little difficulty with the Watercraft batters.

First wacker Johnny Johnson came to the plate and Maracle threw one strike by him. But on the next pitch, Maracle seemed to just toss the ball in and Johnson poked it to left field for a clean single, breaking the magic spell.

Opposing pitcher Bob Green succeeded on the next batter and a throwing error on the play put runners on second and third with one out. Doug Hall, Cementmen shortstop, cut the lead runner off at the plate with a perfect throw to Claude Carr for the second out. McFadden grounded to first to end Peterborough's only scoring opportunity.

Maracle got the last eight batters to end up with a neat one-hitter. He faced only 29 batters, two over the minimum, striking out 11 and not walking a batter. His mates backed him with airtight fielding, charged with just the seventh-inning misstep. Pat fanned the side in the first.

Bob Green hurled good ball for Peterborough but he just couldn't receive the best of support. His mates were charged with three errors and looked bad on a couple of other plays. He scattered seven hits while issuing three and passing only one.

The Cementmen combined timely hits with Peterborough errors to score two runs in the second and another pair in the fifth.

A pair of clean back-to-back singles by Pat Gilmour and Chuck Kingston paved the way for the Cementmen's initial runs. Gilmour was cut down at the plate on a fielder's choice play but Kingston scored on a passed ball. Elliott drew a walk with two out and also streaked for second base. The basemen broke the catcher's throwing to third on the error.

Another error by second baseman Gerry Bryan led to trouble again in the sixth frame as Jo-booted Hall's ground ball and after Gilmour lined out to centre field, Chuck Kingston lashed a home run by the right fielder to make it 4-0. The fielder retired in after King-ston's apparent single only to have the ball bounce by him for a circuit blast. Point Anne threatened again in the seventh with two hits and only one out but the runners were stranded.

Chuck Kingston with a homer and single topped the Point Anne hitters while Claude Carr had two infield hits, one a perfect drag bunt. Pat Gilmour, Doug Hall and Pat Maracle split the other three singles.

Lineups: Peterborough — W. Rowe, Johnson, Green Jaquith, McFadden, Bryan, R. Rowe, Craig, Connley.

Point Anne: Carr, Wardhaugh, D. Hull, Gilmour, Kingston, Batchelor, Jones, Elliott Jr., Maracle.

Umpires — Mel Wood (P) of Peterborough and Harold Bevan.

Time — 1:18.

Detroit Raiders Look for First Win in ORFU

KITCHENER (CP) — Detroit Raiders come to Kitchener Saturday with hopes for their first victory in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series playoffs opened on their opening performance last Saturday in Sarnia.

Raiders, a lone United States entry in any Canadian football league, lost 35-33 on a fourth-quarter field goal to Sarnia Golden Bears, rated the team to beat this year. Neither Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen nor London Lords are rated up to Sarnia in their conditioning and pre-season preparation.

Detroit early looked like a winner over Sarnia for much of the game and seemed to make rapid adjustment to Canadian rules, despite little more than a week's practice. They are also replacing Toronto Balmy Beach, a former regular in the league in recent years.

Saturday's game counts as four points for the team put Richardson into the league's first place tie ahead of Sarnia. Their star player is quarterback Bob Celeri, a former California ace who joined the squad late in 1954 and has helped the team win the Canadian championship every year since then.

Detroit's team is a collection of former big-league professionals and college players. Only one has played football before this year. Playing coach is Gus Tsirgiotis, former all-American Notre Dame tackle.

Senators Not Voting to Move Out--Griffith

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calvin Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, said Thursday the club's board of directors, said Thursday night the club's board of directors would not vote on a move toward transferring to Minneapolis at a meeting today.

The Griffith statement came as a surprise in view of his earlier claim that the Nats were on the verge of seeking American League approval to leave Washington because of dwindling attendance.

"There may be some discussion about Minneapolis," Griffith said Thursday night. "But I repeat that we're still in Washington and we're not voting to move out."

Griffith denied reports that plans were afoot for the directors to approve a transfer simultaneously with action by Minneapolis officials to increase the city's stadium from 21,000 to 42,000 seats.

Last year, Griffith rejected a Minneapolis bid for his American League franchise. Now he says the club probably would ask permission to move, given satisfactory terms as to stadium facilities, rent and concessions.

Last month Griffith asked the league's permission to move, if the club deemed it advisable. At that time, fellow club owners rejected the idea. They are likely they were disturbed by his timing since Congress then was considering anti-trust legislation affecting baseball.

SURVIVES CRASH

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS Utah (AP)—A race car aiming for speed records went out of control Thursday while travelling 300 miles an hour. It flipped over several times and burst into flames but driver James Khougaz of Canoga Park, Calif., survived. He was taken to hospital and treated for burns.

Doctors Report Stamina at 'Sagging' Level

TORONTO (CP)—Two doctors tested about 100 top Canadian athletes and reported Thursday their stamina is at a "sagging" level.

The athletes from throughout Canada are participating in the Canadian Legion sports training program during the conference with the Canadian National Exhibition.

They were tested early this week by Dr. Doris Plewes of the department of national health and welfare and Dr. William Orban of the RCAF.

Dr. Orban attributed the Canadians' lag in physical fitness to a lack of a vigorous training program. During this year's British Empire Games at Cardiff, Wales, he and a staff tested top athletes from 15 Commonwealth countries. Compared with these athletes, Canada's squad showed alarming signs of fatigue.

This week's tests showed the top Canadian athlete carries too much fat, Dr. Orban said—probably the result of being too well fed while not working hard enough in training."

"The organic chart showed they're physically normal, in the field of muscular power they stacked up quite well" for the average run-of - the-mill athletes but were deficient when compared with some of the world's top athletes."

Juveniles Oust Hastings With 24-4 Victory

FRANKFORD — Frankford Legion sweeped Hastings 24-4 here Wednesday night to capture their OASA Juvenile "C" playdown round in two consecutive games. They will now meet Stirling in the Eastern Ontario finals with the first game in Frankford on September 6.

Ray Lawson pitched a two - hitter for the Legion gang to oust Hastings while his mates pounded three Hastings hurlers for 17 safeties. Lawson fanned four and walked three while Waldin, Jones and Fife handed out 12 walks and clipped four on strikes.

Alex McNaught sparked Frankford at the plate with four hits including two home runs. Lawson helped his own cause with a pair of singles. Paul Patrick had a triple and, homer while Rod Hoote picked up three singles.

Lawson surrendered a single in the third inning and a pair in the seventh as all four of Hastings runs were unearned.

Jim Maxwell May Wind Up In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—Reg Walton, president of Kingston Limestone hockey team, said the club is ready to deal with either Pembroke team owner Wally Kessel or player Jim Maxwell himself to have Maxwell play for Kingston next season.

Maxwell said Wednesday he will not go to Kingston under any deal made through Pembroke owner Kessel.

Maxwell, who waivers Wednesday, claimed that he was granted a release from the club free agent for next season.

"We sent our cheque (for the $500 waiver price) to OHA business manager Bill Hanley in Toronto," Walton said.

Jordan Favored To Beat Godih

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Jordan, a lanky lightweight contender from Los Angeles, makes his New York debut tonight as an 8-5 favorite over France's Armand Godih at Madison Square Garden.

Jordan invades the East with three straight victories and nine wins in his last 10 outings. His only loss in 11 months was a disputed 10-round decision to British champion Dave Charnley in London, Jan. 28. He has a 38-11 record, including 14 knockouts.

Godih had won 20 straight fights and had been unbeaten since 1954 when he came here last spring. He easily outpointed Jose Torres in April but was soundly beaten by Johnny Busso May 23.

Elliott Shatters World Mark For 1500 Metres at 3.36.0

GOTEBORG, Sweden AP)—Australian Herb Elliott shattered the world record for the 1,500 metres Thursday with a time of 3:36.0—the equivalent of a 3:53 mile. It set the world record Aug. 6 with a 3:54.5 time.

The 3:54 mark erased a record 1,500 metres is 3:38.1. The 1,500 metres is 1,640 yards, one foot four inches, or against 1,760 yards for the mile.

Elliott's personal times were phenomenal. He ran the first 400 metres in :56.9, the 800 metres almost exactly one half mile in 1:57.5, and the 1,200 metres in 2:55.0.

He lay back for the first half of the race, and then moved into third and then into lead at the 800 metres, and burned up the last 300 metres in :59.5. He finished 20 metres ahead of Stanislav Jungwirth who holds the official record.

Because Swedish tracks are models of equipment, no records here are run off under standard conditions, there is every expectation that Elliott's reord will be accepted.

WANT MOORE

MONTEVIDIO (AP) — Light heavyweight boxing champion Archie Moore may defend his title against South American champion Eduardo Lausse Martinez here late this year, a fight promotion firm said Thursday. The firm, Cudgess, said Moore has tentatively accepted a $40,000 offer, $7,500 taxes in Uruguay, to fight Martinez.

Galt Terriers Beat Dutchmen

KITCHENER (CP)—Galt Terriers eliminated Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen from the Intercounty Baseball playoffs Thursday night with a sensational 11-8 victory in 11 innings.

The Terriers scored four times in the top of the 11th to break a 7-7 deadlock that came when Dutchmen scored twice in the bottom of the ninth.

Dutchmen were coasting along on a 5-1 lead up to the top of the seventh when starter Gord Artis got into trouble. Before he was rescued, the winners had scored six runs.

Howie Rupp, who relieved him, was the loser. Gord Riddel, third Galt pitcher who hurled the last three frames, was the winner.

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP) — Master Bert H. owned by the Dew Valley Farm of Toronto and ridden by Gene Rodriguez, won the featured St. Catharines purse at the Fort Erie Jockey Club Thursday.

The winner ran the five furlongs in the good time of 1.11 3-5 as the finishing touch to a triple of Caledon Beau while Giver, the early pace-maker, finished third.

NEW TYPE PROPELLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of naval research reported Wednesday development of a new type of ship propeller which it said opens up increased speed possibilities for water craft. The propeller overcomes the problem of cavitation—the formation of a vacuum around a speeding propeller. This has been a major barrier to faster speed for ships because it causes a vapor pocket which cuts down propeller efficiency.

Alcoholism Is a Problem

By ROY L. SMITH

There has been a considerable change in the general attitude toward drunkenness during the last two decades. There was a time when we said that a man was a drunkard. Now we say he is an "alcoholic." It really does not make any difference in his behavior, but the word seems a little softer than its predecessor. And the attitude of softness is characteristic of the change that has come over us in dealing with the problem.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 31: "TEMPERANCE AND SOCIAL JUSTICE." Proverbs 23:29-35; Daniel 1:1-20; Habakkuk 2:9, 16; Romans 13:11 through 14: 23.

THINGS NOT CHANGED

With the passing of the years and the changing attitude toward intoxicants and intoxication, there are at least some few factors which have not changed and will not. In the first place the chemical effect of alcohol in the bloodstream has not changed in the least. As a matter of fact, with the new scientific understanding of the significance of minor quantities of any alien substance in the blood, the importance of alcohol as an added ingredient takes on new and additional importance.

In the second place, the systemic effect of alcohol when it comes in contact with exposed nerve centres is just the same today as it was when Noah became drunk and disgraced the family by performing lewdly. And again, the modern laboratory findings make the effect of alcohol on nerve tissue increasingly understandable. We know much better, now, why the intoxicated person behaves as he does, but this does not make his conduct in any way less offensive.

Moreover, with our improved understanding of bacteria in the blood, we know the increased disease hazard that results from drinking - even relatively small amounts of intoxicants. And this condition has not changed.

IT'S NOT THE COST

It is not the price of the alcoholic beverage that determines its deleterious effect. One can become an alcoholic as quickly and as helplessly by drinking high priced liquor under soft lights to the accompaniment of dulcet music, as by imbibing cheap beer in a frowzy joint among derelicts and bums.

There is scarcely an industry in America which hires as many as ten workers that is not confronted with the problem of absenteeism resulting from the use of alcohol, and the cost runs into the millions of dollars annually. It is a cost that piles up the selling cost of practically every commodity we use.

It is true that the employer stands the first shock (along with the worker in some instances), but in the long run he passes it on to the consumer with the result that the public pays. That means everybody.

In the case of highway accidents attributable to drinking it is common knowledge among the insurance fraternity, that the sober driver helps pay for the insurance of the drinking driver. liquor does not let any of us alone.

KREMLIN AGREES TO A-TEST BAN TALKS

Barrage Eases But Reds Assert Worse Is Coming

Claim Heavy Casualties Inflicted by Shelling

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Communist fire slacked off today after pouring more than 12,000 shells into the Nationalist-held Quemoy island group in 24 hours. But Peiping threatened heavier bombardments to come.

The Communist ministry of national defence ordered its artillery units to redouble their attack on the islands "and all of the Chinese mainland, Peiping radio said. It claimed heavy casualties had been inflicted on Chinese Nationalist troops in the eight-day bombardment.

Most military men on Formosa have concluded that the shelling is the prelude to a Communist attempt to capture the Quemoy group soon. The Nationalists say they're ready.

VARIED ATTACK

The barrage Friday until 2:30 a.m. today the Reds poured 12,345 shells into the islands, the Nationalist defence ministry said.

Then they decreased the fire, hurling only 200 shells at the Nationalists until shortly after dawn when they switched to an occasional scattering of shells carrying propaganda leaflets.

Rear-Admiral Lin Hoh-ju, the ministry's official spokesman, said there would be no question of the Nationalists abandoning the Tan islets "if the Quemoy group or any other offshore islands no matter how heavily they were shelled.

LIKELY CHANCE

The Tan islands are considered the most likely point for a Communist invasion attempt.

Both Wilbur Brucker, U.S. secretary of the army, and Gen. J.D. White, commander in chief of the U.S. Army in the Pacific, were in Taipei today for talks with President Chiang Kai-shek and other Nationalist leaders.

Lt.-Gen. Yu Jee Hung, chairman of the South Korean joint chiefs of staff, arrived with word that his country was ready to send troops and all possible aid to fight the Communists.

Elderly Quebec Farm Couple Brutally Slain

LAC STE. MARIE, Que. (CP) Police said today that an elderly farm couple in the upper Gatineau, apparently were brutally slain Friday, then set on money believed to have been kept in their home.

The body of Yvon Isidorof, 72, bearing bullet wounds in the neck and chest, was found Friday night in a ditch with grass and brush heaped carefully over it.

A quarter mile away lay the ruins of the couple's two-storey log home, destroyed by fire. Searchers found the scorched body of Mrs. Odile Isidorof, 81, on the remains of a metal bed.

Provincial police, awaiting ballistics examination today by crime laboratory experts from Montreal, speculated the elderly couple had been killed for money.

Neighbors described them as a quiet and extremely religious pair who had been known to express distrust of banks. They kept sometimes hinted at keeping sums of money and other valuables at home, police were told.

The fire is believed to have taken place Friday morning. It was discovered by other residents in the area, about 30 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Police said the woman's body was so badly burned that there might be difficulty in assessing whether she was shot first.

Mr. Isidorof's body apparently was dragged from its one story house to the ditch.

Police suggested that the assailant may have shot the old man outside the house after the woman was set afire and that his heart prevented him from putting the body inside to cloak the crime.

First examination of the ruins convinced searchers that both the old folks died in the fire. But police were called in when only the woman's body was found.

Lake Fair Day At Exhibition Ends in Confusion

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition, celebrating its 80th anniversary, failed attempt to give the public something different each year.

This year it was Lake Fair Day with activity Friday concentrated during the 1½-hour waterfront. Red faced officials early today, however, were still trying to sort out the confusion.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — The fine weather of the last few days in the lower Lake regions will be marred by increasing cloudiness followed by scattered thunderstorms this afternoon. Variable cloudiness and further showers and thunderstorms will continue Sunday. The temperature will likely creep up a few degrees and the humidity remain uncomfortably high.

In the central and northern parts of the province, the unsettled weather of the last day or two will continue with only slight changes in temperatures.

HURRICANE DAISY LOSING PUNCH, HEADS SEAWARD

Few Effects Felt And No Damage

HALIFAX (CP) — Hurricane Daisy sneaked at the Maritimes Friday night, then headed out to sea after being barely noticed. Few effects of the hurricane were felt and no damage was reported.

Last Friday Daisy was headed straight for Yarmouth on the southwestern Nova Scotia coast and the province braced for an onslaught of gales and rain. They never came. Daisy veered eastward and began blowing herself out.

Some Maritime communities had rain. Yarmouth had a brief but heavy downpour.

The weather office said today there was no further danger to the mainland. But the hurricane was scheduled to hit Sable Island, 100 miles off the Nova Scotia coast, at 6 a.m. today with winds of 65 miles an hour and gusts as high as 85.

MENACE FOR BOATS

A report that several fishing boats were in the path of the storm could not be confirmed. Official sources said all boats had probably reached port safely.

Whether experts described Daisy as "unique and peculiar," one weather office spokesman here sai dit was unusual for a hurricane to swing within 100 miles of the coast not to hurl gale-force winds at fringe areas.

United States reconnaissance plane reported to Boston Friday night that Daisy still packed winds of 120 miles an hour at her centre. But an early-morning search of Sable Island said wind speeds were expected to diminish to 65 miles an hour as the storm swept by Sable Island and eventually died in the Atlantic.

Two Arrested Within Hours Of Robbery

HAMILTON CP—Two youths were arrested and charged with armed robbery Friday night within hours after a woman's time keeper for a truck firm was robbed of $1,013.

Paul Thompson, 19, was arrested in a downtown east four hours after the incident. Larry Palmer, 21, was picked up a few hours later.

Police continued to search for a third man.

Mrs. Robert Krik, 40, was forced into the trunk of a car when a lone gunman who drove her to a vacant lot on the waterfront grabbed the money.

Earlier police had staked out Mrs. Krik's home and James and Barton Streets intersection following a tip of a bank holdup.

'Passive Resistance' to Gunboats British Trawlers' Secret Orders

LONDON (AP) — Secret orders opened at sea by British trawlers today directed them to offer passive resistance to any seizure attempt by Iceland gunboats.

About 20 British trawlers supported by the British navy's fishery protection squadron moved to within the Icelandic 12-mile limit of fishing foreign fishermen from within 13 miles of the island's coast. The new limit will be 12 miles.

The showdown comes at midnight Sunday when the Icelandic order becomes effective.

Skippers of the trawlers were instructed to ignore any attempt to interfere with them, to refuse to haul in their fishing gear if told to do so and in no way to facilitate the Icelandic boarding parties.

If challenged, the orders said, they must attempt to continue fishing in the normal way.

Refusal to haul in fishing gear would make it difficult for Icelanders to force vessels into ports. The British navy has warned the British losing valuable nets if the Icelandic gunboats chose to cut them up with their propellers.

"We have been given no indication of what acts the Royal Navy ships might take if the Icelanders proceed in boarding a trawler," a spokesman for the skippers said.

Talks by fishing experts of seven nations intended to settle the dispute broke down in Paris Friday and sources within NATO, which sponsored the meeting, said there was little chance of resumption.

Students and Oil Workers Stage Riot in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY AP) — Students and oil workers with separate complaints united in five hours of rioting Friday before police quelled them with gunfire.

A bank employee was killed accidentally when a bullet fired at a mob smashed through a bank window. Hospital authorities said 35 persons were taken to hospital with wounds, many from gunfire. Scores of others were injured by stones, clubs and tear gas grenades.

Most of the rioters were students protesting poor bus service and workers of Pemex, the government oil monopoly, who are involved in a union squabble that has no connection with the student complaints.

More trouble was feared at a student demonstration today which may attract striking railway, telegraphers, teachers and oil workers. Student leaders predicted 100,000 persons would show up in a downtown plaza for the demonstration.

The first fight broke out Friday in front of Pemex headquarters when workers tried to break into the building and accused police of cruelty in using tear gas on dissident workers in rioting Thursday. Two factions of all workers have been fighting for control of their union.

Students joined in bus and set it afire as they have done on a number of occasions since their protest began last Saturday. Police arrested several persons for allegedly fighting.

A mob of about 1,000 advanced on the federal district attorney's office to rescue one of the arrested youths. With tear gas and clubs unable to stop the advance, police fired about 100 shots into the crowd and laid down a heavy tear gas barrage. One of the shots hit the bank clerk.

Labor Disputes Provide Gloomy Holiday Background

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Labor - management disputes this year have brought a gloomy outlook to Canada's traditional Labor Day weekend celebrations.

The conflicts have disrupted industry from coast - to - coast. Strikes have thrown thousands out of work in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

About 13,000 workers are on strike in the shipping, steel and beer industries. Many more have been laid off because of the walkouts.

The port of St. John's, Nfld., has been tied up by a lockout of 900 longshoremen. Another 1,300 longshoremen are striking at the Pacific coast port of Prince Rupert in British Columbia ports.

In Nova Scotia, a strike at quarry workers has resulted in violence. In Ontario, strike in the steel and beer industries are dragging on with little sign of immediate settlement.

Strikes are threatened in Great Lakes shipping, the Ontario nickel industry and among Canada's municipal employees. The situation in the shipping industry and the quarry is still marked by uncertainty.

Talks at least the weather men had a word of cheer. They said good weather was expected to prevail through most of Canada for the 65th annual Labor Day Canadian National Exhibition where speakers will review labor's past and chart a course for the future.

The Eastern Canada track and field championships are scheduled for today in Kitchener. The $10,000 Duke of York Challenge trophy races for powerboats will be held today and Sunday in Huntsville.

The Big Four football union has two games on tap — Ottawa at Montreal today and Toronto at Hamilton Monday. The Ontario Rugby Football Union will have Detroit at Kitchener Saturday and London at Sarnia Monday.

The International Baseball League has Toronto Maple Leafs playing hosts to Montreal Royals today and Sunday, and to Rochester Red Wings Monday.

Many Canadians will observe the last rites of summer heading for beaches and lakes in close cottages for the season.

Labor officials, sounding some sour notes. In Alberta, they said the province is threatened by recession, pipeline holdups and a general lack of work. In Windsor, Ont., they said 1958 will be a year in which neither major labor nor setback were recorded.

RAILS, MERCHANT MARINE AFFAIRS ARE DISCUSSED

Member Says Gordon Overpaid at $75,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons plied through the reaches of transport department affairs Friday, contributing a long list of suggestions and requests about railways, roads, ferries and air navigation.

Concern about Canada's merchant marine was expressed by several of all parties and there was a disputed suggestion that CNR President Donald Gordon would be overpaid at one-third his present $75,000 salary.

Built of the day's business concerned study of Transport Minister Hees' spending estimates, R. Hardy Small (Toronto Danforth) used the occasion to throw some cracker-barrel criticism at Mr. Gordon.

MAN OF IMMENSE SERVICE

J. W. Pickersgill (Bonavista - Twillingate) defended the CNR president as "one of the greatest civil servants I have ever had," a man whose suggestions and services were disregarded but whose service in wartime and later had been immense.

Mr. Small, taking aim on some aspects of CNR service, said at this time Mr. Gordon was told: "We don't want to hurt your feelbut . . . we think you should be commensurate with the service you are rendering and not at $75,000 a year you would be overpaid."

He added amid merriment that C N R misdemeanors included starting station platforms with chunks of ice for train cooling systems.

"You have to jump the ice and probable if you miss . . . you slide into the station on your backside."

DECISIVE DECLINE

Frank Howard CCF—Skeena) had off on the question of Canada's merchant marine: "down from 7% ships after the Second World War to 26 vessels today." The Liberal party had started the decline and the Progressive Conservatives were continuing it.

He cited the recent "five sale" of the ships CNR had sold to Cuba after being strikebound a year.

Maurice Bourget (L — Levis) said the Canadian fleet now is virtually confined to the Great Lakes despite the best inland waterway system in the world.

John Diefenbaker (P.C.—Lincoln) said only two of 32 ships carrying supplies to Canada's defence forces in Europe were Canadian.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) suggested Canada should seek an agreement at the federal level with the U.S. to employ pilots for Great Lakes vessels.

Mr. Fisher said the world situation means calling for compulsory pilotage had been sidestepped by "political considerations, apparently based on the claim that pilotage costs were a "substantial" factor in shipping economy.

He said the Canadian attitude is emotional rather than factual. He didn't think pilotage costs were that high. There were some 40 Canadian pilots whose livelihood depended on the Great Lakes pilotage system.

No Guarantees CNR Workers Will Keep Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hees declined Friday night to give any guarantees that CNR employees can be assured of keeping their jobs.

He made the statement in comments to Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, who read newspaper reports to show that CNR shops in Moncton, N.B., Stratford and Winnipeg are "constantly" laying off workers.

Mr. Hees said he can give no assurances because the CNR management is statutorily responsible. But he had brought cases of layoffs to the attention of management and "they have assured me that wherever it is possible to keep an employee working that is done."

Khrushchev Hints Reds May Hold Tests First

LONDON (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has agreed to East-West talks on banning nuclear weapons tests but indicated the Soviet Union may touch off some more explosions before a final international suspension is arranged.

Moscow radio said Friday night he has accepted a week - old Anglo-American proposal to open talks Oct. 31 on a test suspension.

Khrushchev said Geneva would be the most suitable site. The U.S. had suggested the United Nations headquarters but Geneva is acceptable.

The Western proposal was made Aug. 22, one day after Communist and Western scientists agreed in Geneva that a worldwide system of enforcing a ban by detecting nuclear explosions was "technically feasible." Khrushchev rejected that scientific conclusion, which did not imply a political decision on actually banning tests.

SUGGEST A YEAR

Both the United States and Britain, who have nuclear testing under way at present, have refused to announce tests. Moscow, from the beginning of political talks. They stipulated, however, that this would depend on Russia's continuing her own unilateral suspension of tests. Their present test series are to end before Oct. 31.

The Soviet Union announced March 31, shortly after ending a three-year series of nuclear tests, that it had halted all nuclear test explosions and would feel free to start again if the United States and Britain failed to stop also.

Khrushchev said Friday "naturally cannot allow the security interests of the Soviet Union to be prejudiced" by Western tests. They "think" the Soviet Union at any obligation it had assumed unilaterally," he said.

Big and Moderate.

CONTINUING TESTS

The U.S. government announced Friday plans for 10 small scale atomic blasts in Nevada before Oct. 31, British sources said Britain expects a nuclear test series in the central Pacific.

There was immediate official comment on Khrushchev's statement.

Washington, who is vacationing in the Crimea, published his letter Friday night. Khrushchev's statement was carried in the party newspaper Pravda in the form of answers to questions.

Rocket Dogs Sail 281 Miles Into Space, Brought Back Alive

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's "bring-'em-back-alive" rocketing of two dogs into outer space has moved one step closer to achieving the same feat with human beings, the Soviet Union announced. First reports from the experiment gave no indication that a similar attempt with a human being was in the offing.

The Tass news agency Tass said the two female dogs—named Belyanka and Peostryaya — were sent aloft Wednesday from a spot in European Russia and landed just over 281 miles away Thursday.

Tass said the dogs, weighing 18 pounds each, were placed in a hermetically sealed cabinet. It said oxygen and food they came down. Previous reports on similar Soviet experiments during the past three years have said the dogs were parachuted down.

The experiment marks a step up and down operation. There has been no known Soviet attempt to bring a satellite back alive, it went up in Sputnik II last November. She died after one week.

As in the case of all dogs in Russia's space test kennel, Belyanka and Peostryaya underwent months of rigorous training on the ground and in short flights first.

The two dogs were said to be in fine shape when they emerged from their capsules back on earth.

Soviet scientist K. F. Ogorodnikov, attending the International Astronautical Federation meeting in Amsterdam, termed the latest experiment "just routine work."

"It just gets them higher than we have done before," he said.

Khrushchev Hints Reds May Hold Tests First

WASHINGTON (AP) — East-West experts officially reported today that atomic weapons tests could be detected at 180 installations stations around the world.

The report was the result of three weeks of secret talks among scientists from Canada, the United States, Russia, British, France, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

Russia on Friday night to an Anglo-American proposal to open talks Oct. 31 on a test suspension.

ASSHORE AND AFLOAT

The scientists' 25-page report called for:

1. A network of control posts around the globe. About 170 would be land-based and 10 aboard ships. They would be manned by 30 detection experts each, plus 30 subordinates such as cooks, for a total of 9,000.

2. Creation of an international control organ. It would run the global system, pick the staff, select the detection devices, study improvements and see that it is that no nation cheated on any international pact.

3. Use of weather-reconnaissance aircraft to sample the air for radioactivity.

CHEATING UNLIKELY

The report did not go into the question of what action should be an international ban on test explosions. But as to whether cheating could be detected, it said:

"It is technically feasible to establish . . . a workable and effective control system to detect violations of an agreement on the worldwide suspension of nuclear explosions. . . .

"The conference considers that the possibility of preventive measures adopted by a violator be could not be guaranteed against exposure."

The report said the 170 landbased posts would include 130 on continents, 30 on large oceanic islands and 40 on small oceanic islands. The 10 ships would drift about 1,200 to 2,000 miles apart — one in the Atlantic, two in the Pacific and the others in the South Atlantic and Indian Oceans.

24 IN NORTH AMERICA

The 110 continental and island posts would be about 600 miles apart in effect. That would mean 24 in North America, six in Europe, 17 in Asia, seven in Australia, 16 in South America, 16 in Africa, and four in Antarctica.

The report did not give a breakdown on how many posts would be set up in each country. That was another political question left for the diplomats.

U.S. officials figured the United States share of the posts would get about 10 bases each.

ANY TYPE BLAST

The recommended pattern was described as a "five-kiloton system" (kiloton equals 1,000 tons of TNT) with "good probability" any kind of nuclear explosion — underground, underwater, ground, high altitude—down to those with the yield of the Hiroshima bomb.

Below five kilotons, the report said, detection was difficulty, and identification, especially if there were national occurrences like earthquakes in the area next to impossible.

Even so, the report said the recommended system could spot a nuclear blast down to one kiloton on the ground or at sea at 85 miles. Above that altitude, it said it would be difficult to say for sure if a nuclear explosion and not simply lightning. . . .

Murney E. Hick Honored At Retirement Party, Recalls Many District Incidents

Construction of the initial toll telephone line between Smiths Falls and Peterborough and the last of the river driving days on the Moira River, were recalled here this week by Murney E. Hick, facility man with the Bell Telephone Company in Belleville, who is retiring after 40 years service with the company.

Friday night company officials and fellow employees honored Mr. Hick at a retirement party held at the Local Shrine Club at which approximately 100 persons attended.

During the evening several presentations were made to Mr. Hick, one being his 40 years service with the company.

Mr. Hick's experience as a telephone man dates back to 1913 although he entered the telephone field a full five years later. With Bell he started as a combination man which he says is "doing a little bit of everything."

During his many years with the firm he has been stationed at Tweed, Madoc, Stirling and for 25 years at Belleville interspersed between his out of town assignments.

But he calls Belleville his home having lived in and out of the city since he was nine years of age.

One of his most vivid recollections of Belleville before the turn of the century was the building of the river driving days. He remembers about 1900 when timber became too scarce to make them profitable.

WERE ROUGH CREW

"River drivers were a rough crew", Mr. Hick recalls, "and Dad frequently warned me to stay away from downtown during the month which the drives were in.

Mr. Hick undertook his father he managed to get in a few excursions on the river as a free accurtion men in their high boots stalked or sometimes "staggered" away from the hotels.

With the realization, however, that river driving days were about at an end, Mr. Hick's father one day rented and took the boys down the river bank to his son over the river driving days.

Last night Mr. Hick was presented with the president's wallet and also received life membership in the Telephone Pioneers of America; and a life membership in the Canadian Telephone Employees' Association. He also received a gift of money, the amount of which is in attendance at the retirement party.

Last week at an impromptu party held at the Parkdale Community Centre, Mr. Hick received a presentation from the girls in Test Centre and Assigning Department.

Offered $1 and Short Ride, Hitch-Hicker Produces Gun, Lengthens Trip, Takes $115

Hank Hanberg, 37-year-old truck driver, 95 Clifton Street, was offered $1 and a dollar to a man who said he had not eaten for two days. He used him a trip a dozen miles out of his way, at gun-point, and $115, and a gun, was taken on him. He had just been paid.

Mr. Hanberg was driving east on Highland Avenue, Highway No. 2, at 1.10 p.m. yesterday when he stopped to look at a hitch-hiker. When the man said he had not eaten for two days, Mr. Hanberg felt sorry for him and, because he was going only as far as the Hastings County line, offered him a dollar as compensation for the fact the short ride the man was receiving was very short. Instead of accepting the dollar the man pulled a gun, produced it at Mr. Hanberg, sat down on the floor boards in the front of the car and told his would-be benefactor to drive to Trenton.

ORDERED STOPPED

The man appeared to know the district well, for as soon as he heard the car leave the loose flooring of the bridge over the Trent and strike the concrete, he ordered Mr. Hanberg to turn right and drive to Batawa. He kept the gun pointed at him all time, so evidently recognized the location from the sound of the car's wheels on the bridge.

When the car reached Highway 401, the man ordered Mr. Hanberg to turn onto it. A bulldozer working on the as yet unfinished highway blocked the way, so the gunman told Mr. Hanberg to turn around. About a half-mile from the bulldozer Mr. Hanberg was ordered to pull over to the curb and get out of the car.

"He got out on the same side and took the car keys and threw them up into the woods. Then he took off into the woods himself," Mr. Hanberg.

But first he ordered Mr. Hanberg to turn over all the money he had, $115.

REPORT DELAYED

Shortly afterwards a station wagon came along. Mr. Hanberg, flagged it down and asked the occupants to telephone police. But, according to Mr. Hanberg, instead of telephoning they continued on to Trenton and told police of the incident. It was almost an hour after the man fled before police arrived on the scene.

Provincial police here were informed of the robbery by Trenton police immediately they had learned of it. The Provincial Police office here says the robbery was reported at 2.20 p.m., estimated to be half an hour after the man fled. A police officer, from here, Brighton and Trenton, rushed to the scene and combed the dense bush until dark, but no trace of the gunman was found.

"The bush was so thick that you would never see the man unless one stepped on him," said one policeman.

Hanberg says he always the possibility the gunman made his way to some nearby road and hitch-hiked another ride. He may have got safely away from the area before the robbery was even reported to police.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

Mr. Hanberg is out $115, but he has not lost his faith in human nature.

"This just happens once in a lifetime," he declares, and states that he will continue his practice of picking up hitch-hikers. He has given rides to many and this is the first time that anyone in the area has acted unkind. One reason why he has a soft spot for hitch-hikers is that has hitch-hiked himself, in many parts of the world. Born in South America, he came to Canada from Holland four years ago. Most of the past four years he has travelled in the Belleville district, his present home being at R. R. 1, Frankford. He adds that the man did not abuse him in any way, aside from holding a gun on him, and spoke with little during the drive.

Mr. Hanberg describes the gunman as about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches, weighing between 130 and 140 pounds and being about 20 to 25 years old. He was very dark, with long black hair but without a beard. He had black eyes and had not shaved for a day or two. He wore blue jeans and a blue checkered work shirt and spoke with an accent which led Mr. Hanberg to judge him to be of Central European origin.

Police Blotter

City and provincial police had a quiet night despite the fact that a full moon illuminated points through Belleville all night long. A few very minor traffic accidents occurred, but no one was injured.

Stephen J. Garvin Honored On Retirement as Chief Night Dispatcher, 47 Yrs. of Service

Close to 125 fellow CNR railway employees and officials from Montreal, Toronto, Oshawa, Lindsay and Belleville held a testimonial dinner last night at the Club Canada for retiring night chief dispatcher Stephen J. Garvin.

Mr. Garvin was chalked up a record all over 47 years as a Canadian National Railways employee; the past 22 of these at the Belleville station. He concluded his last official day of work on Sunday, August 24. Now on vacation, he will be officially retired on September 30.

"I'm just going to take it easy now for awhile and get a good rest," he said when queried as to what his plans are now that he is retired.

"I've worked hard all my life — many long hours — but I've merely tried to render the kind of service the company expected of me. There's nothing you can get as much kick out of as working, and if I had to start over I would do the same thing."

Mr. Garvin said he found his 47½ years' service with the CNR "deeply rewarding."

Also present to share in the tribute paid to the slight, bespectacled railroader were his wife and their seven children, five of whom attended with their respective spouses. They are Marguerite (Mrs. Fred Donahoe); Stephen Jr.; Roy; Shirley Joan (Mrs. E. Finkle); Gerald and Mary Garvin.

Master of ceremonies was Belleville superintendent A. R. Wilson. Head table guests included Mr. Trails, day chief dispatcher; G. F. Wade, assistant superintendent, S. Eaton, traffic supervisor express, and Mrs. Eaton; J. W. Risk, superintendent of work equipment, Toronto; R. Dixon, division master mechanic; Stephen J. Garvin Jr.; Roy; Shirley Joan (Mrs. E. Finkle); Gerald and Mary Garvin.

STEPHEN J. GARVIN

In his address Mr. Garvin recalled his lengthy railroad career which began on April 1, 1911 at Marlbank. He joined the CNR as assistant agent at the age of 18.

He has since worked as an operator and relief dispatcher at various points such as Tweed, Napanee, Cobourg, Federal and Thurlow. He was the first night operator on the Canadian Northern at Cobourg.

HERE SINCE 1916

His first railroader came to Belleville in 1916 and was employed at the joint Canadian Northern and CPR south Belleville depot until the station closed in 1930.

He became a dispatcher at Belleville in November, 1935, at the present CNR station, and was appointed night chief dispatcher in 1936 — a position he has held until his retirement.

"I have passed through two world wars, the railway strike in 1950, and handled the Royal train which went through in 1939," he recalled.

He noted changes such as the fast diesel trains. "They require a lot more supervision," he said.

Mr. Garvin expressed his regrets at leaving and thanked all the staffs of the various departments for their co-operation through the years. He also thanked the committee in charge of the banquet, headed by L. Train and Bill Parry.

Mrs. Boyle, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the CNRA, was thanked by Superintendent Wilson for the auxiliary's catering services. The auxiliary prepared and served a delicious turkey dinner.

A sing-song was led by Mrs. L. Stott, with piano accompaniment by Bill Parry.

Dancing concluded the evening's entertainment.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

People From All Walks of Life Are Finding Retirement's Dream

By THOMAS COLLINS

This, when age 65 comes, is what they make dreams out of!

The John Tatters. He retired from an industrial job in 1957 and began investing things. He now has a patent on a paint saver, that is designed to prevent dripping, and another on a paint-can holder that attaches to a ladder.

He also has invented an adjustable boat seat, and is now working on a folding door for automobiles that will let a passenger get in or out in tight quarters.

"I've got ideas to work and you will enjoy your retirement," says Mr. Tatter.

The Wilson Shafers. As retirement came on they began searching for a nature-loved residence if a piece of land that could grow things would be a future. Through the American Forest Products Industries, Washington, D.C., they did investigating before farming.

In time they found 246 acres and a run-down house near Charlottesville, Va. The price: $5,000. They bought it and named it "Finally."

The State Forestry Division helped in locating them, and they now have the place planted in loblolly pines, which experts say would be a fine timber. The Shafers expect to make some money.

The Fred B. Slaters. They retired to California and Mr. Slater tried to get a job. He was 66 and nobody wanted him. But he looked long enough to learn something about the employment situation. So he and Mrs. Slaters invested $250 (for a telephone and three months' rent on a Suburban cubbyhole) and set up an employment agency. They are working three hours a day, six days a week, and making an average of $100 a month.

The Frank J. Campbells. Let Mrs. Campbell tell it:

"We got on a retirement income of $200 a month was, and is, our problem.

"We had $5,000 in savings, good health, no debts, a small car, a small life insurance policy, and a health insurance policy.

"We spent a great deal of time looking for a retirement house. (This was in the New York State area, which is about as expensive as any in the country.) We found one, and we paid $5,500 for it. Yes, I said a house.

"It is a two-storey house, clean, painted white, has a new deep well, beautiful shade trees a n d lawn. It is on a main highway, five miles from a small town, and a short walk to a country grocery store. It also is situated on a fine trout stream, and has a breathtaking view of the mountains.

"When we moved in we bought, for cash, a water heater, electric water pump, a new stove for bottled gas, electric refrigerator, garden tools, two space heaters, a piano and a good rowboat. We put in a bath and shower. . ."

All this, Mrs. Campbell says, represented at the most another thousand dollars.

"We have a large garden, with potatoes, corn, tomatoes, strawberries and other food. We keep a few chickens for eggs. The fish can be had for the effort.

"Eaten down into dollars and cents, our life is costing us about $150 a month, leaving $50 for pleasure and travel. We are paying $60 a month for food, $10 for utilities, $15 for car insurance, $4 for taxes, and $40 for heat. . ."

ELECTION POSTPONED

KARACHI (AP) — Pakistan hasn't had general elections since 1946. It was going to have one now but is putting off this fall's balloting until February because of the rainy season which will make the routes to the polls too muddy in some areas.

Lubricant Cures Many Front End Noises

By EUGENE MILMOE

Some front end squeaks, rattles and knocks can be especially tantalling. If such a noise has been marring your driving pleasure, perhaps a brief check list can help you solve the mystery.

Often, lubrication is the answer. A squeak could be the shock absorber linkage, seat springs, seat stabilizer supports or front wheel bearings crying out for needed lubrication. Steering linkages which are damaged or adjusted too tightly — or lacks wheel stud nuts — will cause squeaking, too.

Rattles suggest such troubles as loose shock absorbers, worn, pitted or loose wheel bearings, or loose brake drums, shoes or backing plates.

Front end knocks can be due to worn, loose or damaged shocks, or worn brake shoes or backing plates.

• • •

I. P. asks: "At night, if I try to start with my parking lights are on, they go out. Once the engine starts, they light up again. Should this be?"

(A) No. Look for loose or corroded connections, particularly at the battery.

From G. T.: "I bought a brand-new battery in late January which neither failed n o r started any slower how low the temperature went. After s i x weeks of steady driving, the same battery has weakened badly. Twice it had to be recharged. Did it have a defective normal battery behavior?"

(A) Not usually, and on batteries, too. They should be checked more often since heat can cause the electrolyte to evaporate quickly.

C. M. writes: "After my 1953 engine is running a little while a lot of smoke seems to come from the oil filler pipe. Would piston rings be responsible?"

(A) Worn rings might be allowing combustion gases to blow into the crankcase — but excessive crankcase ventilation rates equal suction.

Presentations Made to Two Staff Members

Two faithful members of the Ontario Intelligencer staff, Mrs. Margaret Whitfield, who has been on the staff for a period of ten years, and Mr. Don Harvey who has been a reporter for two years, were presented with farewell gifts, Mrs. Whitfield, on Friday afternoon, and Don on Saturday morning, by the staff members.

Mr. Dick Payne, editor, thanked Mrs. Whitfield for her fine cooperation and wished her best in the days ahead. Mrs. Mabel Robertson made the presentation of a leather purse to the retired.

As Don failed to appear at the appointed time, his farewell remembrance of a flash equipment his ever-diligent camera was made by Alderman Claude D. Tice, city editor, who, on behalf of Don's fellow workers, extended to him best wishes for success in the fine city of Vancouver in his chosen field of tracking down out-of-the-ordinary news.

The best wishes of all go with these two in their chosen fields.

Former Manitoba Premier Now Works for Farm Foreman

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — When is a boss not the boss? Answer: When he's working for his foreman.

That was the situation Douglas L. Campbell, former Liberal-Progressive premier of Manitoba, found himself in when he returned to his farm at nearby Fisa Island.

Mr. Campbell, a cabinet minister since 1926 and premier for 10 years until his party's defeat in the Manitoba election last June, had seldom before found time to visit his 480 - acre farm at harvest time.

FILLED GAP

Jim Wilkinson, who farmed the Fisa Island place while Mr. Campbell lived in Winnipeg, couldn't find a truck driver this year to haul grain as it was harvested.

"Heck, I can drive a truck," said the 65-year-old leader of the opposition. He was promptly put to work.

Later in the day the slim Scot, dressed down in a gym shirt and in work pants and heavy boots, pitched 100 bushels bouncing per stubble fields at the wheel of the farm truck, or shoveling a scoop shovel with authority.

Asked how he liked being a farm hand, the veteran Liberal-Progressive member for Lakeside smiled and said, "Just fine, just fine. This is perfect harvest weather."

OLD HOME

After the combining was completed on the 38 - acre barley field, Mr. Campbell was scheduled to mow over by a 30-acre field of wheat on the farm, 30 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

"I'm really looking forward to working on that particular 30 acres," he said. "It was the exact 30 acres my father broke in 1880 . . ."

Douglas Campbell was born May 27, 1895, on the farm of his father who had settled in the Portage la Prairie area 15 years earlier.

THE AVERAGE LIFETIME

What with the Cold War and the H-bomb and rockets to the moon and the ever-increasing crush on our highways, we regard life-expectancy statistics with a jaundiced eye.

Insurance companies, which pin a lot of faith and premiums on these figures, have in their wisdom decided to their archives should be mathematicians rather than soothsayers.

As a result, life-expectancy figures are based on what has happened in the past.

The belief that history will repeat itself in the years ahead is comforting but, considering the state the world is in, perhaps not so reliable as could be desired.

Nevertheless, a recent report by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company is interesting in showing what has been achieved in lengthening the life span in different countries.

"Gains generally have been greatest in countries which formerly had the least favorable record", the report states.

Many will regard this as something short of surprising. Rather obviously the countries with the worst records had the most room for improvement. But it is encouraging to learn that they have achieved so much in such a short time. Puerto Rico, for instance, has increased the average lifetime by 22 years in a 15-year period, while Ceylon reports an increase of 17 years in an eight-year period. India, however, has increased life expectancy by only a quarter of a year annually. Expectation of life at birth in India is only 32.1 years, lowest in the 1941-50 figures, the lowest in the world's highest life expectancy is enjoyed by the Dutch, 72.5 years, according to 1953-55 statistics.

Incidentally, have you ever heard somebody remark that, while residents in the U.S. make more money than Canadians, they pay a heavy price owing to the pressure under which they work and live? Don't believe it. It doesn't show up in the statistics. Life expectancy in the U.S. is 69.5 years, compared with 69.9 years in Canada. The five-month edge Canadians enjoy is hardly enough to support the theory of the high toll of pressure resulting from the fast pace of life south of the border.

THINKING AND WORRYING

The other day while conversing with a friend we were asked to define the line between the verbs "think" and "worry".

Those two verbs are closer to being identical than many people think. To think or to worry one must use his mental faculties. Short of being an idiot every human being can think and worry. Unfortunately many people worry because they have not given very much thought to a problem. Both thinking and worrying are products of the mind.

Why do many people worry about something? Because, in reality, it is much easier to worry than it is to think something out to a logical conclusion. To think intelligently requires a person to have a sound understanding of the matter at hand. Sometimes, though, it is not possible to have a thorough understanding of the subject. When people know about a disturbing situation, the more they tend to worry about it.

The ability to think and to worry requires intelligence. Frequently we find that the more intelligent a person is the more he worries. Worry, then, can be traced to thought. Any good dictionary will tell you that worry means a troubled state of the mind, while constructive thinking is really reasoning out, by logical steps, a conception. Where thought ends and worry begins we do not know. But it does seem likely that worry is "destructive" thinking.

How can we quit worrying? By shrugging off our problems or by laughing them aside? No, that might tend to make us irresponsible. A thoughtful and intelligent person is not irresponsible. Perhaps the best way to lay aside our worries is to view our problems from all angles and seek advice if necessary. But advice on one particular problem does not guarantee its solution. Advice is merely a means to an end. If we "live" on advice we quickly forget how to think clearly for ourselves.

We may have strayed somewhat from our original theme, but that is what happens sometimes when people think. At least thinking is a better recreation than worrying and it is certain we are not worrying if we have rambled.

THEORY AND PRACTICE

"If I had a baby"
And that baby cried,
I'd spank her", she said.
But the mother just sighed.

"If I had a wilful,
Cross, bad-tempered child,
I'd spank her", she said,
But, the mother just smiled.

"If I had a baby
That wouldn't mind me,
I'd spank her", she said,
said the mother: "May be!"

"What you say", said the mother,
"You mean, without doubt,
But babies are joys
You know nothing about.

A Case of Stengelitis

By Ed Smith in the New York Herald Tribune

When Casey Stengel appeared before the Celanese subcommittee on anti-trust and monopoly, the papers made a good, game try at summarizing the Yankee manager's testimony — a task comparable with transcribing the Dead Sea Scrolls on the head of a pin. How the members of the hearing has become available, and voters may read and discover for themselves just what their representatives have been contend with down in Washington.

The lawyers cannot complain, however, that they didn't have a fair warning. Early in the transcript, the following colloquy is recorded:

Sen. Estes Kefauver: "Mr. Stenger, I am not sure that I made my question clear".

Mr. Stengel: "Yes, sir. Well that's all right. I am not sure I am going to answer it correctly either".

As usual, Mr. Stengel erred on the side of modesty. If the answers which follow, aren't perfect, then at least they're entertaining.

Sen. William Langer: "This is the Anti-Monopoly Committee that is sitting here".

Mr. Stengel: "Yes, sir".

Sen. Langer: "I want to know whether you intend to keep on Procuring the fish and chips is a ceremony in itself. The wrapping is a newspaper — the New York is "genuine" English fish-and-chip shop uses only English newspapers for the wrapping. Possibly the flavor is thus enhanced, but we're not sure about this. What we do know is that a certain charm is added to the eating of fish and chips by the opportunity it gives one of reading the day's news in reverse order. One can read it late before they're popped into the mouth. Then, at the end of dull evening and the only thing to compare with it on this continent is alphabet soup, in which letters can be arranged to conjure up words for dinner partners. The soup is not nearly so satisfactory as the chips, however, and only hints of fried can about, but because it is too quickly rearranged. Another output letters together, but it takes considerable practice to read a chip.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 28th., 1938

Twenty - five per cent increase in unemployment registrations over a year ago was disclosed today by officials of the local employment office. Six hundred are at present registered with about two - thirds being men. Lack of harvest employment, decline in shoe manufacturing and district canning factories to remain idle this season are given as the main reason for the increase by employment officials. Applications for tomato pickers in the fields and women for peeling tomatoes are expected within a fortnight when the peak of the tomato crop is expected to be here.

From our file copy at this time in 1898: A trolley car going to the station to meet the 11.30 train left the track near Dawson's factory on Station Street, near the Canniffon Road, and overturned through a fence into a vacant lot. The car was well filled with passengers but all escaped injury. Several teafuls of horses were secured and the car was put up upon the track.

Nothing Like Chip Reading

Oshawa Times-Gazette

A school medicil officer has whipped up a storm in Britain by attacking a national institution, fish and chips. She (the officer's a female) did not object to the food itself but to the way the grease-sodden strips of potato that make children dull, lethargic and fat. That's the dark side of the story.

The result was what the unofficial spokesmen of protest from everyone from editorial writers to Conservative Party backbenchers particularly incensed, because the fish and chip are virtually inseparable in the U.K. Bruise the chip and you damage the fish.

The protests were unnecessary. The medical officer's criticism is not going to affect the consumption of fish and chips one slice. Fish and chips in England are not a fad but a compulsion, something like chewing gum in the United States, betel nuts in the East and coffee in newspaper offices.

TV-Created Crisis

Washington Post

As if there weren't enough fictional crises on the air — one another, a new — and it seems to its needless one has now been added by the clever boys on Madison Avenue. It concerns the tiny Scottish island of Sirenna, which is nevertheless just large enough — about two miles long and a half mile wide — to be on the map. Sirenna lies in the Firth of Scotland just beyond the extreme tip of the northern mainland between Duncansby Head and the more populous Orkneys.

It seems that until recently the inhabitants of this rock island was a Yorkshire umbrella maker named John C. Hoyland, who was determined enough to visit his property in fine weather but apparently disturbed enough at the adventurous enough to visit his property in fine weather but apparently disturbed enough at the prospect of a television give-away program. Mr. Hoyland, however, was presently overwhelmed by the producers of a television give-away program, who, by the way, now plan to offer it as a prize to one of their successful contestants.

Apparently the 17 fishermen and crofters (subsistence farmers) population of Sirenna were in no way consulted about the proposed deal — since there are no television receiving sets on the island, may not even know what it is. Nevertheless it has occasioned a good deal of indignation throughout Great Britain, and even the Times of London, which ordinarily reserves its thunderbolts for matters of great pith and moment, has devoted one of its leaders to denunciation of the affair.

"The Scottish nationalists, a valuable if not very numerous group, have been filling the air with outraged protest. In New York the Scottish-American societies have threatened to put on their kilts and to picket the broadcasting studio.

On the other hand, a Mrs. MacCaughly, who lived on Sirenna until about a year ago, is quoted as having said rather bitterly that whoever gets the place, even if it is for nothing, will be swindled. The producers have guaranteed the modernization to dispose of the island according to plan, but the spot — a romantic concern will a considerable export trade to Great Britain — has become a bit worried about the whole idea and has threatened to disassociate itself from it.

We must say, though, that our own sympathies are with the remaining islanders who have to face the fearful prospect of being ruled by one of those prodigies that have risen to fame and riches by liking able to remember on one and no forms were worn by the Brooklyn Dodgers for the year A.D. 1921.

We cannot help thinking that the organizing ability of the unofficial would have been far better spent if it had been converted instead into Scotch whisky, and donated pro rata, to the hard working islanders. This notion to be sure, is not quite original; it is suggested to us by a fantasy of the late Compton Mackenzie, which as you doubtless remember was diverted into that delightful British movie called "Tight Little Island."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

More and, more people are discovering that small inexpensive boats are more agreeable, for them, than summer holidays. I encountered a party of this sort on Georgian Bay in two station wagons who were prospecting for a place in which to spend the summer for a real good small resort hotel which, as many people would be staying open through the fall.

They were going to fish, bird watch, take color photographs and generally enjoy the halo winds of September for the next four full weeks.

"The main thing," explained one of the wives, "of course, is the service you get in autumn. The crowds have gone. The resort owners are in a nice frame of mind, and unexpectedly nice to us. They have let most of their staff go, especially the waiters, and Canada that it is the cooks who ruin the resorts. They are part-time professionals, most of them. Full-time professionals can't usually be got for love or money, except in the fall season, the cooking is done by the girls themselves. It's home cooking, instead of the semi-pro."

This is a new angle on autumn holidays.

They're more homey.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

INVISIBLE CONTROL

One of the most interesting sights at a flying camp basin is the small radiocontrolled pilotless plane. With a wingspread of about eight feet and a small gasoline engine, it takes off, climbs, circles, banks, dives and lands with no one in it. In the back of a truck near where the plane takes off sits a sergeant with a small box in his hands. By pushing the controls on the box, he directs the flight of the plane, even occasionally causing it to cut capers and bringing it back again.

To people who see it for the first time, the sight of the small plane by an invisible band of radio waves, is almost incomprehensible. Yet when we think about it a bit, the plane and the remote control are in very much the same relationship as man and God.

To the non-believer; the idea that he is connected by invisible ties to a superior being is just as incomprehensible as it is to the pilot of the plane that is controlled by the box in the sergeant's hands.

But the Christian knows that his connection exists. He has felt the power directing him through it. And when he has prayed for help, he has experienced the gift of strength and guidance.

Remote control, but very real. We are happy only if we have in it.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ALLERGY IS ONLY ONE POSSIBILITY IN FUNGUS INFECTION

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband spent hundreds of dollars on doctors who tried to cure a so-called fungus infection. Finally he had an allergy test. Presto, by avoiding everything listed that he reacted to, he was soon well. When, in a column such as yours, all the real advice you can give is see a doctor, it makes the column worthless in my opinion. Don't print my name, but I think it would be real happy if you would pass on to Mr. Doe that an allergy test probably would fix him up fine.

Well, I've seen chided before. Some readers occasionally seem downright angry if I don't diagnose symptoms and toss off a reply that two bottles of something or other will cure them. I'm a bum in your book for not doing that, but I'm honest. And it will have to be. The ills of the human body are so complex that seldom is it possible to give a description of a condition, and snap off a reliable answer as to the cure.

All I can feel qualified to do on the basis of written descriptions, is to try to give readers the information that will help their body works, what signs are indicative of various things, what methods of treatment are used, and why they are used.

But saying that a "so-called fungus infection" can be cured by allergy tests! In some cases, yes. In others, no. Allergy is only a possibility; it is only one. But when a person finds one particular cure that fits his case, he feels pretty certain that it will cure everyone else, too. Why, one reader gave me the dickens for not recommending thyroid for athlete's foot! It worked for him, and we might reasonably guess that everyone in the world has had something to do with his glandular relationship. But should I tell everybody with athlete's foot to try thyroid? What a lot of damage I'd cause if I ever did that! See what I mean?

Skin Diseases Difficult

Now as to your husband's "so-called fungus", some doctors do know more than others, and some are luckier than others, and some cases are harder to diagnose than others, and skin diseases are about as difficult as anything can be.

Allergies — and I don't think you have delinquent in pointing to the possibility of allergy in a good many types of complaints — are indeed frequent troublemakers.

The fact is, however, that many a patient insists on trying everything else first. Indeed, if some simpler remedy be right for one, that's fine.

There can be food allergies, and allergies to dust, flowers, animals, metals, bugs, medicines taken internally or externally, fabrics, cosmetics, soap, and even such things as the paint on a broom handle. I hope your suggestion will help him.

But, friend, I can't imagine how to suggest that M.D. have an allergy test unless I do precisely what you say you don't want me to do! and tell him, "go see your doctor."

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told by a friend that a mustard flush, or should I say redness at the heel of the hand and base of the thumb indicates a severe liver ailment. Is this true?

—B.G."

It may be true. Another cause is some local irritation or skin sensitivity, perhaps primarily to something that commonly touches that part of the hand, as a brush, broom, polishing cloth or something like that.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 12 years old. I get constipated because one of my breasts has started developing but the other hasn't. What's wrong? please answer in your column because if I don't know why or way to find out. —Gail."

I doubt if anything is wrong, Gail. Girls start menstruation at about your age, and not always evenly on both sides. Consult your mother, she'd call your family doctor and get you the same answer I just gave you.

Are you a victim of "vitamin starvation?" To make sure that you are getting adequate proper food, write to me in care of this newspaper for my pamphlet, — "Vitamin Starvation," and I'll send it, enclosing a large, self addressed stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Newfie Type Of English

Cornerbrook Western Star

We believe that the basis for many of the expressions indigenous to Newfoundland only can be found in the pages of English spoken many, many years ago.

For example, we might say it's "right cold." The Oxford dictionary quickly shows that "right" is a synonym for "very", so therefore it is correct. But this expression has been dropped from general use in many lands where English is the chief language.

Newfoundland has retained this and other expressions, and surely there can be no reason for changing them.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON RENEWING YOURSELF

We pay too little attention to the significance of renewing ourselves. Take nature. Each year she renews her entire outer being. Even her leaves seem to anticipate the long dead winter while taking breath from Mother Earth.

Our bodies are continually renewing themselves, and in an emergency they show how millions of human beings can well testify to the miraculous power and new life that Nature works when injured. We run into examples of growth and renewal all about us, and testify to them from personal experience.

The most remarkable renewal process goes on in the brain. We meet companions in early youth and after many years we contact these friends again — but you say then Oh, how you have changed! And they always have changed.

Every one of us changes from day to day. But the good that we do. Otherwise we might be difficult to live with.

God helps people to renew themselves when they have shed ill habits and developed upon a way of life that uplifts itself rather than pulls that defeated. The possibility for change and newness of life is ever before us. But we must get the most from living, and an uplifted program of self-development every person seems to have changed! Perhaps they have! We are rather important of the human brain.

We have our periodic times for bodily inspection, and spiritual, which is wise and sensible, but we must not shove the mind over in that inspection. How wonderful is the sight of a man, or woman redeemed — new thoughts, new objectives, new purposes, and new hearts — everything renewed!

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

WHEN I CAN READ MY TITLE CLEAR

When I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies,
I'll bid farewell to every fear,
And wipe my weeping eyes.

Should earth against my soul engage,
And fiery darts be hurled,
Then I can smile at Satan's rage,
And face a frowning world.

Let cares like a wild deluge come,
Let storms of sorrow fall,
So I but safely reach my home,
My God, my heaven, my all.

There I shall bathe my weary soul,
In seas of heavenly rest,
And not a wave of trouble roll
Across my peaceful breast.

It is more than 200 years since the great English hymnist, Dr. Isaac Watts, slipped away to taste those "seas of heavenly rest" of which he sings in this popular and precious hymn of Heaven. But in churches throughout Christendom today the great hymns that he left behind him are still being sung as fervently as in the days that he penned them.

How could present day Christians possibly manage without such song-gems as "We're Marching To Zion", "O God, Our Help In Ages Past", "When I Survey The Wondrous Cross", "Jesus Shall Reign", and that favorite of every Christmas season, "Joy To The World, The Lord Is Come." None of Dr. Watts' hymns has enjoyed wider popularity and use than the one reproduced above. It was included in that rather notable volume of "Hymns And Spiritual Songs" which Dr. Watts published in 1707 while serving as minister of the Independent Church in London. Its title in that collection was "The Hope of Heaven Our Support Under Trials On Earth".

It was a great favorite in the nineteenth century gospel revivals which swept across America shortly after the war between the states ended, in 1865, an interesting anecdote appeared telling of the hymn's use one night on the battlefield of Shiloh. According to the story, a captain who lay upon the field, badly wounded, began to think as he gazed up at the starlit heavens of the suffering which Christ endured on the cross for the sins of humanity.

"I felt", the young officer said later, "that though wounded I ought to praise God. I could not help singing that beautiful hymn commencing with the line, 'When I can read my title clear'. And soon I discovered that there was a Christian in the brush near me. I could not see him but I could hear him. He took up the strain of the song, and beyond him another and another joined in the singing, and we made that bloody field ring with that hymn of lofty cheer".

The Bible Today

Some years ago a President of the Republic of Argentine declared that the immense superiority of North America over South America was due to the Bible which the Pilgrim Fathers made the basis of their life in the new land.

Today there is hope for South America in the increased interest in, and study of, this great Book. Last year in Brazil alone the third largest distribution figure in the world was reached — 3½ million copies. Evangelical Christianity is on the march among our southern neighbors. In this forward movement the Bible Society is playing its part in bringing a new unity to the many tribes, with the message of God's redeeming love in Christ Jesus.

Suggested reading for next week: Sunday, Eccles. 1:1-18; Monday, Eccles. 2:1-22; Tuesday, Eccles. 12:1-14; Wednesday, Mark 1:1-22; Thursday Mark 1:23-45; Friday, Mark 2:1-28; Saturday, Mark 3:1-35.

thing better. He so loved the world that He sent prophets and teachers and then His "Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." Try to think how our social heritage has been enriched by the church of God keeping His love ever before us in sacrament and symbol.

STRETCH OUR MINDS

It does us unspeakable good to stretch our minds to see the greatness of life when lived in God's sight. We talk a lot about relaxing our tensions. We might remember that the best relaxation of little tensions is to use our large muscles. When, for instance, we have been writing at our desk until our fingers are tired, it is good to get up and stretch our legs. Likewise, when we have been bending the muscles of our minds to solve our personal problems, it is good to stretch o u r minds up toward God. As you are reading this, I hope you will not relax and settle back, but relax and straighten up.

When the Russians launched the first sputnik last fall, a wise commentator said we had allowed the Russians to get ahead of us in space travel because we had been so beastily concerned with o u r standard of living. We have prided ourselves on having the highest standard of living in the world. But what do we mean by that statement? Do we not mean that we have the most luxurious homes, the longest cars, the most comforts and gadgets?

These are good, but they are not good enough to make us a great people, worthy of our heritage. We must be less concerned with consumer goods and give more attention to the public good.

Our godly ancestors through our churches, alcohols and homes have bequeathed to us a standard of living, based on values rather than conveniences. Let's live up to it and not merely live it up.

This is something to think about as our children go back to school.

A Lift for Living

Living up to Our Heritage

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Recently a friend was talking to me about some mutual acquaintances, a husband and wife. He said, "They are certainly living it up." They have a good income and they are spending it for comforts and pleasures without concern for the future. They are bent on having a good time.

To live up all that we make without effort to save is foolishly extravagant. But to live up what others have saved is worse than foolish. I think of a man whose first wife, industrious and thrifty, helped him to amass a sizable fortune. Now his second wife is helping him to spend it on cars, cruises and carousing. There is something seemingly unfair in such a situation, isn't there?

We of the United States and Canada enjoy a rich heritage because our forerunners had a concern for the future.

While our forefathers were not a "chosen people" in the sense of receiving special providence, they were a choosing people. Our parents did not have to look after our mental and bodily care beyond what the law required, but they chose to care for us through sleepless nights and anxious days.

INHERITED BLESSINGS

Our Pilgrim Fathers did not have to leave Holland with its comparative comforts. But largely for the sake of their children, they chose to risk the hardships of the Atlantic and the New World. Our colonial ancestors were not forced to give us free churches and free schools, b u t they chose to do so. Yes, we have inherited blessings through those who might have lived solely for themselves, but who chose to live for their posterity as well.

During the presidency of Mark Hopkins at Williams College, some buildings were defaced. When the culprit was caught he proved to be the son of a wealthy supporter of the school. Called before the president, he pulled out his purse and said jauntily, "Well, Doctor, what's the damage?" President Hopkins replied sternly, "Young man, put up your pocketbook. Tomorrow at prayers you will make public acknowledgment of your offense, or you will be expelled."

Speaking later of the incident, Mark Hopkins said: "Rich young men come here and take that tone as if they could pay for what they get here. No student can pay for what he gets in Williams College. Can any student pay for the sacrifices of Colonel Williams and our other benefactors? For t h e heroic sacrifices of half-paid professors who have given their livest that young men might have, as the smallest cost, a liberal education. Every man is a charity student."

We are heirs of God through the bounties of creation and the purposeful choices of sacrificing ancestors. But more. The God who gave us this inheritance has also been trying to save us for some

Film Lovelies Sacking Sack In New Look

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The sacking of the sack and the demise of the chemise are good news in the film capital.

Movie lovelies sighed with relief when it became clear that the sack look is being outmoded this fall by Paris' new empire look.

Hollywood husbands also applauded the change except for some moaning about economy expense.

In case you haven't heard, the empire line offers this change: waistline up, neckline down.

Mitzi Gaynor, who claims she never succumbed to the sack, was probably the biggest booster for empire. Said Mitzi:

"I fell in love with it when I was in Europe, and I have been wearing it several months now. The new neckline and short skirt reveal, well, whatever there is to reveal. Yet the unpinched waistline provides just the right element of mystery to hold interest." NOT SURE WHY

Ann Solhern, long-time advocate of snappy fashion, commented:

"I'll be happy to see the change, but I haven't decided yet whether it's because I actually like the empire look or because I loathed the sack look."

Vera Miles wasn't too sure. "A new fashion, she said, "always brings forth from me a solemn vow that I'll never be caught wearing it. A month later I'm on the bandwagon. Today I'm certain I'll never be seen in a dress with the current unflattering high waist line. But tomorrow I may happily be wearing one."

Mamie appeared both cheered and amused. Sample expressions:

Jack Carson—"For the first time, I wish I were an empire builder instead of an actor."

Walter Slezak—"At my age and weight, who cares!"

SECRET POETESS

The unmasking of Emily Dickinson, famous American poetess, were not discovered until after her death in 1874.

Weddings

DIMNIE — JOHNSTONE

A lovely, double-ring, summer wedding was recently solemnized in St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg, Ontario, before an effective background of fern, red rosebuds by the Reverend W. Perkins, of Port Hope, when Joan Veronica Johnstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Johnstone, of Cobourg, became the bride of Lt. (E) William Dimnie, of Carrying Place, R.R.1, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dimnie. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

During the signing of the register, Miss Marmer, church organist and choir leader, rendered the beautiful selection, "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride was lovely in her waltz-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her shoulder-length veil of nylon and lace was held by tiara of pearls and lace and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Malcolm Wambold, as matron of honor, was gowned in waltz-length pink net over taffeta with matching accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Malcolm Wambold attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Steven Labosky and Hugh McColl were ushers.

A reception for sixty guests was held at the bride's home where the bride's mother, wearing a blue flowered nylon gown with white accessories and corsage of white carnations, received. She was assisted by Mrs. Wambold attendant, who was gowned in turquoise-blue silk with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

For travelling, the bride chose a blue Chinese silk sheath with white hat, gloves, and shoes and corsage of red roses.

The couple are resident from Tweed, Hamilton; Belleville; Newcastle and Carrying Place.

The happy couple will reside in Cobourg.

BEATTY — BUGERA

One of the loveliest summer weddings was solemnized recently at First United Church, Timmins, Ontario, when Elizabeth Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bugera, of Schumacher, Ontario became the bride of William Smith Beatty, son of Mr. Thomas N. Beatty of Tweed and the late Mrs. Beatty.

The church, decorated with vases of white 'mums, made a pretty setting for the double-ring ceremony performed by the Reverend A. P. Addison.

Soloist, Mr. Gordon Leonard, sang, "O Perfect Love", prior to the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register, accompanied by Mr. Ted Jewell at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in an original creation by Helene of London. The ballerina-length gown was fashioned of peau-de-soie, and imported Alencon lace. The scoop neckline was scalloped and embroidered with mother-of-pearl sequins. The empire waistline was accented by a cummerbund which ended in a small bow at the back. Her headdress was a cluster of white flowers, each centred with a pearl, from which her fingertip tulle illusion veil fell in soft folds. She carried a bouquet composed of a purple throated orchid and stephanotis.

As matron of honor, Mrs. D. S. Leishman, sister of the bride, wore a ballerina-length gown of champagne lace over taffeta. The short-sleeved, fitted bodice, tapering to a point in front, was accented by a band of taffeta forming a bustle back. She wore a matching picture hat of taffeta and carried a cascade of cream and puff roses.

Mrs. Elio Rosa was the bridesmaid and wore an identical gown to that of the matron of honor in turquoise with matching turquoise picture hat. She carried a cascade of pink and cerise rosebuds.

The best man was John Beatty, of Hamilton, brother of the bridegroom, with John Elkins, of Lindsay, as groomsman. Ushers were, John Yowell of North Bay, and Robert Robertson, of Noranda, Quebec, nephew of the bride.

For the reception in the Rainbow Room of the Goldfield's Hotel, the bride's mother received in a afternoon suit of the silk print with a beige hat and accesories. Her corsage was of deep-pink roses. For travelling on a motor trip to Calgary and the Rockies, the bride chose a chic champagne beige suit with picture hat to match and cocoa-brown accessories. Her corsage was a spray of rust baby orchids.

Out-of-town guests included friends and relatives from Tweed, Lindsay, Dauphin, Manitoba, Hamilton, Toronto, Brampton, Orillia, North Bay, Virginiatown, Vinetand, Transcona, Manitoba, and Noranda, Quebec.

Theatre Groups Will Hold Weekend Clinic

Invitations have been sent to members of theatre groups in Eastern Ontario to attend a weekend theatre conference and directors' clinic at Queen's University on September 13 and 14. This conference will be conducted by the Department of Drama at Queen's with the cooperation of the Department of extension and the community programs branch of the Ontario Department of Education.

Its theme is "Improvement Through Practical Knowledge."

So far, 20 recognized experts in the area have accepted invitations to be members of panels, and another half-dozen acceptances are expected.

Some of the present panel members are Harry Chetney of Peterborough; Barbara and Michael Meiklejohn, Douglas Hariott and Roy Hayden-Hinsley of Ottawa; Mrs. J. P. Hemlger of Smiths Falls; and Deirdre Warren, Gordon Robertson and Dr. Hugh Angus of Kingston. Their discussions will feature materials from the basic practical aspects of play production: analysis, direction, acting, lighting, setting and rehearsal techniques.

A special section on organization of drama groups, leadership, and area development will be headed by G. H. Miller, Donald Maddocks, and L. P. Poirier of the community programs branch.

Dinner on Saturday evening will be followed by the performance of two short plays, "The Great Healer" by the Belleville Little Theatre, and a new Canadian play by the Ottawa Little Theatre Workshop. They will be adjudicated and then discussed generally from the floor.

This conference is open to all members of producing groups in Eastern Ontario," explained Dr. Angus, head of the Drama Department at Queen's, "and to all who are interested in more and, especially, better drama in this area.

"We hope that as many delegates as possible from each group will attend so as to benefit by the series of simultaneous sectional meetings," he added. Accommodation and replacements so far is very gratifying. People are responding to the idea that quality is the means of gaining greater appreciation, enjoyment and support for this activity."

Mother's Helper

GROWING is pretty important to your suppers' and they'll like a family height chart for reference. Choose a door molding you don't mind having "decorated." Mark the height of each member of the family, with a date on which to print name and date. Every six months or so, repeat the process. You might use a "measuring" tape and print on the "leaves."

No Stranger To Distant Parts Of World

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Carlos Neville Smith, the new president-physician at the Freeport Sanatorium near here, is no stranger to distant parts of the world.

Born in India 35 years ago, daughter of a British Army officer, she was educated in England, where she worked in hospitals for several years. She came to Canada in 1942 and for a time worked at the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Then she went to a medical centre on the Labrador coast, working from a mission hospital and covering by airplane, boat or dog-team territory extending along the Belle Isle Strait.

Later she spent two years at the Mountain Sanatorium in Hamilton, took a public health course at the University of Toronto and became assistant medical officer of health at Cornwall, Ont.

From there she went to Korea, where with a medical staff of seven she ran a children's clinic treating 150 to 20 children every day.

Going Places

Readers Take Belt at Writers No Matter What the Subject

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

By way of mourning the untimely end of the late, happy summer travel season, we'll appoint this our first annual Day for Readers to Disagree.

Be our observation a few months ago that, since the ban on public places on the road bother parents more than straying cars.

"Stop kidding yourselves. We smile indulgently and mutter some cliche, but what are we thinking? Unprintable! If we swatted the little monsters you'd sue. Most dogs are better behaved, so why not suggest that children be sent to an obedience school or kept on a leash? We do not think they are cute." — A. K., St. Louis, Mo.

Miss A. K., we presume.

We suggested once that a way to reduce travelling expenses it might be a little bargaining over motel room rates if they seem too high. Ask if P. Higbee is a motel man in Wichita, Kan.:

"Why go ahead a motel man be expected to cut his prices for rooms any more than the filling station man drops his gas?

"If you invested $100,000 in a motel, as your rates are now you could make a reasonable return on your investment, how would you like a lot of travellers coming in and trying to get you to cut your rates?

"If you go to buy a suit of clothes priced at $75, you don't offer to pay $50. Why do you encourage this kind of business practice?

A similar theme is expressed by David R. Argue, executive secretary of the Florida Hotel Association:

"In order to exist and offer the best, the operator of a hotel or motel must get enough to cover his high operating costs plus a better than average profit. It is from him through the seasons. Cutting rates to suit the whims of visitors will lead to poorer accommodations.

"For those unable to pay high summer rates, there are plenty of reasonable accommodations available in the off-season."

Unfortunately, in many resort areas some operators boost their rates in anticipation of travellers' bargaining. It's almost standard practice in parts of Florida.

Others simply and unscrupulously try to charge what the traffic will bear, changing their rates with current conditions and without regard for either the guest's pocketbook or what the rooms are actually worth. It is only against such advantage-taking that our listings and arrows are aimed.

A professional driver, M. R. G., of Springdale, Ark., takes issue with our suggestion that using directional signals for passing or changing lanes is an improper use of the device because it might be misinterpreted, may not be visible enough at night or quarters, and may not be turned off after the switch.

We were taught in driving school to use our signals when changing lanes. The driver must be sure many states require this. The signal lights are useful indicators, but that's because the guy behind the wheel is not driving, he is just there."

About our repeated cautioning not to camp in other than authorized sites because it is unsafe, unhealthful, and uncomfortable, P. C. B. of Columbus, Ohio, says:

"It's plain to see you've never heard of Idaho. I've spent a month vacation camping there in each of the last two years and it's just what your readers are looking for."

What! No bugs, bears or burglars in Idaho?

Women's Activities

MOIRA W. I.

The Moira W.I. was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Malcom Welsh with an attendance of 13 members, three visitors, six children and five men. President D. Hobbert opened the meeting.

Mrs. Elmer Thompson was pianist.

The secretary, Miss G. Thompson, dealt with the correspondence and read a letter from Chapman W. I. inviting Moira W. I. to a meeting at Tweed to be held September 11.

Three birthday fees were paid.

The meeting was turned over to the convener, Mrs. W. Collins, who prepared the following program on C.I.; a reading by Mrs. Earl Thompson; Mrs. John Farrell gave a talk on "Irish Industry at the B.C. Coast"; Mrs. Don Hobbert rendered a solo, "Bless This House," with Mrs. Elmer Thompson at the piano.

The topic was given by Mrs. G. Thompson on Canadian Industries, she had visited on a tour in the western provinces.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Child of Twelve Accepted at Ballet School

EDMONTON (CP) — Susan Davies at 12 years of age is believed the youngest Canadian ever accepted by the Royal Ballet School in Surrey, England.

She began ballet lessons under Edith Heavener of Edmonton when she was three. At nine, she had passed grade five ballet.

Touring examiners from the Royal Academy suggested she go to Vancouver last December for the Royal Ballet audition.

"I auditioned for the ballet mistress just before the last performance of the company," recalled Susan in an interview prior to leaving for England.

She flew as far as Montreal with her mother, then took a plane alone for Richmond Park and the school.

Since skating and ballet don't mix, Susan has never used the fancy skates bought for her last winter. Skating develops muscles that interfere with dancing.

"It wasn't so bad," says Susan. "I just love to dance and would rather do it than anything else."

Bertram G. — My fiance and I are 26 and 23 years old, respectively. We have been engaged two years. We were to have been married a year ago, but certain family problems interfered, and now it looks as though we'll have to wait another year.

We are sure of one another and of our love for each other — at least I was sure. Now I'm beginning to wonder. I feel Marilyn ought to be willing to have a sexual relations before our marriage. We are moral individuals, but not religious. We are not teenagers, but a mature man and woman.

I feel Marilyn's refusal shows lack of trust in me and therefore, lack of love in our relationship.

Marilyn R. — In theory I think Bertram is right. I know-I have often taken that side of the argument when discussing these things with my girl friends.

But when it comes down to action, I find I can't do it. Maybe I'm afraid of sex or something. I don't really know. When I think of having to lie to my family about my whereabouts and what I'm doing, I get a sickish feeling. Bertram says this is just a hangover from childhood — the fear of doing anything that displeases your parents. I realize it's childish, but I can't help it.

I am looking to have an awful sense of having failed an important test of our love, but I just can't see my way out of this.

The Council: Bertram has imposed a very unfair "test of love" and Marilyn is wrong to feel herself a failure in the face of it. As a matter of fact, it is he who is failing the test of love by his refusal to fully appreciate her point of view.

It is true that Marilyn's reasons for her refusal are based to some extent on fear and a childish "hangover" rather than mature understanding. This, however, cannot be helped. Marilyn, fortunately, has had no bitter or unsatisfactory experience of sex under improper circumstances, and she has no strong intellectual appreciation for the values that have been handed down to her through religion.

But Marilyn's weak, diluted arguments have some validity. Even in 1958 it seems to be more aggressive in sexual matters, have their guilts and childish fears about improper circumstances, that few men or women in our society, even those for whom marriage than Bertram and Marilyn, can freely engage in sexual activity outside of marriage without some sense of guilt, shame and degradation. Marilyn is right to want to avoid this unhappiness.

The fact is that when human beings in our society indulge in sexual intercourse without marriage, they fall readily into a pattern of using one another. When they completely accept one another, they wish to fully commit themselves. They need the framework of marriage as a symbol of their total commitment.

If Bertram and Marilyn m u st wait another year before t h e i r wedding, they could employ this period better by getting a deeper understanding of marriage through books and consultation with a clergyman.

St. Giles, The Cripples' Saint

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, August 31 — "Responsibilities in Daily Work" is the theme of this year's Labor Sunday proclamation by the National Council of Churches. Requested to be used in all member churches today, the statement refers n o t only to the responsibility of workers themselves but also to that of management and of the churches.

The worker is "not merely to give a fair day's work to his employer but to work with a sense of vocation and responsibility to God for work well done."

Employers and all Christian people have a duty to protect our economy against unemployment, Christians must "bring all economic life under critical analysis and creative transformation in the light of the Gospel."

This emphasis on the religious aspects of Labor Day is a fairly new thing among the churches. It is sponsored annually by the National Council's Department of Churches and Economic Life.

One perennial problem is t h a t church attendance on the Labor Day weekend reaches just about its lowest point for the year, and not many people are in the churches to hear the proclamation. In many churches, therefore, t h e reading is postponed until next Sunday.

CRIPPLES' SAINT

Monday, September 1 — St. Giles, abbot of a monastery near the mouth of the Rhone, went to Rome to see the Pope on behalf of his monks. The Pope, much impressed with the saintly man, not only granted his requests but also made him a present of two cedarwood doors for the monastery. To anyone else the matter of getting two huge doors back to France might have been a problem — but not to Giles. He simply tossed them into the Tiber and they floated down the river, across the Tyrrhenia Sea a n d part of the Mediterranean, and up into the Rhone. They were waiting for him when he reached the monastery.

Such a report is at least a little doubtful, but sp is all the other information we have about St. Giles. Not even his dates are known. It is thought that he was born in Athens sometime around 640.

He is the patron saint of Edinburgh, a strange position for a Greek who had never even been there. He is also patron of lunkers, cripples and beggars.

Tinkers in medieval times were men who went about the country mending pans and kettles. It was not necessary to travel to be a tinker, but most of them did. Why Giles should have been their patron is no longer known.

Beggars and cripples invoked him because he was himself a cripple. He was not a beggar, but many cripples had to beg for a living and it is easy to see why the same saint would be patron of both.

Giles' infirmity could have been avoided. The story is that he was accidentally shot in the knee by an arrow from the hand of a bowman. When the king tried to provide medical attention Giles positively refused it, on the ground that a lame leg would help him to be holier.

St. Giles is one of the "Fourteen Holy Helpers," a group of saints considered to have special powers of intercession for people in various kinds of predicament. For many years he was one of Europe's most popular saints. At one time England alone had 160 churches dedicated to St. Giles.

The most peculiar characteristic of churches named for St. Giles was that they were usually outside the city wall. This was because of their special association with beggars and cripples, who were never allowed to come inside the walls.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

WHAT ARE THE DUTIES OF THE BEST MAN?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

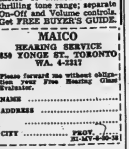
What are the duties of the best man? What is expected of him as to entertaining for the groom-to-be? — Reader

The best man is the "right-hand man" to the prospective groom, and on the wedding day he h a s more responsibility than any other member of the wedding party. He goes to the groom's house in good time to help him dress for t h e wedding. He takes charge of the marriage license. He carries the wedding ring in his pocket (sometimes the two rings, although the maid of honor may take charge of the groom's ring when there is to be a double-ring ceremony). The groom gives him the contribution to the clergyman . . . this enclosed in a plain white envelope . . . and after the ceremony he gives this envelope to the clergyman. Important responsibilities, these.

He arranges about the attire for the attendants as prescribed by present to the bride-to-be. If there is to be a bachelor dinner, t h e groom may ask his help about arranging for this, but the groom pays the expenses of this dinner.

At the reception he doesn't stand in the receiving-line, but mingles with the guests, making introductions. He makes it clear to a bridal table, he sits at the bride's right, and (usually) proposes the first toast to the bride or to the bride and groom. He is one of the two witnesses to sign the marriage certificate.

As to entertaining, the best man has no special responsibility. Actually his two financial responsibilities are: (1) to provide his attire for the wedding; and (2) to send a wedding gift to the bride.



ATTIRE FOR MEN IN EVENING CHURCH WEDDING PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to be in the evening (8 o'clock) in church, the first week in October. I am to wear a simple white wedding dress, trainless, and a quite short bridal veil. My fiance thinks that he and his attendants should wear formal evening attire (tails, white ties), but some of his friends are trying to persuade him to wear a tuxedo and to have his attendants wear tuxedos. What is your viewpoint about this — R. T.

Your fiance is right . . . and it is his right, too to make the decision about what type of attire he wishes the men in the wedding party to wear. At an evening wedding of any formality, it is best form for the men in the wedding party to wear formal evening attire. And even though your dress is to be simple design and trailless, you are wearing a dress and veil of some formality, and so evening attire for the men is entirely appropriate. I'd vote against tuxedos, which never have much style for an evening church wedding.

It is a real Old Country Dish and Mother's Favorite (courtesy Mrs. Kathleen M.) 1 lb. lean minced beef, ½ cup chopped onion, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, ½ cup tomato juice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 cup each milk and flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon seasonings (not a must but gives added flavor). Mix meat, salt, seasoning and tomato juice together. Put in greased pan. Cover with onions and melted butter. Bake in hot oven 10 minutes. Beat eggs and milk together and add flour and pinch of salt. Beat good (can be done in mixer). Pour this batter over hot meat and bake in 400 oven until batter is cooked about 30 minutes. Mrs. Kathleen M.

Fee Fishing Lakes and Ponds

Last July there came from the Pennsylvania Fish Commission a listing of the ponds and lakes in that state which had been licensed and for fee fishing. To my surprise, 58 licences had been issued. It is quite evident that the idea of fee fishing has taken root every bit as solidly as that of fee shooting on the regulated shooting grounds or game farms.

About 30 years ago, I visited a fee-fishing pond in New Jersey. The pond, a rather small one, was stocked quite heavily w i t h trout, fresh from the hatchery. Catching them was pitifully easy. You simply cast out a streamer fly, hauled in what you wanted to take home, paid the man two dollars a pound and departed with a mess of fish that were not fit to eat. I was not impressed.

But with the arrival of the last-of-the-line ponds, my curiosity was aroused. I knew that there was one of these places not on the Warrensville Road, not ten minutes from my home — Kehler's Fee-Fishing Pond — so I drove out to see what the place was like. Believe me, I was due for a big surprise.

Mr. Clifford Kehler, the owner, was there and he was kind enough to answer questions and show me around the place.

Kehler's pond is, of course, an artificial one, but it covers four and one-half acres of land. There is a spot well, slightly higher than flood water level, extending around the dam and to walk the perimeter of the pond means to travel slightly more than half a mile. The pond is spring-fed with a more-than-ample flow and it varies in depth to as much as eighteen feet at its deepest part.

VARIETY OF FISH

It is stocked variously, and I mean just that. In its ample expanses swim brook, brown and rainbow trout, largemouth a n d smallmouth bass, great northern pike, walleyed pike, white bass, channel catfish, rock bass, Michigan crappie and bluegill. Dozens and dozens of bluegill. These prolific little fellows present somewhat of a problem.

Naturally, I was curious to know how these various varieties managed to live peacefully together in a four-and-a-half-acre pond. Mr. Kehler assured me that you to investigate.

they seemed to get along quite well together. He continued to feed them, as he seems to be content to feed on the regular fish food that he gives. He gives the matter of helping to keep under control the increasing supply of bluegill. Fishing rates are nominal. You check in at the office and pay one dollar plus tax for the right to fish. Then you can fish to your heart's content for as long as you wish. The type of fishing you do is up to you. Catch all you please, keep what you want and release the rest. When you check out, you pay $1.50 per pound for trout and $.75 per pound for all other varieties. Bluegill you can have f o r free; no charges on these.

Mr. Kehler feeds his fish with pellets of prepared food, a combination of cereal and meat that gives the fish the balanced diet they need. This food has two interesting qualities. When first placed in the water, it floats, thereby keeping the fish in the habit of feeding at the surface; after a few weeks of this feeding, the flavor of the fish is improved, even more than that of fish which live altogether on natural food.

CHILDREN LOVE IT

In view of the fact that there are too many bluegill in the pond, it makes a wonderful place to take the children. Kids and bluegill seem to go together like ham and eggs and, the youngsters can catch all the bluegill they want at no extra charge.

For those who can't get away in the daytime, a battery of flood lights has been installed along the shore so that fishing after dark can be done in comfort and safety.

The number of fish in the pond is limited, according to season, from 3,000 to 5,000. Rarely is there lack of fish to keep you busy. You may cast from the path along shore or sit comfortably on one of the docks. In short, no matter of fishing you like, from dry-fly to bait fishing, is there for you to enjoy.

At the present time, an additional pond for fly fishing only is being constructed and this will be stocked with king-size trout that will give the fly fisherman all the argument he can handle on light tackle.

Fly and large, the whole set-up was a revelation. By this time, you may have gathered that my opinions of fee-fishing ponds have undergone considerable revision. Admittedly, it is artificial, but it is entertaining and the artificiality has been reduced to the absolute minimum. If you haven't tried the fee-fishing ponds, it might pay

Bert's certainly determined to stamp out speeding . . .

The Week's News

By AL COLLETTE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Mao Tse-tung again is pressing his reluctant campaign with every means short of full-scale war to carve out a place in the sun for Communist China.

Mao has been thwarted time and again in the world councils by the fact two hostile Chinese governments exist, each claiming full sovereignty over all China including Formosa and the Millions of Chinese overseas.

The division of recognition between Mao in Peiping and Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa is Asia's biggest unsolved problem. Many Asians and some Westerners, in the main the neutrals, shudder over it, for they feel it holds the seeds of a general Asian war.

A "pocket" war has gone on for years between the Communists on the China mainland and the Nationalists who occupy the small groups of islands known as the Quemoys and Matsus a few miles from the mainland. Both island groups block big Communist seaports. Also from these islands the Nationalists are able to launch their balloon barrages, bombarding the mainland with propaganda.

BIG NEW CHALLENGE

This week the pocket war turned for a boiling point. The Communists began a big new challenge to Nationalist air supremacy with the latest Russian MiG-17 jets, flying from newly-built airfields in forward areas of the southeast China coast.

The Quemoys were strafed for the first time. Nationalist jets were engaged with some reported shot down. The Reds also shelled the islands for a solid week.

Peiping said it would invade the Quemoys soon and called on their 50,000 defenders to surrender. Such ultimatums have been repeated often in the past, but the use of airpower and assembling of an invasion force were new.

The United States, pledged by treaty to defend Formosa with its might, has bolstered its 7th Fleet in the Formosa Straits and warned Peiping to keep hands off the offshore islands as well as Formosa.

Peiping said no matter what happens, it would not get involved. The Canadian government has no commitment to involve itself in the dispute over this territory." External Affairs Minister Smith told the House of Commons. But he reserved "grave concern" may ensue if Peiping resorts to force to settle the dispute.

LONG ROAD AHEAD

"Some day they gonna shoot that Negro," said a young New York Negro office worker on her way home after grabbing at a headline on 42nd St. Rock, Thousands like her have flocked in from the U.S. cities and rather than fight segregation in the South.

For Governor Orval Faubus of Arkansas, newly-elected to a third term by a resounding majority, there was no letup in his fight to keep Negroes out of Little Rock Central High School and other state schools if necessary.

He asked for and got the state legislature to pass laws allowing him to withhold voter approval — to close down any state school that integrates by force. But Faubus didn't sign the bills, obviously to avoid court action. He has until Jan. 15 to do so.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Supreme Court delayed for four weeks a ruling on whether to uphold or reject a lower court order postponing the start of integration until 1961.

President Eisenhower said he favors a slower approach to integration in public s c h o o l s. A spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People called Eisenhower's remarks "incredible."

The president said he would not comment on a magazine story that he told friends privately that the Supreme Court has never handed down its decision in 1954 banning segregation in public schools.

COLOR WORRIES BRITONS

Britons were disturbed after the Notting Hill race riots when their a color bar is creeping into their society. Many were jailed when 200 Negroes and whites clashed in a working district of Nottingham, battling for 90 minutes with knives, axes, sticks and fists. There have been other incidents involving both races in other cities.

Since the war some 100,000 West Indian Negroes and 90,000 other colored people have migrated to Britain. Jobs are scarce and housing poor for many of them.

British papers warned of the serious issue. Said the Sunday Daily Telegraph: "The plain truth must be faced that white culture is little evident among the British people where jobs are concerned it still persists in a strongly emotional form wherever it involves sex and family life."

RACIST PREMIER DIES

Johannes Strijdom, pronounced "straidom," the white supremist prime minister of South Africa since 1954, died of a heart ailment at the age of 65. One of the founders of South Africa's apartheid — separate policy of segregating whites and blacks, Strijdom put his Nationalist party in an unprecedented control of the country. His successor is expected to be another arch-conservationalist, Charles R. Swart, 63-year-old former governor-minister.

AIRLINER TRAGEDY

Two Canadian jet fighters coming in for a landing at the big RCAF base at Grostenquin, France, collided at 1,500 feet. The blazing wreckage of one of the craft plunged into the station hospital, badly damaging the building. Five persons were killed—three airmen and two persons in the hospital.

THE 49TH STATE

Alaskans, by a margin of 5 to 1, accepted statehood, giving the U.S. its largest state and the first addition in 48 years. Now only the formality of a presidential proclamation — probably in late December — is needed to add Alaska's star to the American flag. It will be the first new one since Arizona and New Mexico were admitted in 1912.

BIRTH CONTROL APPROVED

More than 300 bishops representing 40,000,000 Anglicans with on record as approving birth control as a "right and important factor in Christian life" providing the practice is not motivated by "selfishness and covetousness."

Approval came in the official report of the Lambeth conference of Anglican churches. The committee on family relations said birth control must rest on religious basis with emphasis on the Christian aspect of marriage and that it should be "mutually acceptable to husband and wife in Christian conscience."

No general counsel can be given on such matters, the committee said. "The choice must be made by parents together, in prayerful consideration of their resources, the society in which they live in and the problems they face."

"A bold, brace document," said the Daily Express. "It looks at the facts of life and offers real guidance."

WORLD TOUR

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced he will make a world air tour after his trip to Canada's far north country in September. He is expected to be gone for five weeks, returning in December. He will visit Commonwealth countries but will not have time to stop in Africa which he hopes to visit at a later date.

TV NOTEBOOK

by John Wetlaufer

Although TV is generally thought to be constantly on the search for new faces and personalities, it is interesting to note that it is the TV medium that is staging the comeback of a great comedy name of yesteryear — Ed. Wynn.

The "Ed Wynn Show" which will take to the air next month will mark the 50th year of show business for the grand old comic with the long, solemn face who stands ready to break ground on a new career in drama.

Gone will be the gags, the funny hats and the other gimmicks associated with the Perfect Fool. Instead, at 71, TV viewers will be treated to a new Ed Wynn with far more formidable characterizations in dramatic efforts on TV, has proven that he can handle the translation.

By the way, CIRCLE TV SERVICE can handle any TV trouble that may come along. Our work is fast (but not careless) and of the finest quality (at reasonable economical). TRY CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 568 Coleman St., for better work — always. Phone WO 8-6791; in Trenton phone Zenith 6-3800.

Irving Kaye Gave Lewis His Start in Show Business

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Irving Kaye read the other day that Jerry Lewis grossed $7,000,000 in one year from television, movies, night clubs and records.

"Well," commented Kaye, "that's $700,000 I lost this year."

And he's right.

Irving has been with Jerry all the comedian's show - business life — 18 years. In fact, Irving was entertainment director at a New York state resort when a gangling busboy pleaded for a chance to entertain the guests.

From the Catskills, Irving took Jerry on the road with him.

"I remember one night in Buffalo," recalls Irving. "We were sitting in a $2.50-a-night hotel room. I think he earned $60 a week at best.

JUST A KID

"He was just a kid but he was grateful for the chance I gave him. He said then, 'Irving, some day I'm going to be a big star in the big money.'

"I told him he'd have to change his act . . . he agreed and said he wanted to show his gratitude. He wrote on a piece of paper and handed it to me."

The paper read: "I promise to pay Irving Kaye 10 per cent of my income when I become a big star. (signed) Jerry Lewis."

Kaye kept the paper a little while and then tore it up.

But Irving doesn't have to worry. Jerry has taken care of him for life with a job and an annuity. He's now of the comedian's television assistants.

It's a hilarious relationship. Once in New York, the two took a taxi for a short trip. Irving paid the fare and asked Jerry how much he should tip.

Jerry kiddingly said $30 and walked away. A few weeks later, Irving put in an expense account: Cab fare 75 cents, tip $30. Kaye had given the big tip.

"How did I know you were only kidding?" he argued. "I just thought you were a big tipper."

Once the two were travelling by train through Pennsylvania en route to Montreal, Irving was sound asleep, Jerry awake.

The train stopped in Altoona. Jerry walked by Irving's berth and yelled: "Montreal, Montreal."

Irving dressed in a matter of seconds and got off the train. He stood there forlornly watching as the train pulled away from the station. Later he wired Jerry in Montreal:

"So, where's the humor?"

Whitey Ford, Yankees' Ace Lefty, Flunks Arm Test

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

HOLIDAY TWIN-BILL

There's plenty of activity on the sports agenda this holiday weekend but two of the main features will take place Monday afternoon, both at CNRA Park.

Softball, playdown variety, will get the show on the road at two o'clock when Belleville Bobcats travel to Peterborough Queen's Hoist in the deciding game of their OASA zone four championship series.

Bobcats should be zone champs at the present time but they threw the first game of the series away having it all wrapped up. But they made no mistakes in the second encounter, winning it 5-1 behind Bobby Green's near-perfect pitching.

The speedy southpaw gave up only an infield single, striking out 10, in his top performance in years. He will toe the rubber again Monday afternoon and the entire squad is confident he will stop the visitors cold once more. Should he run into trouble, Lum Carson will be ready for relief duty.

Bob Temple is already talking of the Toronto series but Peterborough is far from dead. The Lit-Lock crew proved they were opportunists in the opener here and Bobcats may have a tough battle on their hands before it's over.

A large crowd is expected to attend this game and the wise ones will remain in their seats following the final out.

Following the Bobcat fixture there will be a top-notch baseball game between Marlbank and our Belleville Juniors. Marlbank is the champ of the OBA Junior "A" quarter-finals, the first game being played in Marlbank this afternoon. Monday's game is scheduled for 4:15.

Chuck Kingston, who got the boys together here despite the fact they had no league to play in and no sponsor, has assembled the best hunters of the city and hopes to bring Belleville another title.

The road will be tough and nothing will be more appreciated by the boys than a little financial support. They are not charging admission but will welcome a silver collection.

So how about it fans. Catch the softball tilt at two and head straight around after for the baseball fixture. We can't think of a better afternoon of sport.

OTHER ACTION

Taking a brief rundown of the district's other games we find just about every team seeing action before we return to the work-a-day world Tuesday morning.

Point Anne takes on Peterborough Watercraft in their second game this evening in the Peter Perry Bowl. Waterers from Peterborough by this time must be wondering what kind of pitcher the Belleville teams breed. Following Greene's one-hitter for Bobcats, Pat Maynard turned the same trick for his Cementmen. So far faced only two batters over the 27 minimum, not walking a man while striking out 11. The Cementmen hope to wrap that set up tonight with all evidence getting the starting assignment. Watercraft has other ideas.

Meanwhile over in Frankford the Merchants open the second round of their OASA intermediate "C" playdowns this evening at 8:15. The Norwood club will supply the opposition. Second game is slated at Norwood on Wednesday. Frankford ousted Sydenham in two consecutive games in the first round but may find Norwood a bit tougher. Bobby Hastings will be the rubber for the Rankin-backed Merchants.

* * *

Belleville powwows have two and maybe three games on tap in their OBA title hunt. They play host to Port Colborne at CNRA Park this afternoon at 2:30 and repeat Port Colborne for a two o'clock game Monday. If a third game is necessary it, too, will be played Monday as part of a double-header. Bring back the bacon boys.

* * *

The bantams will meet Whitby in the first game of their OBA series on Monday afternoon, that one being played in Whitby. Second game will be back here a week form today.

* * *

Booth Radio-TV's are batting this afternoon to climb back into contention in OASA junior baseball playdowns. They meet Oshawa at CNRA Park at 3:30 today and must win or bow out for the season. This is the first meat win or bow out for the season. This is the first meat win or bow out for the club after winning the year in bantam play for the club. Coach Lou Calhaus feels his boys are capable of coming back with a win today. If they do, watch out in the third one, the teams are evenly matched.

* * *

Over in "Little Spain" too, baseball is the by-word, this weekend. Chris Lockyer's Intermediate "A" crowd from Brampton at home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and travel to the Halton County winners' field for the second game Monday. This is OBA Intermediate quarter-finals. The winner of this series will meet either St. Thomas or Stayner in the semi-final and that winner will clash with a team from Western Counties Baseball Association in the titular series.

That pretty well covers the works. One thing is sure, there will be a lot of goals and a lot of heroes before this Labor Day is over.

* * *

We hang the bat back in the rack for a while now. Sports Editor George Carver will be back in his usual cleanup spot on Tuesday morning.

Casey Stengel Worried Hurler Will Be Out for World Series; Bob Friend Wins 18th Game

By KD WILKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I'm worried," says Casey Stengel, and that's not quite as Perspotorous as it sounds.

He reportedly has another two-year contract wailing for him as manager of the New York Yankees at $80,000 a year. And he has a seven) 10½-game lead en-route to his ninth American League pennant.

But, at the moment, he doesn't have Whitey Ford.

The Yankees' stubby southpaw ace (14-7) is on the shelf with a sore arm. Ford won't be missed much in what's left of the regular season, but his absence could be a real blow in the world series.

Unable to throw a curve without pain since a hurried warm-up in Detroit, Whitey gave his arm a test Friday night at Washington and if flunked. He faced only two men, got them out, then quit. The Senators made off with a 3-0 victory behind the six-hit pitching of Pete Ramos.

Chicago's second-place White Sox picked up two more as Dick Donovan blanked Detroit 3-0 on four hits. Tommy John Boston whipped Baltimore 7-2. Kansas City virtually tied Cleveland for sixth by trouncing Indians 8-2.

LIKE IN SPRINGTIME

Ford, winless in two decisions and unable to pitch any of four starts since his bullpen blunder, finds his arm trouble is "the same thing I usually get in spring training. I think if I get a rest for about a week it will be all right."

Ford is a five-day rest before starting Friday night, but when he went to the curve he felt all the pain in the muscle above his elbow.

Stengel brought Murry Dickson on in relief. The little veteran, making his debut as a Yankee after last week's purchase from Kansas City, gave up only four hits in his 1 1-3 innings—but three of them came in the fifth inning, when the Nats scored twice.

RENOVATE STILL HOT

Donovan, who has won eight of 10 since the all - star game, walked one, struck out six for an 11-63 record. Loser Herb Moford (3-7) allowed five hits. He yielded a run in the first but the Sox had only two hits until the seventh, when they scored a pair. Billy Hoeft and George Susce shut them out the rest of the way.

The Red Sox defeated Jim Piersall for the first time in six decisions as Pete Daley drove in four runs with a triple and three-run homer. Gus Triandos homered in the ninth for the Orioles. Their other run was unearned as Frank Sullivan (11-7) picked up a 20th victory record against Baltimore. Portocarrero is 13-10.

The Athletics, down 3-0 after Minnie Minoso's 19th home run for Cleveland in the first inning, scored four runs in their first. They added two on Hector Lopez' 18th homer in the fifth.

Bob Grim (4-6) won his third in a row, with relief help. Hal Woodeshick (3-6) lost it.

Bob Friend finally has won 18. Dick Stuart is no flop. And Pittsburgh Pirates got off running in their week-long showdown with the Braves by trimming 3-2 at Milwaukee Friday night trimming the champs' National League lead to 5½ games again.

The second-place Pirates trail the Braves by six games in the lost column—and they have six left to play with them, single games Sunday and Sunday at Milwaukee and four in Pittsburg next weekend.

Friend, the workhorse of the Buc staff, needed relief help from Don Gross at the end, but he had enough to out-dual southpaw Warren Spahn and both were all alone as the NL's top hurler.

SPAHN RIGHT BEHIND

Spahn, a 20-game winner for the best previous winning total was 1956, now is 18-13. Spahn, firing for his ninth season of 20 or more victories, is 17-10.

Los Angeles knocked off third-place San Francisco 5-1 and remained fourth place over the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost to Chicago 4-3 in 10. Cincinnati rapped Philadelphia 5-2.

Friend was helped from the game in the ninth by Eddie Mathews' 38th home run.

Spahn failed to hang on with the Pirates the last two innings, and a 10th inning single by Stuart, since being recalled after the all-star game. Bob Skinner socked it home.

DRYSDALE WINS

The Dodgers handed the Giants their eighth defeat in 10 games behind the five-hit pitching of Don Drysdale and home runs by Carl Furillo and Don Zimmer. Drysdale (10-11) has won five in a row, one short of a three-hit going until the eighth.

Leroy Paul Giel (5-4) lost it.

Wally Moon drove in three runs for the Cards with a two-run homer and a run-scoring triple while Larry Jackson won his 12th with his ninth straight complete game. The Cubs had 10 hits, scoring two runs on Walt Moryn's 20th home run, but still lost the losing. Dick Drott (6-11) was the loser.

Bob Purkey, the first-hander the Pirates traded to Cincinnati for Gross last December, won his 14th—Redleg staff ace with an eighth-liner. Loser was Don Cardwell (3-5).

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP)—Col. K. R. Marshall's Hartney, odds on favourite in the $10,000 Fort Erie Friday derby, drove steadily to win a handy 2¾-length victory over Roundtree.

The 42-day summer meeting here ends tonight with the $25,000-added Niagara Stakes handicap being the main lure. A total of 16 horses were put through the entry box Friday morning but at least four will be scratched before eligible.

Hartney's time was 1.41 3-5 for the mile and one furlong. Count Teddy was a late third.

Decision on Moving Senators To Minneapolis to Come Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Senators ducked the big question Friday and wouldn't say whether they plan to sit tight in the capital or stake out new territory.

Directors of the American League club did not even take up the possibility of moving to Minneapolis, according to a statement issued after nearly two hours behind closed doors.

Although postponed, their decision may come shortly.

While team directors met here, Minneapolis officials split on passage of a $9,000,000 bond issue to enlarge the city's stadium from 21,000 to 41,000 capacity. The proposal was cleared by an 11-4 vote by city council, but the board of estimate only one taxable league expected to rubber stamp the plan, postponed a vote.

Before leaving St. Paul made its pitch at the same time, voting $100,000 or whatever is necessary to expand its stadium from 10,250 to 42,000 if a big league team agrees to operate there.

The twin cities could accommodate only one major league franchise. St. Paul, hoping to get in first, may have the edge in that Cleveland as well as Washington, too.

Calvin Griffith, president of the Senators, said he had been notified of the Minneapolis action after his board meeting adjourned.

Parker to Meet Chuvalo for Heavy Title

TORONTO (CP)—George Chuvalo and James J. Parker, Canada's two heavyweights, have been signed to fight were Sept. 15 at Maple Leaf Gardens, heavyweight boxing championship.

Parker, of Barrie, Ont., signed for the 15-round event Friday with his new manager, Peter Eagins. Parker has been in training four months and six weeks ago fought Ernie York heavyweight Willie Black in an Ottawa match. He has held the British Empire heavyweight championship since 1956.

Chuvalo, a Toronto fighter who was ranked 10th by Ring magazine after a draw with Zora Milelf of Argentina, has had 13 pro fights and lost two. Parker has won 23 of his 40 bouts.

Southern Pro Has Amazing 11-Under-Par Round in Open

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Ferree, a littery southerner who has joined the going tough on golf's tournament trail, parlayed an 8 putter and driving iron from a fellow professional into one of the game's greatest 18-hole rounds Friday.

Ferree, 27 - year - old bespectacled blonde from Winston-Salem, N.C., astounded the golfing world with an 11-under-par 61 over the 6,508-yard Point Grey course to take a four-stroke lead into today's third round of the $40,000 Centennial Open.

He was so nervous at the end of his round he couldn't remember his 33-39 nines and called for help from a player in his three some.

GOLFING FIRST

While this little byplay was going on, and with thousands of gum soles clustering around, official of the United States Professional Golfers Association sought record books in a vain effort to find anything that ever matched his feat.

Many rounds have been shot in 30 and 61 over par and par-71 courses, but there was nothing in the books to match Ferree's score over a par-70 layout.

Ferree, aided financially by a sponsoring group which came from Mobile, Ala., since he joined the tournament tour in 1956, forgot his double-par 70 and double-par 29 incoming nine over the rain-soaked course. The layout has yielded nearly 40 sub-par rounds to a field seeking the $6,400 first-place money in the 72-hole tournament, which winds up Monday.

HOLDS HIS BREATH

"I can hardly talk," Ferree said. "I held my breath the last four or five holes for fear I'd choke."

He wasn't alone. There wasn't a whisper in the gallery around the 18th green as Ferree rolled up a 25-foot putt on the par-five hole. He sank it for an eagle three, tossed his cap high into the air and sent his putter, bought at $5 from Minn., there sake ago, after it.

"Normally I'm a poor putter," Ferree said. He needed only 22 putts ranging from three inches to 36 feet. But the putter will go if it doesn't behave.

"As soon as one putter goes your I just pack it away and get another," Ferree said. "It could happen with this one."

LESSON AND PRACTICE

Ferree got a driving lesson from Frank Stranahan, the best golfer in the practice tee Thursday after firing a 69 in the opening round.

"I drove terribly on Thursday," Ferree said. "My driving improved after it was pointed out particularly good. I got into trouble twice on my five holes—on the ninth and 14th—when my ball went to the left at the edge of the woods."

Ferree, the money winner in 1957 with $11,482 and winner of $5,685 so far this year, may not win the big jackpot here with another 36 holes to go, but people won't soon forget his nine birdies and an eagle. He had a 130 going into today's round.

FACES THE NEEDLE

The tournament - tough pros will give him the needle today and Monday and it wouldn't surprise me if he cracked and finished out of the first five," a veteran observer said.

Closest to Ferree at 136 were Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., and Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y. They shot 66s to go with first-round 70s. Another three strokes back were Billy Casper of San Mateo, Calif., and Ken Venturi of San Francisco.

Clustered at 138 were Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., Bob Baden of Oswego, Ore., Kolchi Ono of Japan and Stranahan.

Al Balding of Toronto, first-round leader with three others, at 140 was 10 strokes off the pace. Moe Norman of Kitchener and Toronto was 143.

West, Custis Will Carry Load For Dutchmen

KITCHENER (CP)—Two former Big Four players are slated for a lot of ball-carrying tonight for Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen as a result of their work in last week's opening football game.

Davey West and Bernie Custis have been put on the offensive backfield of the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior team for its first match against Detroit Raiders, a new entry.

Coach Royal Bailey said he was happy with the pair's work in Dutchies' 14-13 win last Saturday over London Lords.

Tonight's game counts four points and could put Kitchener in first place ne give Ralders a tie with Sarnia Golden Bears, who shaded the U.S. team 36-26 last week.

Verdun coach Jim Tsonos said that as far as he knows both players are in the clear and he plans to use both against Cornwall Emards Monday.

TO PLAN WORLD SERIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans for the 1958 world series will be worked out in Chicago Monday, baseball commissioner Ford Frick said Friday. He had previously called for the annual joint meeting of the American and National League owners for the following day.

Not Negotiating

NEW YORK (AP) — General manager George Weiss of New York Yankees said Friday the club was not negotiating with veteran field manager Casey Stengel regarding a new contract.

Earlier New York World-Telegram and Sun reported Stengel and Dan Topping, co-owner of the club, had discussed a two-year contract at $80,000 a year. Stengel's present contract, described as a personal or civil one as contrasted with the usual baseball type, runs until the end of this year.

"There's not a bit of truth in the story," said Weiss.

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League Friday announced their first signing for the 1958-59 season. He is centre Sid Finney, last year's Stampeder captain. Last fall the club purchased him outright from Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Frenchy's Extra Drop Kick Costs Him Win Over Kiniski

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Bernard "Frenchy" Vignal, with victory in his grasp, drop kicked himself out of the decision at Memorial Arena last night in the third fall of his main bout with the terror of the West, Gene Kiniski.

The classy Frenchman let Kiniski all set up for the kill. The crowd roared its approval as the muscular and handsome Vignal man-handled Gene all over the mat in the opening fall.

Frenchy tore out of his corner with murder in his eye as the bell sounded. Both wrestlers went to the mat and Gene gave Vignal's cheek bone a going over with his knee on the break. But that was all for Kiniski. The Paris flash smashed Gene to the mat and applied the famous neck twist with his feet, leaving his opponent squirming on his back. Gene struggled to his feet only to be slung up after a couple of these but Frenchy took to the air with a beautiful leg kick.

Again Kiniski gained his footing but appeared to be out of his depth. Vignal's loose knee on many drop kick put as Kiniski toppled backward. Then he hit the mat and put Vignal landed on the back of his opponent's neck. Good enough for advantage, leaged on his opponent. He came down on the groggy Vignal with a couple of knee drops across the throat and took the match with a lingling body press.

Kiniski had won the first fall, probably the best of the three. From his pair engaged in plenty of fast wrestling with all the holds in the book applied by both men. Frenchy was up to all his usual rough stuff but Frenchy held his own and dished out plenty of punishment. He beat Gene several times in bouts of strength and speed and on a number of holds, coming close to pinning the mat with Read.

Gene bothered to hold him down. Kiniski finally caught him with a couple of knees in the corner, coming off the ropes to win it in 13 minutes.

FRENCHY'S FALL

Vignal had things all his own way in the middle fall and tied the match in six minutes. He threw Gene with a flying tackle, the first full Nelson on Kiniski, and pounded Gene with rump bumps. A series of fast holds finished the big boy as Frenchy came up with his neck twists, drop kicks, an airplane spin and a body press. Kiniski was still rolling about the mat when Frenchy bearhugged for the pinning count. Then came the accident in the third fall and Kiniski had won another.

The semi-final was an action packed and crowd pleasing tag team event with the dark Italian Scott Brothers, Joe and Guy, winning over Jim Henning and Ward Tasker. Guy pinned Tasker after 11 torrid minutes. Henning and Tasker were at their old two-on-one theme but found the Brunetti boys could take all they wanted hand out and give back a little bit more. Joe and Guy decided to play it rough too and were much improved since their last appearance here.

In the opening bout Tarzan Tourville and Leo Garabaldi battled to a 30-minute draw.

Sammy Cotter handled the referee-ing duties.

Want Matthews To Become New Tarzan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eddie Matthews, third baseman for the champion Milwaukee Braves, Friday was offered a chance to become the screen's new Tarzan.

The president of Sol Lesser's Productions hired Matthews an offer to test for the role of the freestringing giant who will be bringing his 40th year as a movie hero for champion.

Gordon Scott, latest screen Tarzan, recently announced that he wanted out of the role.

Matthews, obviously irked, commented:

"It is a typically ridiculous Hollywood story completely unfounded. I haven't heard from him (Lesser) or heard of him. As far as I'm concerned it is just another publicity stunt and I am the goat again. What're they gonna do, cast me as Superman?"

Als Will Rely On Homebred For Centre Spot

MONTREAL (CP) Crippled Montreal Alouettes may go into today's Big Four game against Ottawa Rough Riders with an inexperienced homebred playing in the centre position.

The Als' two regular centres, Ray Purdin and Bob Simpson are suffering from flu and general manager Connie Ciccarelli said the odds are "only 50-50 they'll be able to play."

Bill Stits, 22-year-old, will be trying to win their first game since the start of the season. Bert Brewer, a 220-pound Montrealer who has seen little action in four years with the Alouettes.

But Kennedy said he hopes to have Purdin dress at least briefly.

Tackle Bill Hudson, a holdover import and halfback Charlie Hordon, a new import, have been shelved all season with injuries. Guard Bill Albright, injured in last week's game against Hamilton, definitely will miss today's game against the strong, deep Riders.

12 Youth Hostels Dot Roads Of Western National Parks

By CHARLES MORROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAKE LOUISE, Alta. (CP) — Dr. Andrew Moffat, Edmonton, at the door and said: "Come in and sit down.

"Get down your rucksack and have some tea. It's wet and warm, if nothing else."

The newcomer did as he was told and the talk turned to the hazards of climbing in the loose limestone of the Rockies, favorite Lumber coffee houses, or hitch-hiking in Europe.

IN MOUNTAIN RESORT

The scene was Lake Louise youth hostel, one of 3,200 homeaway-from-home open at 35 a night to anybody who wishes to see the world and meet the people — "the wholesome expenditure of energy," as a founder put it.

Gathered about the table were assorted pre-war-two New Zealand girls, stopping en route to Vancouver to catch a ship home after a world tour; several brush-cut Yank lads from Texas on their two weeks cycling through the Rockies; a group of hikers from Toronto, Hamilton and Binnie.

Lake Louise youth hostel is one of the most popular in a chain of 11 hostels dotted along the scenic roads of Banff, Jasper and Yoho national parks. Two were presented by the national parks branch, and two were built by volunteers from the Calgary Y.M.C.A.

Other chains make possible low cost tours of Britain, Scotland and the Okanagan Valley, in B.C., Quebec's Eastern Townships and Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia. A 72-bed hostel for Ottawa is nearly completed by volunteers at Collingwood, Ont.

In addition to operating the hostels, the Canadian Youth Hostels Association sponsors inexpensive tours of Europe and cycling, hiking and canoeing trips to scenic parts of Canada.

The rock-bottom cost, $926, for the Commonwealth tour to Europe, opens the gate to many Canadians who otherwise would never get abroad.

Elliott Runs Another Mile In Record Time

MALMO, Sweden (AP)—Herb Elliott, the Australian mile master, breezed through here Friday night in his second heating for Olympic amid the acclaim of track-loving Scandinavia. It was the ninth time Elliott had run the mile under four minutes.

This is the north country that bred the likes of Gunner Haegg and Arne Andersson, mile record holders in the '40s who stunned the world when they came within half seconds of four minutes. It is the land of Paavo Nurmi of Finland, hailed as the greatest when he ran 4:10.4 in 1923.

But in the last two days Elliott has shown the rugged Swedes performances of which their wildest dreams were dreamed.

His 3:58 mile came on a cold, windy night that made running conditions poor. Yet he won by 50 yards over Dag Waern of Sweden, who finished second in 4:02.2.

Thursday in Goteborg, Sweden, he smashed the world record for 2,000 metres (the metric mile) with an amazing 3:36. This is roughly equivalent to a 3:54 mile.

Elliott ran 3:54.5 in setting the world record for the mile in Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 6.

IT'S BACK-TO-SCHOOL TIME AGAIN...

DRIVE WITH CAUTION

SLOW DOWN...AND LIVE!

THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE A CHILD'S!!

School bells will soon be ringing, and our streets and roads will be filled with children heading back to school! This means that you as a driver must be extra-careful, extra-alert! Drive slowly for the sake of the children—YOUR CHILDREN! Remember, they're young, eager, sometimes unpredictable . . . they MAY see you . . . BE SURE you see them! Is a child's life worth five minutes? . . . then remember now to ALWAYS DRIVE SLOWLY! Is a child's life worth a little attention? . . . then remember now to ALWAYS DRIVE CAREFULLY! From here on in watch out for school buses and give them every courtesy. Watch out for children walking to and from school, children waiting for the bus at corners, children at play . . . for they may dart into the street after a ball! It's your responsibility to drive slowly, carefully and to be alert to every possible emergency! SAVE A CHILD'S LIFE!

FOLLOW THESE SAFETY RULES AND SAVE A LIFE!

DON'T...
drive a mechanically unsafe car. Make sure brakes, steering wheel, tires are perfect!

DON'T... ever exceed the speed limit; drive even slower if traffic conditions warrant it!

DON'T... let your attention wander to your companions, the scenery! An alert driver is an alive driver!

DON'T... forget to check yourself as well as your car! Don't drive if you are overtired or sleepy!

DON'T...
Leave your courtesy at home! Obey road rules, drive so as to protect pedestrians and drivers!

DON'T...
drink if you're driving! Even "one for the road" may make it the end of the road for you!

DO...
obey all traffic regulations, markings and signals! Always be courteous, alert, cautious!

ONE OF THE BEST

3-BEDROOM BUNGALOWS, IN BRICK, that we have ever had for sale. It is well worth your time to see the beautiful finished basement with its extra bedroom. The owner had everything fitted for comfort and convenience when it was built and it is well cared for. Can we show it to you ? It's on McDonald Gardens.

JUST LISTED !

WOULD YOU CARE FOR A HOME IN THE COUNTRY ? We have a lovely one just listed and it's right on the edge of town only about 7 miles from town. It's a 3-bedroom home of a distinctive style to suit. A big living room with a fireplace, dining room, kitchen and 4-piece bath on the main floor. Also a nice sized recreation room — four bedrooms, a fine full basement and there is a two-car garage. Consider all this for the price it is, only $13,500. If you see it you will agree that the payment is low — about $3,000.

MAKE AN OFFER

ON A-BUILDING ON STATION STREET, that would be excellent for a small manufacturing plant or a duplex. The owner says "get an offer."

N.H.A. BUNGALOWS

We are starting construction on 15 new N.H.A. bungalows right here in Greenside Manor. We are now taking orders for these homes and if you want to choose all feature the finest styling and 5½% financing, you can choose on large lots close to schools. You could even have your choice for painting. Until these homes are completed they will be sold out in Greenside Manor, so don't delay, call us now!

For First Time in Years Educationists Satisfied With Staff, Accommodation

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

School bells across Canada will beckon more than 3,350,000 pupils this year.

For the first time in several years provincial education authorities say they are not behind-hand with staff and space problems. Elementary - and high schools open Sept. 2 - the earliest opening in years.

Although most provincial officials said they are ready for increased enrolments, the teacher shortage seems to be relieved a little. Only in the Maritimes were shortages severe.

P.E.I. SHORTAGE

For example, Prince Edward Island lacks 100 qualified teachers. About 67 vacancies will be filled by permit teachers, but 25 classes, mostly in the rural areas, will be without teachers.

At Edmundston, N. B., the school board is 96 teachers short of the minimum staff needed to operate its four elementary and two high schools.

This follows the mass resignation of 70 teachers April 28 over a pay dispute. The Edmundston Teachers Association says it will consider unethical any application by outside teachers for the jobs.

In Newfoundland there is a shortage of 45 teachers in the Anglican schools but most of the vacancies are in isolated one-room schools hard to fill at the best of times.

The Roman Catholic board says there are very few vacancies in its schools.

ADEQUATE SUPPLY

Ontario reports an adequate supply of teachers for more than 1,000,000 pupils expected to register this year.

A large wave of pupils, growing up following Canada's increased birth rate after the Second World War, has reached the latter stages of elementary education and some high schools are already feeling the pinch.

Ontario, in preparation for this, has 17 new secondary schools opening in September.

Montreal's Roman Catholic schools will be trying a new method of teaching this year—a reading - discussion method for students in history classes. It's still on an experimental basis but may be used later in other courses.

Overcrowding is not a problem in P.E.I. which opens two new schools this fall. But in Nova Scotia, education officials are "tearing their hair" trying to find space for growing enrolments.

BUILD NEW SCHOOLS

School construction there has been "unprecedented," officials said, but there is no figure available yet as to how many classrooms will be opened this fall. Last year 11 new high schools went into operation.

New Brunswick reports no congestion in classes. Nova Scotia officials said there is congestion only in lower grades.

Montreal Catholic School Commission reports that there will be "no classroom without a teacher despite rigid qualifications exacted from those wishing to teach. A class of more than 30 students is exceptional."

Ten new schools, including one new high school, are being opened this year in Montreal.

The Montreal Protestant School Commission which teaches about 43,000 students, reports no class congestion. There are enough teachers, including 40 recruited from the United Kingdom.

WESTERN REPORTS

In the West, Regina will have about 10,500 pupils, a 4 per cent increase over last year, registered by the end of September. No teacher shortage is expected. Last year the education department reported 50 teachers short compared to 600 lacking five years ago.

No congestion and no teacher shortage is reported from Alberta where curriculum changes have been kept to a minimum because a royal commission on education has not yet completed its investigations.

Edmonton, with about 50,000 students enrolled, expects to open five new schools.

Winnipeg reports no teacher shortages. New schools are expected to take care of increased enrolments.

In Vancouver, about 130,000 pupils are expected, with congestion in the lower grades. A construction strike during the summer has slowed the building of five new schools and seven additions in greater Vancouver.

The Vancouver school board says there is no teacher shortage.

More of Fatal Road Accidents Are Unnecessary

OTTAWA — The most frightening aspect of the mounting toll of human deaths in traffic on long, holiday weekends is the fact that 50 per cent of the fatal accidents need never have happened. That, claims the Canadian Highway Safety Conference, is another way of saying that in a town 3,000 people, the population of a Canadian village, died without reason.

"The vehicle went out of control," usually heads the list of accident causes, reports the Conference, which means that the driver either forced his vehicle into a position where he could no longer command it, either through speed or stupidity, or lacked the facility to handle a vehicle in the first place. High on the list is "rear - end collision," chiefly parked vehicles struck from behind. In surprisingly many of these incidents, the parked vehicle completely disappears with its flashing lights showing, a car with parking lights on.

The people who died fall into three categories — driver, passenger, pedestrian. If bicycle-riders can be listed with the pedestrian, then traffic death list, drivers occur twice as often as passengers. Among killed pedestrians, children predominate.

Everywhere, human failure appears as the underlying cause of highway fatalities. If the human at the wheel had only acted as he should — and could — have acted, the thousands who died would be living today. And, the Conference points out, include the human who failed.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

LATE NESTING

Naturally, we are much surprised to see a second nest at this date; most birds finished rearing their young in June. But there are several reasons why a pair may be bringing up a family late in the season. Many birds always have more than one brood in a summer — cardinals have several. Or—tragedy might have overtaken the early brood or a pair that ordinarily has not a habit of rearing two families, so they try again. This makes it a nesting period extend over several months. Then there are certain birds that never begin to build until late.

Goldfinches belong to this class. Instead of settling down in pairs when spring approaches, they continue to fly around in flocks through May, June, and very often even part of July — waiting until special plant down is ready. They have a great love for thistle down as a soft nest lining. If that is not available, something similar, as dandelion fluff from cottonwood trees, may be used. But goldfinches are not opportunite. A pretty sight is the pair perched on a tall weed-stalk and plucking the seeds and gathering down, he dressed in bright yellow with black markings, she in yellowish green, with indications of black.

FED ON FRUIT

The slick looking cedar waxwings have a somewhat different reason for putting off the nesting period. They have a passion for cherries — especially choke cherries. Other kinds of small fruits are also highly appreciated by them, particularly wild varieties, such as mountain ash, sumac, bittersweet, and the like. Before these are ready, waxwings catch flies in real flycatcher style, leaping into the air from a high perch to trap them. But they delay nesting until berries so that their young may be fed small fruits. So they build in trees where fruit is plentiful.

Young waxwings sit in their nests with bills turned towards the centre, looking like the spokes of a wheel. This is a very odd position, but cuckoos also sit thus. When an old waxwing nest is examined it is often found to contain cherry stones which, because flycatcher, the youngsters have spit up.

The waxwings are also gregarious. As soon as their breeding season is over, they join their with neighbouring waxwing families, flying overhead in close flocks, giving their characteristic little squeaks. Indeed, even when they move somewhat southward in the winter they keep together. At that time they subsist on dry fruits.

Gananoque Man Held for Fraud In Repair Racket

TORONTO (CP) — Police say three men have been charged with fraud in a Niagara Peninsula home-repair racket that netted up $80,000 within the last few months.

Arrested and charged Thursday are Gordon Thompson, 33, Hamilton, Louis Erlich, 47, Ancaster Township, and Murray McLennan, 28, Gananoque.

Police said a group operated a home improvement and building service by forming various companies, now extinct. They said 30 complaints were received over the last few months.

Detective Don McFarlane said the men would offer to improve a home so it would be a 'show place' to encourage other business. In some cases, the men referred to do the work free.

The home owner would be asked to sign several papers on various e x t r a s. Among the papers would be a promissory note and a completion notice.

These notes were in turn sold to a credit company at face value. The credit company would then approach the homeowner for payment.

Labor Day Affords Final Fling at Lake - Then School

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Labor Day on Monday is the last long holiday weekend of the summer, the signal for the return to school and the closing of summer cottages.

Like other warm-weather holiday weekends it will see high-ways and railways and airlines jammed with traffic, this time increased by the thousands of summer country and lakeside dwellers who have to get back to the city as public and secondary schools reopen.

But while many families are taking a final farewell of the countryside, thousands of others will be attending celebrations in the cities and towns marking labor's observance being that at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, where thousands of members of labor unions march in the traditional parade.

A year ago they swelled the CNE's one day attendance total to 252,500. It may be bigger this year.

The working man's pride in his craftsmanship has been behind the world's simple observance for many centuries in Europe. Long ago England witnessed annual processions of tradesmen linked with the products of the ancient guilds.

In Canada, legislation establishing the Labor Day holiday was passed through Parliament by the Conservative party government of Prime Minister Sir John Thompson in 1894.

It followed the growing agitation of previous years that had seen sporadic demonstrations and parades in Ottawa, Toronto and Toronto.

But the day on this continent had always had a clear separation from the traditional European May Day workers' celebrations, often accompanied by violence and bloodshed in the older lands.

The September date was selected largely on the urgings of Alexander W. Wright, a labor journalist b o r n at Markham Township near Toronto, who had moved to Washington as editor of the influential American labor journal. He strongly opposed the idea of adopting May Day as a labor day of celebration in North America, and when the United States chose the first Monday in September for the observance, Wright came to Ottawa and successfully campaigned for the same date in Canada.

Making New Iris Bed Not Difficult

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Every few years you must divide and replant the bearded iris to maintain a good display. Now is a good time for this chore.

Make the bed in a new place if possible, if not replace the old soil to a depth of eight inches.

Iris are heavy feeders and take large quantities of nutrients and water from the soil, but they must be in a well drained place. They prefer full sun but do thrive crately well in partial shade. Since the root system is shallow, six to eight inches will be deep enough to prepare the new bed. Dig in plenty of decayed leaves, compost or leaf mold. Any old plaster or mortar can be broken up fine and incorporated to good advantage. Never use fresh manure. It will make the soil acid and iris will tolerate only an alkaline soil. Half a cup of slaked, or agricultural lime for every square yard of surface will suit these plants well.

New rhizomes (the fleshy underground stem) form out from the old ones, gradually growing into a circle. The centre dies and the new plants form. Select firm new sections about six inches long when you are ready to replant. Cut off the tops and leave only about six inches. Discard any weak plants. Set out at one-foot intervals.

Make a shallow depression to receive the new plant. Place a handful of soil in the centre of this depression and set the rhizome on this. Firm the soil around the roots and cover the fleshy part not more than half an inch.

Firm down well and soak with water to settle. A light dressing of bone meal one tablespoon per plant will aid in formation of new roots and blossoms for the following year.

The forecast for bearded iris has hundreds of variations in color combinations. The new hybrids they may be had in the fall and potted up for indoor bloom or planted in the border or rock garden for spring bloom. The grass-like foliage is eight inches high.

These will spread and increase for several years if the conditions are favorable. The bulbs are quite inexpensive. Some may be had for fifty cents a dozen. Others are higher in price. Colors range from white through yellow, several shades of blue and a bronzy purple.

The tall dutch iris is also known as the Spanish iris, with stems from 18 to 24 inches long. They, too, may be had in white, yellow, blues and purple, flowers that last well and make fine arrangements. These bulbs may be planted in a space one yard square. Plant in clumps where they will have a chance to spread. The grass-like foliage takes up little space in the border, but provides a pleasant leaf form for the mixed border. Bulbs now to be delivered in October.
